Good Cutting Management Can Yield High-Quality Alfalfa

BY LISA RISSER

HERSHEY (Dauphin) — The most important factor in producing high-quality alfalfa is its harvesting, and harvesting is also the area where the farmer has the most control. This was the message Dr. Garry D. Lacefield delivered to the hundreds of people that attended the 19th National Alfalfa Symposium this week. Lacefield is an agronomy professor at the University of Kentucky.

Among the areas for farmers to consider are when to harvest the first cutting, will there be a freeze-down or dormant harvest, when should the harvest before freeze-down occur, how many cuttings between the first and last, and should the alfalfa be grazed.

"Harvesting alfalfa hay requires a compromise between quality, yield, and stand persistance," Lacefield said. "Early-cut hay makes a more desirable feed because it contains more of the nutrient components associated with high quality. Hay cut in an early stage is more palatable and is consumed in larger quantities by livestock."

On the other hand, alfalfa harvested too often results in a shorter stand life.

The first harvest of the season is very important. It determines the number of cuttings and sometimes the quality. "Early first harvest permits a more intense harvest schedule and can result in both higher yields and higer quality," said Lacefield. "Timely first harvest may reduce or eliminate

Dale and Fay Herr, left, of Kirkwood were presented with an aerial photograph of their farm by Robert E. Wagner, vice chairman of the Lancaster County Conservation District, during the district's annual banquet on Thursday night. The photograph is part of the Outstanding Cooperator Award, which the district bestowed on the Herrs for their conservation work over the past 19 years.

Chester County Crops Day

Pre-planting Herbicides Offer Advantages In Any Weather

BY PAT PURCELL

The dry weather of 1988 caused some peculiar problems for many farmers in southeastern Pennsylvania. While those no-rain-in-sight forecasts were good for making hay they were not at all helpful to those waiting for the rain to start their herbicides to work on those weeds in their own corn and soybean fields. Without the rainfall the post planting herbicides were not activated and carried into the soil.

John Yocum, senior research associate at Penn State University agronomy department discussed the use of pre-planting herbicides at Chester County Crops Day held i Guthriesville on Thursday. The dry summer initiated some interest in this line of herbicides whch could be incorporated into the soil prior to planting. According to Yocum, proper placement in relation in relation to the crop is crucial. For instance Prowl® on corn is a good grass control, but to be safe there must be 1½ inch soil

Lancaster Conservation District Presents Awards

BY LISA RISSER

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — Conservation is important to A. Dale Herr, a Kirkwood dairy farmer. Ever since he purchased his first farm in 1970, he has employed conservation practices such as diversions, waterways, and contour strips.

The Lancaster County Conservation District presented Herr with their Outstanding Cooperator Award in recognition of his accomplishments and commitment to conservation during their annual banquet on Thursday night.

The LCCD also presented an award to participants in the Westfield residential development. The award recognizes development projects that incorporate sound storm water practices to reduce run off and control erosion and

Butter Sales Efforts Turn To Coupons

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

HARRISBURG — Dairy promotion specialists are hoping their new use of an old idea -- coupons -- can increase or at least stabilize sales of butter, which have been shrinking for several years.

A couponing effort spearheaded by the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and extended by several regional promotion groups, such as the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, is under way in the weeks before the upcoming Easter holiday.

Locally, the Pennsylvania program will fund the placement of cents-off butter coupons in the insert sections of Sunday news-

Maryland Senate Bills Dead

Veal Industry Under Pressure From Animal Rights

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA—For the moment, two Maryland Senate bills that would have sharply curtailed the white veal meat industry in that state are dead. Senate Bill 606, The Maryland Wholesome Veal Act that was introduced on February 2, 1989, to be come effective July 1, 1989, has been withdrawn by its sponsor, Ida May Garrott, senator, Montgomery County, Maryland.

And Maryland Senate bill 501, The Veal Calf Protection Act, a restrictive growing bill also introduced by Senator Garrott on January 30, 1989 to become effective July 1, 1991 was first changed in objective to establish a task force to evaluate the complaints of the animal rights organizations and later killed in committee.

These developments came last Friday when the state senate Economic and Environmental Affairs committee held hearings on the bills in Annapolis. And as a result of these hearings, the committee voted 7 to 4 to kill the bill altogether. So the issue is dead for this year.

The wholesome veal act would have prohibited the sale, donation, transportation or the receiving of any livestock raised for veal if antibiotics had been administered to the calf by the farmer. Only a licensed veterinarian could administer antibiotics and only for a limited period of therapy. The bill was withdrawn because present meat inspection laws are adequate to protect consumers.

The purpose of the veal calf protection act was to prohibit a person from raising calves for production of veal if the calves are confined in a crate, pen or a stall where they cannot stand up, lie down, turn around, groom themselves or have contact with other calves. Any calf over two weeks old must be fed solid food and iron to maintain its good health.

Retail establishments such as restaurants would have needed to furnish notorized statements from suppliers that veal has been produced in compliance with this act.

Any officer of any society or association incorporated in the State (Maryland) for prevention of cruelty to animals would have been able to, upon their own view in relation to cruelty to animals, make arrests and take violators before any commissioner or district court. These society or association officers in addition to state police officers could not have been denied "reasonable access to any facility where calves are raised for the production of veal."

The penalty was a misdemeanor with a fine of not more

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES. ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services. ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled today fractionally mixed, gaining up to 3/4 cent on the July option and losing down to 1/2 cent on the September. Trading was subdued today with selling attributed to a slight pick-up in farmer sales along with spillover from beans and wheat. Buying was linked to bright export outlook with the USSR soon expected to enter the market. The USDA announced after the close a sale of 100,000 Metric tonnes to "unknowns". Long liquidation in advance of its expiration was featured in the March option.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures prices closed from 2-1/2 cents lower to 1-1/2 cents higher after trading on both sides of yesterday's close all day. Prices again remained confined to narrow ranges with selling featured on ideas the market had become overbought and buying linked to weather worries. Some long liquidation was featured in advance of expiration next week on the March option. Some Brazilian hedge pressure was noted with support attributed to farmer reluctance to sell. November traded to a high of $7.48-1/2 and settled 1/4 cent lower at $7.47-3/4, while May, lost 1-1/2 cents at $7.80.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures prices settled mixed again today and reverse order from yesterday's closes as the spot option gained 1-1/2 cents while the new crop months dropped from 2-1/2 to 3-1/4 cents. Trading throughout the day was subdued with many participants awaiting further developments. Support was provided by news of strong winds and dry weather in the plains states with offsetting pressure provided by forecasts for a chance of rain this weekend. Ideas that recent gains were overdone coupled with overbought conditions pressured. July closed 3-1/4 cents lower today at $4.18-3/4, just above the daily low of $4.18.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle and feeders settled mostly higher this afternoon with buying late in the day linked to short-covering. Activity throughout today's session was lackluster with many participants awaiting the 7-State Cattle on Feed Report

Delmarva Broiler-Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 15, 1989

Demand for ready-to-cook whole fryers was very slow with offerings readily available and attractively priced to stimulate interest. Parts were also in a weak position with wings and cutlets generally the only items holding their own. Less than trucklot asking prices were two cents lower at 62-67 cents. Live supplies were adequate. Weights were falling into a much more desirable range and even lighter than desired at some locations. Slaughter schedules were very light as an occasional plant curtailed operations. The undertone remained weak.

Performance Begins Here

Inside Each Bag of Funk's G-Hybrids and Hoffman Soybeans

Performance. That's the bottom line. Performance that's measured by such characteristics as standability, grain quality, disease resistance and, most important, yields.

You'll get that performance from Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, the top yielding hybrid in Delaware Performance Trials in 1986 and 1987. Or Funk's G-4626, one of the highest yielding varieties in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland during the past three years. Or from Hoffman soybeans like Hoffman 359, a leader in 1987 Maryland trials in Queenstown and Quantico.

Get your ticket to superior performance by contacting your local Hoffman Seed representative or our Landisville office. Call toll free: 1-800-233-0137. In PA: 1-800-732-0456.

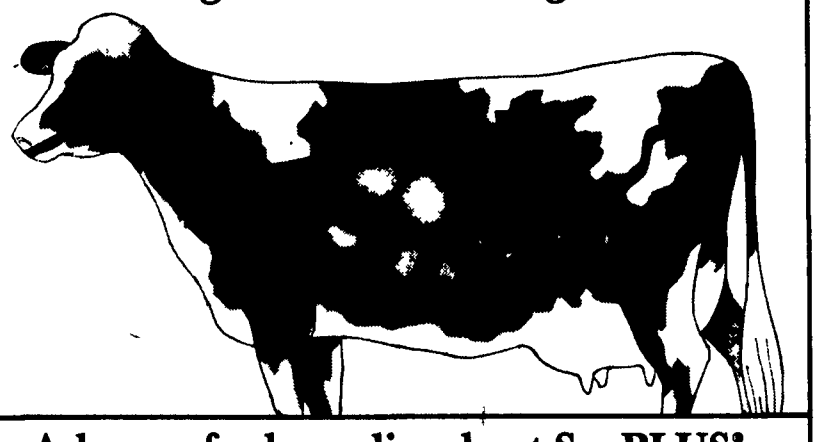
Is too much of your dairy protein breaking down before it gets here?



Ask your feed supplier about SoyPLUS.

SoyPLUS can boost income over feed costs by delivering more undegradable protein to the small intestine, where nutrient absorption really takes place.

SoyPLUS is a richly aromatic, high-energy soybean meal that has been processed in a unique way to increase its level of undegradable (bypass) protein. University research and many 20,000-pound herds are proving that SoyPLUS can significantly increase your return over feed costs.

SOYPLUS BYPASSES MORE PROTEIN!

PROCESSING METHOD	UNDEGRADABLE PROTEIN
Jet-Spoded (roasted)	25%
Solvent	35%
Extruded	35%
SoyPLUS	65%

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MAR. 20-26, 1989

Happy Easter!

Vernal equinox, Mar. 20, is also Earth Day... Full Sap Moon, Mar. 22... Good Friday, Mar. 24 ... Average length of days for the week 12 hours 17 minutes ... Mar. 25 birthdays include Anita Bryant, Howard Cosell, Aretha Franklin, Elton John, and Gloria Steinem . Mar. 26, Easter Sunday, and birthday of Diana Ross . Though honey is sweet, do not lick it off a briar.

Ask the Old Farmer: Did you ever stop to figure why a certain, commonly-used, farm implement is called a "harrow?" H.C., Minn.

Not for long. Harrow is an ancient word of Saxon origin; it means to rend and disfigure.

Home Hints: Give lilac bushes wood ashes in winter, supplying fresh potash for maximum spring blooms

OPINION

Farmers Play Key Role

Is our food supply really safe or should we be concerned about pesticide residues? That question was at the heart of a debate between Dr. Elizabeth Whelan, director of the American Council on Science and Health and Jan Auerbach, review branch chief for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

These experts appeared during the "Confrontation," moderated by long-time NBC news commentator Edwin Newman. The session was part of the National Corn Growers Corn Classic in Nashville, TN.

Both Whelan and Auerbach agreed that the U.S. food supply is safe. However, Whelan noted that the public is sometimes led to believe otherwise by people she described as "noseaphobics." "These people are like hypochrondriacs only they are always thinking they will get sick in the future." As a result, they try to remove all risks in our society, she added.

A recently released report by the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) suggested that children are at risk from eating produce that was grown with the use of pesticides. Whelan said the report is "typical of this type of pseudo-science." Groups like this overlook naturally occurring carcinogens and many of the bigger public health concerns like smoking and alcoholism, added Whelan. In essence, they are "squishing ants while the elephants run wild."

Whelan suggested that the more than 1,600 corn growers in attendance demand that regulators stand up and state the truth. "We have the safest food supply in the world." She also asked the group to "implore scientists to step forward and get out of their stupor" on food safety issues. "We need scientists to defrock those 'toxic terrorists'."

Auerbach agreed that the U.S. food supply is generally safe. And she pointed out how the EPA has taken regulatory actions to protect the public when they can base their decisions on sufficient data.

However, many pesticides were registered years ago and the data base on these products is lacking, noted Auerbach. The EPA is in the process of requesting new data and reviewing pesticides to meet current regulation standards.

"When this process is over, everyone will have a much higher confidence level in our food supply," Auerbach added.

The agency has implemented a "comfortable margin" of safety for their regulations and assessments, explained Auerbach. But these assume that farmers are using pesticides safely. She encouraged growers to always follow label directions, practice integrated pest management and be open to using non-chemical alternatives.

No question about it. American farmers produce good food. And they play a key role in keeping the food supply safe.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Be Patient

This is the time of year that we are under strain and pressure to get a lot of jobs under way for the planting season. It also means that we are not as patient with people and livestock. Let's be careful, as we move our cattle around, and not give them that extra slap or prod or try to speed up movement. Keep in mind, that extra shove or push could have an effect on production. Cows can "sense" the change in pace and temperament and respond with a little less production.

There is a great deal of activity in the spring season, but let's not take it out on our cattle. Be patient and try to maintain a relaxed schedule as we move our livestock around. It'll pay off in the milk check.

We find that in the best producing herds the animals are relaxed and the workers are relaxed. This tells us something about the tender loving care that cattle need.

To Apply Poultry Manure Sparingly

With the large poultry population in this region, poultry manure is in good supply. Since poultry manure may contain from 15 pounds to nearly 50 pounds of nitrogen per ton, depending on moisture and litter content, overapplication can burn crops and result in disappointments. Gardeners should not be using heavy amounts of fresh manure in their soils. On cropland it is recommended that poultry manure applications be limited to not more than 5 to 7 tons of 75% moisture content per acre.

Keep in mind that some poultry manure may contain up to 50 pounds of nitrogen per ton and can burn seeds and crop roots. Poultry manure is also the highest in phosphorus and potash of any of our farm manures. It has excellent fertilizer value when used properly.

The 1989-90 Agronomy Guide (page 19) gives additional details about the fertilizer values of farm manures. The Agronomy Guide is available through any extension office in Pennsylvania for a $5 fee.

To Remove Trash

Landowners along rural roads are the victims of people who have little respect for property of others. Too many people are dumping trash in fields along the road. In all cases when this is dumped on pastures or cropland, the trash should be removed before spring growth begins. This trash will be hard on farm equipment when on cropland and may be poisonous to livestock when on pastureland.

We urge property owners to remove the trash in the next few weeks. If any type of identification can be made, as to the owner of the trash, this should be reported to Township officials; prosecution can be made for dumping trash along the highway.

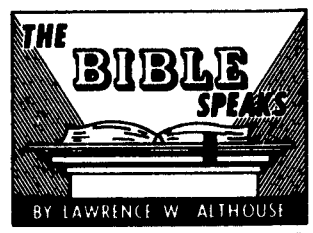
To Control Mice In Orchards

Now that the winter is almost gone, our fruit growers should take a look at the newly exposed grass sod in their orchards. If there are runways at the surface of the grass, it is a good sign that there are plenty of mice in the orchard, even though a mouse baiting program may have been followed last fall.

The mice have used up their stockpiles of stored food and are now looking for a fresh supply. At this time of the year they will move quickly onto bark and roots of fruit trees.

Fruit growers should rebait their orchards as soon as possible if there are fresh mouse signs.

The Penn State Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.



THE FULLEST OF THE FULLEST

March 19, 1989

Background Scripture: Colossians 2:6-23.

Devotional Reading: Luke 19:29-40.

Although hardly an expert on religions other than Christianity, over the years I have had some significant experiences with other faiths, as well as having taught a number of classes on one or more of them. At these times I have always been profoundly impressed with these traditions so different from my own. I have frequently concluded that, if everyone on this earth were to sincerely practice one of these many faiths, the world would be a far better place in which to live. Truism or not, I believe we all believe in one God. A good Buddhist has nothing to fear from a good Hindu and a good Christian should be able to regard both as his brethren.

THE COMPLETE PICTURE

Yet, at the same time I can appreciate that all or most religions can lead us to the one God. I am no less enamoured of the Christian way, for in it I find a fullness, a completeness that I do not find in the others. The God I find in Jesus Christ is as complete a picture of God as I could ever want or need.

I don't mean that this answers all the possible questions I might want to ask, but I am convinced that it contains all the answers that I need. I find myself echoing Paul: "For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily..." (2:9).

That doesn't mean I can comprehend all that "fullness," but I can comprehend enough for my needs. Neither does it mean that I say this with any arrogance or pride-- "My view of God is better than yours"-- but with humility. All too often Christians adopt the wrong attitude toward other religions, failing to realize that having a "better" religious faith does not necessarily make us "better." Being a Christian is not like being an avid fan of the NFL team that wins the Superbowl.

THE COMPLETE LIFE

Actually, the key is not a matter of who understands God more completely, but who serves him more fully. This is the second of the "fullnesses" of which Paul writes the Colossians: "...and you have come to fullness of life in him..." (2:10a). Christianity gives us, not only the most complete picture of God, but the most complete life we can experience. If-- a big "if," I'll grant you-- I can manage to live according to Christ's teachings, I cannot imagine any possible life fuller than that. If I can learn to love God with all my heart, soul, strength and mind, and my neighbor as myself, what more is there that I need to know? If I can manage to take up my cross and follow him, what more is there to do? If I can discipline myself to seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, what more can anyone of any faith add to my life?

I can choose only for myself, but I am certain that in choosing Jesus Christ I have found all the fullness the world has to offer.

Now There's A Farmer In Your Area Who Can Make Any Business Loan The Bank Can.

Since 1917, farmers have taken kindly to Farm Credit because we're owned and controlled by people who really understand your business.

Farmers. Just like yourself. Thing was, we didn't exactly lay out a Sunday dinner spread of loans. Our menu was limited, and we knew it.

So recently we overhauled our lending system. We now offer competitive rates and options for loans we never could offer before.

Adjustable rate mortgages.
Revolving lines of credit.
Variable and fixed rate loans.

Terms of 30 days to 30 years. There's even a variety of services including insurance plans.

Some things do remain the same, however. The Farm Credit loan officer you talk to still makes most of the decisions.

And chances are he can do it faster than most bankers can say "bureaucracy."

So think about this for a moment. Who would you rather deal with for your next loan? A banker who merely wants your business. Or a farmer who knows it.

Alfalfa Hydroseeding Program

Now entering our seventh season, here are some remarks we have most commonly heard over the years

1) Hydroseeding is a time saving procedure
2) Forry's method of hydroseeding is far ahead of the field
3) Their 3-10-30 fluid fertilizer gives me my total plant food need for the first year

PROMISING SIGNS OF PROSPERITY.

For better standability and higher yields.

Not every seed corn can stand the test of our tough growing season. But Agway 596S and 788X can because they're bred specifically for the soil, climate and growing conditions in this region.

So when you see these Agway signs, you know you're looking at the promise of excellent standability and outstanding yield potential.

For a prosperous 1989 season, ask your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson for the facts on these proven hybrids.

tomorrow. Selling was linked to light fed cattle sales and concerns over sluggish boxed beef movement along with the cutback in slaughter levels. Live cattle closed from 20 to 42 points higher while feeders settled from 25 lower on the spot option to 32 higher.

Pre-release estimates of 7-State Cattle on Feed Report:

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash -steady futures-steady.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed from 10 points lower to 25 points higher after a fairly quiet day. Losses of 10 points on the spot option were in anticipation of mostly lower cash openings tomorrow with further pressure exerted by lower product values. Loins were quoted $ 6.00 to $ 8.00 lower midday. Buying late in the day was attributed to bargain hunting and spillover from higher bellies.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK; cash - steady to lower futures - steady to mixed

ATTENTION TYPE 609 TOBACCO GROWERS

We have plenty of 609 seed for sale. If you need seed please call and we will mail it to you.

With the terrific progress that we made in the 609 market this year, our feeling is that we need to produce more poundage to meet the incredible demand that we expect to continue for years to come. Farmers need to be very aware of the type of tobacco they plant this year. Don't forget that our hard work to provide a good 609 market is what made 41 prices more interesting. Competition of the 609 market is what is producing incentive for 41 buyers to come up with more competitive prices to cause you to farm type 41.

We have received good response and enough concern from farmers that we have decided to continue tobacco sales. We need more volume to maintain a good market and attract more tobacco companies that are now aware and have become very interested in our product. It is necessary for large volumes to gain a long term committment from many companies that we would like to have follow our 609 market. Several of these companies are interested in our market ONLY if auction survives!

If you still have tobacco on the farm - old or new - give us a call to see what we can do for you.

IT'S TOBACCO TIME IN '89 - GROW 609!!

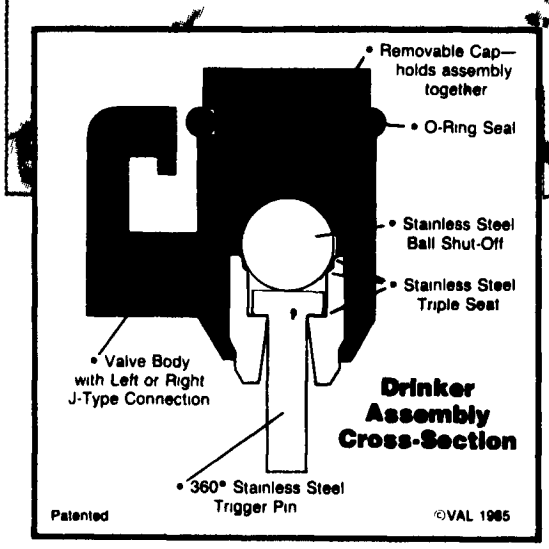
POULTRY FLOOR WATERING SYSTEM FOR BROILERS, BREEDERS, TURKEYS OR DUCKS



• Removable Cap—holds assembly together
• O-Ring Seal
• Stainless Steel Ball Shut-Off
• Stainless Steel Triple Seat
• Valve Body with Left or Right J-Type Connection
• 360° Stainless Steel Trigger Pin
Drinker Assembly Cross-Section
Patented

NIPPLE DRINKER FEATURES

- Day-old birds can activate the valve from any side, any angle. (Mini drinkers required only if birds have been debeaked day-old.)
- Triple stainless steel valve seat made to precision specifications. No rubber seats to replace. Drinker operates on low ¼ - lb. pressure. Minimizes wet litter problems.
- Each nipple can serve 15 broilers, 10 heavy breeders or 8 turkeys.
- Drinker mounts on water line saddle by means of a "J" flange. Easy assembly and easy replacement.
- Drinker is easy to take apart & re-assemble. All parts are accessible and removable by simply pulling the cap out of the body.
- New Mini-Trough Drinker available for day old debeaked birds. Attaches to Nipple Floor Watering System, and remains through grow-out period. There is no need to remove the mini-trough between flocks.

SYSTEM FEATURES

- Water is always accessible, and always clean. The system is completely enclosed. Nipples are self cleaning, and they do not collect dirt. Since the nipple "washes" every time it is triggered, it does not get clogged by feed or feather dust.
- Drier litter is maintained because of the reliable triple seal and low water pressure. There is less spillage and no squirting with this low pressure (¼ lb. or less) watering system.
- The pressure regulator (30VVR332) can provide and maintain a uniform ¼ lb. pressure for the entire length of a 500 ft. ¾ inch plastic water pipe.
- Inspection and maintenance are easy. If a nipple needs replacement, simply turn to disengage the "J" flange and pull the unit out of the "saddle" or pipe connector. The new nipple may be inserted and locked in place by turning to engage the "J" flange. There are no threaded parts, clips or screws.
- Other maintenance tasks are as easy. Leveling may be done by means of adjustment straps on the winch cables. There are no cups, troughs or founts to clean
- Simple installation for floor systems. Plastic water pipe is clamped to 1" conduit sections, coupled together for continuous support. Conduit is suspended from winch system at 12' (max.) intervals. The ¾ " plastic water pipe clamps to conduit ine every 24".

March Is National Nutrition Month

"You are what you eat." That is a familiar phrase but it is true. Research has demonstrated over and over the importance of choosing a well balanced diet for health. Many of the diseases that cause death or disability appear to be related to diet.

Those of you who are late night munchers and cannot face the late movie without a bag of salty potato chips, may be increasing your risk of hypertension. Too much salt is risky business.

Excessive fat intake also may lead to problems. Overuse of eggs, vegetable shortening, butter, cheese, chocolate, meats and milk fat may lead to atherosclerosis or clogging of the arteries.

Some cancers may be related to diet. Higher rates of cancer of the larynx, the oral cavity, the esophagus and liver have been found in those people who consume a lot of alcohol. However, some of these problems may also come from the nutritional deficiencies associated with alcoholism.

The National Cancer Institute has found a relationship between high fat-low fiber diets and cancer.

Another possible nutrition-related disease is osteoporosis of the decreasing of bone mass. Osteoporosis is found primarily in post-menstrual women and appears to be caused by a calcium deficiency.

To maintain good health, we should try to follow the dietary guidelines which include:

EAT A VARIETY OF FOODS- Food alone cannot make you healthy. But good eating habits based on moderation and variety can help keep you healthy and even improve your health.

MAINTAIN YOUR IDEAL WEIGHT- If you need to lose weight, do so gradually. Steady loss of 1 to 2 pounds a week, until you reach your goal, is relatively safe and more likely to be maintained. Long term success depends upon acquiring new and better habits of eating and exercise.

REDUCE YOUR TOTAL DIETARY FAT AND CHOLESTEROL- Choose lean meat, fish, poultry, dry beans and peas as your proteins sources. Moderate your use of eggs and organ meats such as liver. Limit your intake of butter, cream, hydrogenated margarines, shortenings and coconut oil, and foods made from such products. Trim excess fat off meats. Broil, bake or boil rather than fry foods. Read labels carefully to determine both amount and types of fat contained in foods.

EAT FOODS WITH ADEQUATE STARCH AND FIBER- Substitute starches for fats and sugars. Select foods which are good sources of fiber and starch, such as whole grain breads and cereals, fruits and vegetables, dried beans and peas and nuts.

REDUCE YOUR SUGAR INTAKE- Use less of all sugars, including white, brown and raw sugars, and honey and syrups. Read food labels for clues on sugar content. If the names sucrose, glucose, maltose, dextrose, lactose, fructose, or syrups appears first, then there is a large amount of sugar.

LIMIT THE AMOUNT OF SODIUM YOU EAT- Learn to enjoy the flavor of unsalted flavors of foods. Cook without salt and add no salt to food at the table. Flavor food with herbs and lemon juice. Limit your intake of salty foods. Read food labels carefully to determine the amounts of sodium in processed foods and snack items.

AVOID ALCOHOL OR USE IT IN MODERATION- One or two standard-size drinks daily appear to cause no harm in normal, healthy, non-pregnant adults. Twelve ounces of regular beer, 5 ounces of wine, and 1-1/2 ounces of distilled spirits contain about equal amounts of alcohol.

Honey Princess From PA

Jill Mathias

A Pennsylvania first! The Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association has been sponsoring a state honey queen with the corporation of the PA Department of Agriculture for many years. The association has had an annual honey queen since 1954 and for the first time a Pennsylvania queen has been selected to represent the industry nationally as the American Honey Princess.

Jill Mathias of Hummelstown was crowned the 1989 American Honey Princess at the American Beekeeping Federation's Annual Convention in Indianapolis, Indiana. Jill, the daughter of Stewart and Carol Mathias, served as the 1988 Pennsylvania Honey Queen and was the hostess for the PA Beekeepers Association at the farm show this past January.

Jill's relationship with honeybees began the year she was born, for that was the year her father started beekeeping. Before long bees and honey became a way of life. The Mathias family currently operates a small business, Honey Crest Farm, selling quality honey and beeswax.

Jill received a bachelors of science degree from the University of Pittsburgh and plans to begin an MBA program following her reign as American Honey Princess.

City Gal

As a director for two years, and a planner for major shows, Faith has experience in running a cattle sale and in organizing people and events.

Her goal is to see the organization become stronger and obtain more members. She said, "The drawback to increasing membership results from the state being so big—it's hard to get everyone together."

Benefits of membership include participation in the association's sale, receiving the newsletter, advertising in the breed's directory, and getting to know other breeders.

Time is a premium for the Petersons. Faith works fulltime as secretary to the president of Americlean. Recently she and her husband purchased a franchise for Mobicare, Inc., for York and Adams Counties. The franchise, which their son operates, is a self-contained fully equipped mobile service center for vehicle fleets.

Faith is also treasurer of Adams County extension board of directors and secretary of Abbottstown Boro Planning Commission.

Regarding her schedule, Faith laughs and remarks, "I have plenty to do, but I like the options and the change of pace that combining business with farming offers."

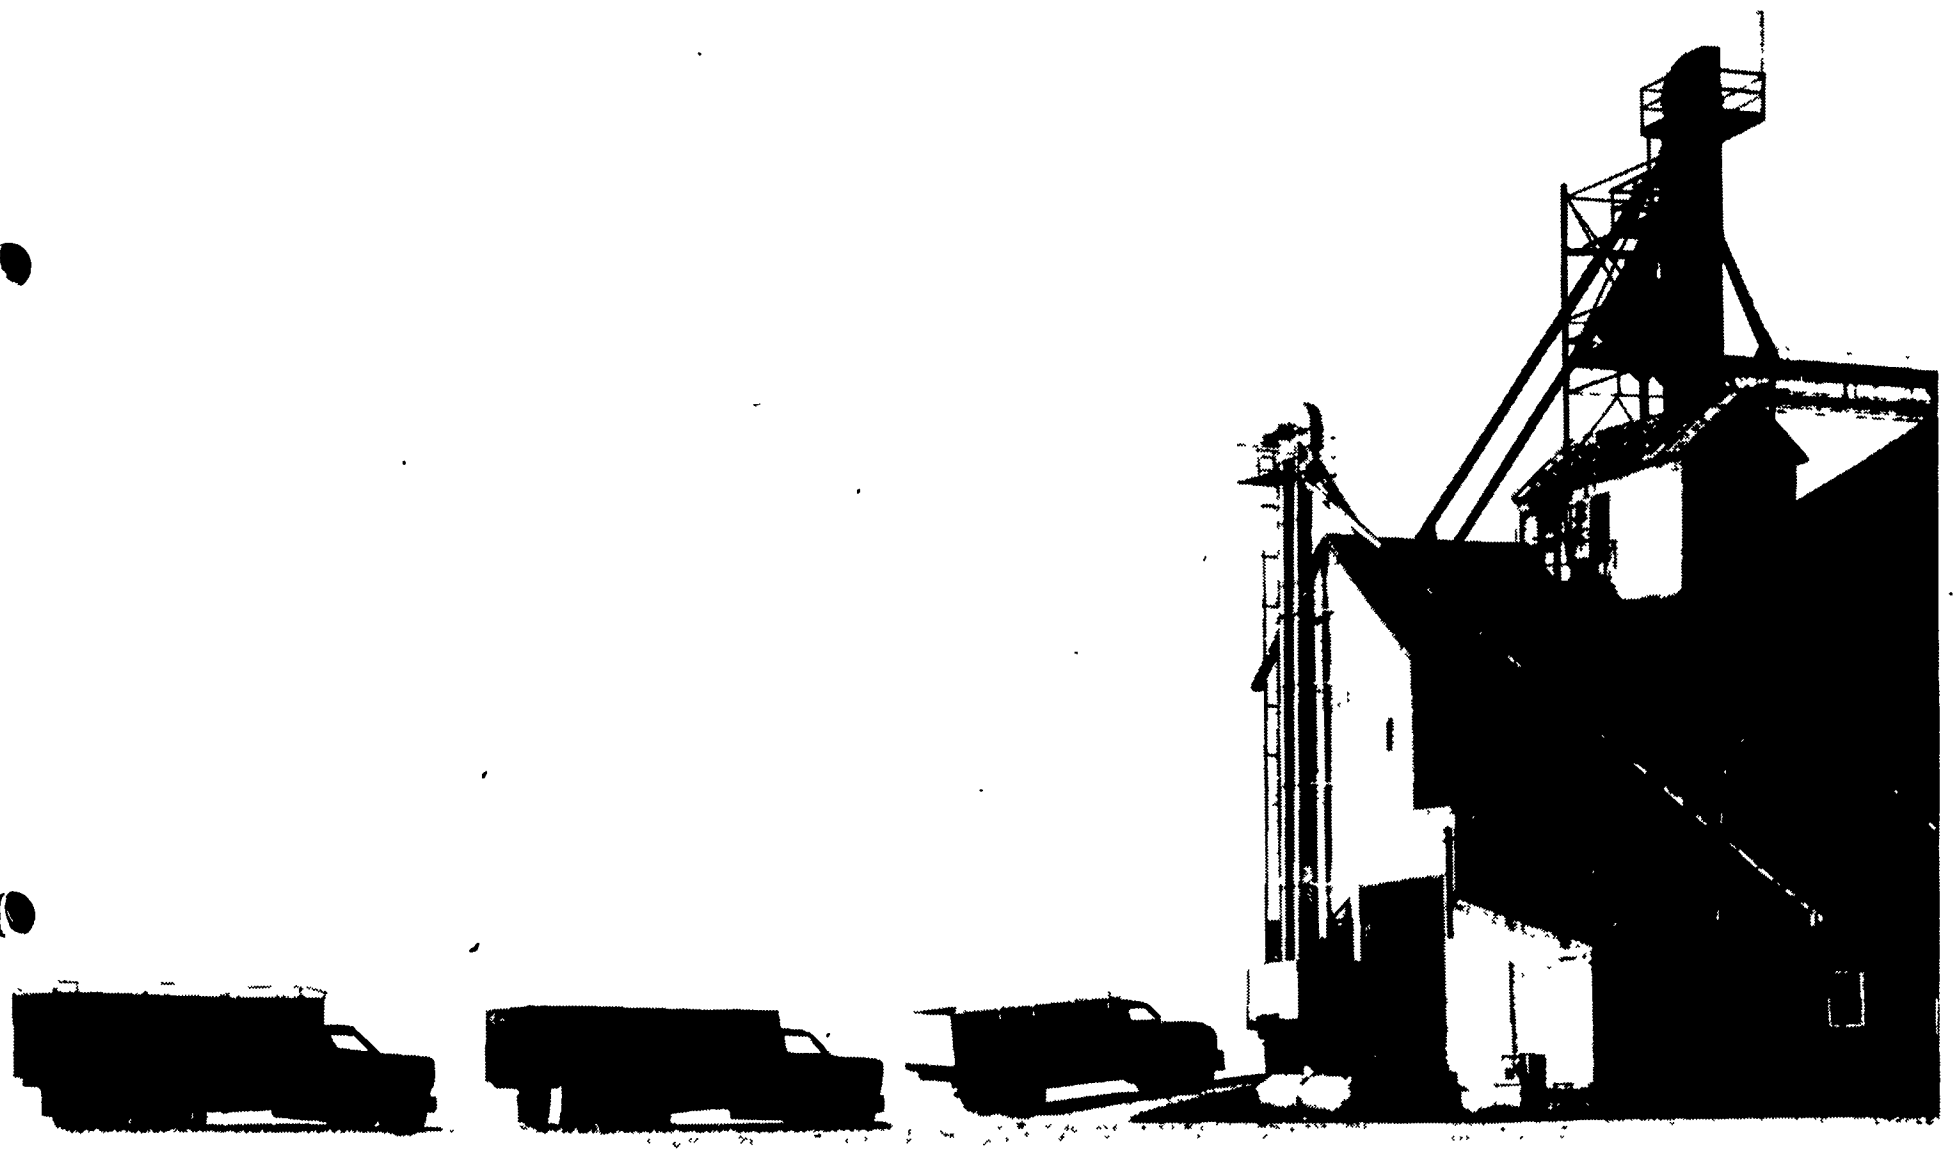
DK 636 Performance



Stands Out In A Crowd.

When the trucks start hauling in the harvest, it's pretty hard to miss who planted DK 636.

It's also hard to miss the fact that in last year's National Corn Growers Association state yield contests, DK 636 finished in the top 3 no less than 24 times. And its 209.99 bushel per acre performance also stood out as the national third place winner in the Ridge-Till Irrigated Class.

Your DEKALB-PFIZER dealer can tell you more about the great results you can expect from DK 636. But be sure to see him soon. Because a lot of people are going to notice performance that stands out like this. And you wouldn't want to be left waiting in line.

Faith's favorite: SRF Duke of York 11W by SBF Royal Gypsy King out of SBF Royal Red Rose was entered in the Polled Hereford competition at the state farm show.

From City Gal To President Of Polled Hereford Association

BY LOU ANN GOOD

ABBOTTSTOWN (Adams) — For a city gal, Faith Peterson has plowed a long furrow—straight to the top of the Polled Hereford Association.

Elected as president of the state association, Faith plans to lend a woman's perspective to the predominately male dominated position.

"When my husband and I bought a farm in 1973," Faith admits, "I didn't know the difference between hay and straw. The closest I came to farming was mowing grass."

Neither did she know about cattle breeding nor showing cattle, but experience was a fast teacher.

She said, "My husband, Craig, who is an engineer, and I always loved nature and the outdoors. When we bought the farm, a neighbor recommended buying beef cattle since they could be maintained on a parttime basis."

On his advice, the Petersons purchased 14 Polled Herefords.

Immediately she fell in love with the gentle dispositioned brown and white cattle. Enthusiastically Faith reports that Polled Herefords are noted for being easy to handle, for their calving ease, good mothering abilities, and for being economical to feed and maintain and producing excellent meat. But the most desirable is their highly heritable trait of being born without horns. She shakes her head, "Why anyone would want to go through the mess of dehorning cows is hard to understand. Polled Herefords eliminate the need to horn calves. It's so much easier to dehorn naturally."

Like other breeds, Faith said, "You get what you pay for in pedigree and characteristics."

Today, the Petersons have built a reputable herd and started an embryo transfer venture. They're pros who show nationally and are well versed in successful beef breeding.

But in those early years of farming, the Petersons received valuable information by attending beef and Polled Hereford meetings. "Everyone is so helpful and willing to share their knowledge," Faith said. "It seems that farmers—or anyone associated with agriculture—are special people. We received a lot of education and rewarding friendships through the Hereford and other agricultural associations."

Newly elected president of the Polled Hereford Association, Faith Peterson, offers a woman's perspective to the male dominated position.

Now Faith considers it an honor to head the organization that was instrumental in teaching her husband and her how to make a profit raising beef cattle.

In the Peterson's beginning years of farming, their three sons showed cattle in 4-H and other local, state and national competition. Now, the sons are grown and on their own, but the parents continue the family hobby by showing cattle.

In addition to their own prized herd, the Petersons also own one sixth an interest in a cow, SBF Royal Gypsie and one eighth interest in a bull that is bred and raised at nearby Fairfield Spring Manor Farms.

Faith said, "It's been exciting to form a partnership interest with others. We have a one-fourth interest in SBF Royal Red Rose. Her first two calves were shown at national competition plus other major shows. She calved recently and will be flushed in May."

It's been a learning experience for the Petersons as they applied and received an AI permit for their bull, SRF (Spring Run Farm) Duke of York 11 W for selling semen and certificates.

The purpose of the Polled Hereford Association is to promote the breed and to support the beef industry in Pennsylvania. Emphasis and activity vary from year to year depending on board members' interests. And, now that Faith is president, she plans to stimulate interest in an educational meeting for the fall. "The format for computerized records listing traits and summaries on cows and bulls recently changed," she said. "I'd like to have a representative from the APHA explain it so that breeders can become versed in what the figures mean. It's a tremendous tool for breeders if they can utilize it."

In the past, the Polled Hereford organization tended to be loosely affiliated with the Pollettes (a women's group that raises funds for the Polled Hereford queen association). Faith hopes to change that.

She said, "I'd like to see the organizations work together since each exist for the same reason." She believes the Pollettes should get more recognition and support. This viewpoint offers a women's perspective and she anticipates support for the effort.

Cautiously, she explains, "Women are often better networkers than men." She hastens to add that doesn't mean men don't do a good job at leadership. Perhaps we just have more time."

Directors meet three to four times annually to plan educational meetings and shows for the 80 members.

State's Finest Offered At Pennsylvania Angus Sale

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Centre Co. Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Fred Frey, president of the Pennsylvania Angus Association, opened the 1989 Pennsylvania Angus on Parade Sale! by emphasizing the event's importance to Angus breeders: "This sale establishes the price for Angus cattle in Pennsylvania." With that, the sale got under way, with Blackbird Anna of G U, an open heifer, going for the sale high of $3,900 to South Branch Farms of York. Consigned by Genetics Unlimited and Greg Krueger of West Grove, her sire is Harrison, the 1988 Roll of Victory Sire of the Year. Her dam, Prides Blackbird 991 of GU, sold for $6,400 at the 1988 Pennsylvania Lawn Sale.

A final bid of $3,650 was offered for Kruegers Scaara Rollaara, a July heifer also consigned by Genetics Unlimited and Greg Krueger. Sired by Rolls Royce, she is a paternal sister to the 1989 National Western Spring heifer calf champion from the Whitestone herd. Kruegers Scaara Lass, her dam, is a Yukon Jack daughter and was a first-prize winner at the 1989 Atlantic National and the National Western. Kruegers Scaara Rollaara was purchased by the Buffalo River Ranch of Amherst, Virginia.

Selling for $3,600 was P S Aggressor 817, a March 1989 sire prospect from the Penn State breeding program. He was sired by the twice All-American Futurity Sire of the Year, Pine Drive Big Sky. His dam, P S Princess, by P S Power Play, is of the Blanche/Princess lines. This sire prospect, with seven Pathfinders in his tabulation, was offered by the Penn State University.

A March daughter of Cobble Pond Rookie, Rains Meagan Charm RS7, was consigned by Rains Angus of Mercer and sold for $3,000. She is of the world-renowned P S Sasquatch line. Her sire was the National Western reserve intermediate champion and twice Tennessee Angus Breeders Show grand champion. This heifer recorded an adjusted 205-day weaning weight of 650 pounds.

A consignment of Fox Hill Farm of Kennett Square sold to Buffalo River Ranch for $2,700. This May, 1988, heifer, Fox Hill Playgirl 8074, is a paternal sister to the 1987 Roll of Victory Show Heifer of the Year, Class Act R F. Hill Playgirls Valentine, her dam, is by Pine Drive Big Sky.

Rains Heidie HE1P8, calved January 23, 1988, is one of the oldest daughters sired by Windrac Heritage to be offered for sale at public auction. Her grand sire is the legendary Triple Crown winner, Windac Class 1752. Rains Heidie He1P8 recorded an actual weaning weight of 660 pounds and is a maternal sister to Ken Walker's Eastern Regional First Prize winner. Consigned by Rains Angus, she sold for $2,300.

Also consigned by Rains Angus was Rains Karma Jackie, a February yearling sired by Yukon Jack. She recorded an actual weaning weight of 725 pounds; and her dam is Wayverly Karma, by the past North American Grand Champion SVF Power Pack. She sold open for $2,000.

Also bringing a high bid of $2,000 was T&J Cobbler 724, a consignment of T&J Angus of Dover. This October, 1987, sire herd prospect is by Broadway and was named to bull calf champion of the 1988 Pennsylvania Breeders Show, the York Fair and the Maryland State Fair. He is the paternal brother to Manhattan of Indian Creek, the reserve grand champion Bull of the 1988 North American International Livestock Show. His dam is R&J Nicole 2005, selected by T&J through the 1986 R&J sale; her dam, R&J Nicole 1003, sold at the 1985 sale for $48,000.

Buffers Key To Success With High Silage Rations

PRINCETON, NJ — With increasingly expensive hay in short supply and silos full of drought-damaged corn, many dairy farmers are finding milk production and fat tests are dropping. This may be caused by feeding more corn silage than usual.

High-silage diets, which are naturally acidic, are not chewed as long as some other feedstuffs and have a high moisture content. This combination can lead to rumen imbalance and the resulting production drops.

"When cows spend less time chewing, they also produce lesser amounts of natural buffers. This, in combination with an already acidic ration, lowers normal, rumen pH. The resulting imbalance accounts for depressed appetites, lower milk production and butterfat tests, and poor feed efficiency," explains Dr. Kenneth Cummings, an animal nutritionist with the Ag Products Division of Church & Dwight Co., Inc.

Producers can supplement the animal's natural buffering system and maintain normal production levels by adding sodium bicarbonate, a natural component of saliva, to the ration.

"When rations contain concentrates and corn silage at levels over 40 percent of total dry matter intake, sodium bicarbonate supplementation can yield dramatic results," says Cummings. According to Cummings, the benefits of sodium bicarbonate go beyond troubleshooting rations that depress milk and butterfat production.

"Research shows feeding sodium bicarbonate contributes to improved production and feed efficiency over a full lactation period. One study of dairy producers in nine Midwestern states revealed herds fed commercial buffering agents produced 1,256 more pounds of milk per cow than those who were not," the nutritionist says.

Additional studies document the cost efficiency of sodium bicarbonate.

"Fed at recommended levels, sodium bicarbonate costs approximately 6 cents per head per day. Taking into consideration the extra milk and butterfat production, additional feed intake and cost of the product, producers can expect a $4 net return for each $1 invested in sodium bicarbonate," Cummings says.

Pennsylvania Grange Supports Nutrient-Management Plan

HARRISBURG — For the last 18 years, the Pennsylvania State Grange has supported a limited nutrient-management plan. Nutrient management is the growing problem involving the use of commercial fertilizer and the excess application of animal waste to the land.

"Much acreage receives six to eight times as much animal waste as needed to produce the next crop," according to Brenda Shambaugh, Pennsylvania State Grange legislative director. She continues, "this excess application of nutrient to the land whether from commercial fertilizer, or animal waste, or a combination of the two is resulting in Agriculture being accused or contributing high non-point source pollution."

According to the Pennsylvania State Grange, there are many other sources of non-point source pollution. These sources include aged and failing septic systems, sale of septic tank cleaners that stimulate their release of nitrates to the ground water, and wells improperly constructed allowing surface water intrution carrying nutrients to the ground water. This should be investigated with programs developed to help correct and reduce these sources.

The Pennsylvania State Grange supports the enactment of a statewide nutrient-management program comprising of the following elements. First, more nutrients should not be applied to the land than the next crop can use. Secondly, it is requested that Penn State University develop a certification program for nutrient-management technicians. Third, the Department of Agriculture should certify the nutrient-management technicians requiring yearly updated training as they now do in certifying the pesticide applicators. Next, it is suggested that county conservation districts be required to review the nutrient-management plans and that the districts be reimbursed by the State Conservation Commission for this extra work load. Finally, the State Conservation Commission should concentrate on identifying alternate uses, conversions or disposal of the excess animal waste, and the DER should assess the non-agricultural nutrient contribution to the non-point source problem.

In addition, "the Pennsylvania State Grange continues its opposition to legislation banning the use of phosphates in detergents," said Shambaugh. The Pennsylvania State Grange requests that the DER negotiate with the detergent phosphates manufacturers to have them provide a yearly grant to the State Conservation Commission to reimburse conservation districts for the work they must do in reviewing non-point- source nutrient- management reduction programs.

"This should continue each year until the 1991 3-D Chesapeake Bay study is completed more accurately determining the source of pollution," states Shambaugh.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is a 125-year-old, family-farm organization representing 42,000 farm and rural Pennsylvanians.

A Salute to the Farming Industry

American farmers and stockmen are the world's greatest providers of food, fiber, fertilizers and feeds. They create jobs and contribute to our healthy economy as well as our healthy diets. We're proud and thankful for the hard working, dedicated people and their families who make up our finest American Agricultural Industry.

HEALTHIER FOOD IS BEING DEMANDED BY CONSUMERS WHILE HOSPITALS ARE FULL AND DOCTORS ARE BUSY.

PURE FOOD IS WHERE THE FUTURE IS IN FARMING
There is a spray carryover in milk also, and dairy farmers will get defamed as well as apple growers if they don't behave now. It is high time that farmers build a good image for their product, or they will suffer a loss of demand, and the organic growers will capture the market at a nice premium price. Don't forget that. And it costs them less to produce it. Their fertilizer lasts long and it doesn't take much to make big crops. Do you smell the roses?

The NON-SECRET is that the Creator blesses and helps if you do not kill the soil life. Earthworms and bacteria make tons of fertilizer per acre of the best kind, if they are alive. Dead ones do not.

We have commercial alfalfa, vegetable and fruit, including apple and peach growers who do not use chemicals anymore, and have large, fancy crops. And their livestock are strong, healthy and highly productive.

Butter Sales Efforts

papers in Harrisburg, York, Lancaster and Reading March 19, according to program manager Donna Verner. The National Dairy Board placed similar coupons in Sunday newspapers in seven cities March 12, including Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C. Dairy promotion groups in Utah Wisconsin have or will sponsor the coupons in another 10 markets. About 9.8 million coupons will be distributed.

Mary Abfalter, a board spokesman, said the idea behind the coupons is to induce people who normally use margarine to try butter. Placement is scheduled before holidays because "that's when people are more inclined to use butter," she said.

Market research indicated that the board's trial couponing effort, conducted in the spring of 1987 in four cities, had "a positive impact" on butter sales, said Kathryn McHugh, another board official.

The current effort is the board's largest foray to date into the use of coupons, McHugh said, and the second to be conducted in its current fiscal year, which ends April 30. The board and two local groups sponsored coupons in nine cities last fall, she noted.

A breakdown of costs for these two projects is not yet available, McHugh said. However, the board expects to spend about $350,000 on the couponing effort in total, primarily on redemptions, she added.

Verner said the Pennsylvania program expects to spend $13,000 to insert and redeem its coupons. This projection assumes local consumers will turn in about six percent of the coupons that are distributed, roughly twice the normal rate for coupon redemption. Six percent was the redemption rate in the board's initial trial.

The coupons are generic; they apply to the purchase of any brand of butter. Consumers who use any of the current batch before May 31 will receive a 25-cent reduction in the price of a pound of butter. The board's redemption cost is 33 cents per coupon, McHugh noted.

Dairy marketers are searching for answers to the growing stockpile of surplus butter. While cheese sales have boomed in the past couple years and even nonfat dry milk sales have risen, the sale of butter has declined. On a year-to-year basis, total sales of butter dropped 2.2 percent in 1987 and another 0.7 percent in 1988, according to board figures.

There are some positive signs, however, Abfalter said. For one thing, the sale of butter in the last three months of 1988 outdid sales in the last quarter of 1987. For another, butter has been gaining vis-a-vis margarine in what has become a shrinking market for spreads.

"Butter is not being hurt as badly as margarine," Abfalter said. "If anything, we're getting a somewhat greater share of the market."

Butter has been the third highest priority, behind fluid milk and cheese, for both of the industry's national promotion groups, the board and the United Dairy Industry Association. The board, which has a $68.5 million advertising budget in 1988-89, will spend $15.4 million promoting butter on network television and in print ads throughout the advertising year. UDIA, which coordinates campaigns funded by contributions from various regional units, spent $1.3 million on network radio ads promoting butter before last year's Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Both campaigns use the same theme, "Give 'em all a little pat of butter," in different commercials. The board's version notes that a serving of butter has the same number of calories as margarine.

Another local promotion group, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency, or MAMMA, participated in a related point-of-sale campaign during UDIA's holiday butter promotion, according to spokesman Trish Williams. The campaign put promotional materials into 20,000 grocery stores nationwide, including 1,500 in the Mid-Atlantic area. Although MAMMA has not contributed money to the recent UDIA pools for butter advertising, Williams said, it does promote the product in its foodservice and food publicity work.

For the Pennsylvania program, which does not belong to UDIA, the opportunity to tag along with the National Dairy Board on various campaigns makes financial sense, according to Verner. In addition to the current couponing effort, the PDPP has sponsored fluid milk commercials and uses recipes and nutritional information that were developed by the board, Verner said. The board doesn't charge for the use of these materials, she added.

The national board hopes to expand its involvement with local promotion organizations, Abfalter said. Currently, the managers of these units have been meeting with board representatives to discuss the possibility of developing a joint fluid milk campaign for the adult market, she added.

HERE'S HOW GEORGE'S SEEDS BECAME THE 42ND LARGEST SEED COMPANY IN AMERICA IN JUST 4 YEARS

George Jacques, President & Owner

While some companies talk about being the second or the third largest... we're very happy to be the fastest growing seed company in America today.

In four short years, George's Seeds has become the 42nd largest seed corn company in the country... which isn't too bad considering there are 308 corn companies that are members of the American Seed Trade Association.

The reason for our success is quite simple.

A New Concept

When I left Jacques Seed Company in 1985... following a dispute with the new owners over marketing philosophies, bottom line profits and pricing... I wanted to start a new kind of seed company. A company that would provide you with the top corn hybrids for 20% less.

We did it.

HOW?

George's is a no-frills company. We don't have any expensive giveaway programs or 4-color advertising. We don't have any big executive salaries, lavish offices or a big staff.

Our marketing and distribution systems are much more streamlined and efficient.

Our sales-per-employee are higher than any other company in the business. And I'm proud of that.

This year I have enough seed to increase my sales by 50% and save farmers $1,000,000 on their seed corn costs.

We are currently hiring more dealers and increasing our sales organization. If you would like to join the 42nd largest seed company, please give me a call.

The Outlook For This Year?

In September, the American Seed Trade Association did a survey. The U.S. seed corn crop came in at 54% of the yield originally planned. Seed supplies of the top hybrids, especially the later ones, will be in short supply, industrywide, this year.

This is certainly not the year to order more seed than you need. Nor is it a year to rely on warehouse seed stocks at planting time... as the warehouses will be empty.

If you can live without that free seed corn cap, jacket, hitchpin or TV advertising... and think saving 20% and more on your seed makes sense... write or call for our complete price list and trial data. If you would like to sell George's... and help us become the 41st largest seed company in America... give me a call.

Veal Industry Under Pressure

than $500 or imprisonment, not to exceed one month or both.

Steve Connelly, special assistant to Maryland Ag Secretary Wayne Cawley, said that one of the deciding factors in the change in objective in Senate Bill 501 was the homemade video that farmers at the hearing showed of themselves and their operations. "Senator Garrott has been very fair with us," Connelly said. "She thought there was a problem and she wanted to find out."

Alex Hershaft, president, Farm Animal Reform Movement (FARM) said, "We lost this one because we had other pressing work and didn't come in prepared. But we have long range and short range goals. In 30 to 40 years we hope to eliminate the exploitation of farm animals and in the short term, we hope to introduce legislation in as many states as possible to help farm animals now."

FARM helped originate the Maryland senate legislation and Hershaft defended the bills at last week's hearings."

"We knew it would be comming," said Jack Miller, legislative representative, Maryland Farm Bureau. "A large number of animal rights groups have headquarters close by in Washington. And after the referendum in Massachusetts last fall, we expected Maryland's veal industry to be an easy target."

Boyd Cook, division manager, Dairymen, Inc. agrees. "They (the Coalition to End Animal Suffering and Exploitation) tried Massachusetts and we were surprised at the overwhelming vote against it," Cook said. "But we knew Maryland would be next because we are so close to Washington DC."

Cook said that because the veal industry uses a large number of the dairy industry's excess bull calves, the veal and dairy industries work together.

Dr. Mike Rodebaugh, state ag commission and past president of the Maryland Veterinarian Association, says these laws really seek to manage agriculture from people who know nothing about it. In the dairy industry, when we move calves from individual pens to groups, they have a tendency to develop respiratory diseases and they must establish a pecking order. He said the animal's healthy appearance and good weight gain prove the animal is not stressed.

But Gene Bauston, director, Farm Sanctuary, Rockland, DE, says that the veal industry's gauge of weight gain to indicate health and happiness is not adequate. "The animal needs to be able to have natural behavior patterns," Bauston said. "A calf in a crate is not able to walk around so respiratory diseases may result because it doesn't breath deeply enough".

Bauston has seen an evolution of improvement in animal husbandry since animal welfare groups used the media to publicize what he calls bad practices. But as for veal production, Bauston supports the idea that a calf should be fed hay. This practice, he knows, would eliminate a whole segment of the veal industry that produces white meat from a balanced diet of milk replacer. But Bauston calls the white veal "anemic" because he says the calf is deprived of iron. And he claims a study shows that there is no difference in consumer preference for white over pink veal.

Pink veal is produced from a grazing operation that includes solid feed to activate the ruminant. This type veal would have formerly been called "Baby Beef" and according to Bauston can be raised more humanely.

A grower of this "free range" type veal and a spokesman for alternative veal production is James Nicholl, Brightwood, VA. Nicholl leaves his veal calves with the mother cow for three to four months or until the veal calf is grown. The cows and calves are pastured all year with woodlands or buildings to protect the cows and calves from the elements as required. He tries to get the mother cow to accept the second calf for the last part of the lactation if possible. And he uses artificial insemination to produce cross-bred calves for his operation.

Nicholl has developed a private trade from individuals and restaurants for the pink veal he produces under the tradename of Summerfield Farm Products. "I think the exercise my calves get helps the quality of the meat I produce. And my calves get no additional iron except what's in the mother's milk. Solid feed comes from what they steal from their mothers.

Nicholl disagrees that the public has no preference for white or pink veal. He says the chefs in expensive restaurants like to use their own special sauces on white veal. And he finds that he must sell his customers on his product. "I think the public has been sold on "milk fed" veal that is associated with the white type veal," Nichool said. "But when I show them how my veal is raised, and they taste the difference, they like Summerfield Veal."

Barbara Hoffman, Fremont, WI, who raises 1800 veal calves each year and speaks for the American Veal Association, takes strong exception to the idea that veal calves are kept anemic. "The light color comes from milk feed and youth," Hoffman said. "We feed them iron and give regular blood tests to see that the calves are not anemic. At the first sign of an anemic calf we give them booster shots."

Hoffman also said modern calf barns now have windows, ventilation and heating in winter. "Any person who raises veal knows ventilation is the most important factor in healthy calves. And we leave the lights on 24 hours a day. It's 10 degrees below zero here now," Hoffman said at the time of the interview. "And my calves are in 70 degree barns. I know they are contented and better off than running around out in the cold."

Calves are tied in individual stalls with a small partition at the shoulders to keep them from defecating or stepping on their neighbor or eating their neighbor's feed. The calves sleep in a normal position and can get up and down and groom themselves at will.

"We believe we are raising veal calves in the best environment for the calf as well as the farmer," Hoffman said. "Individual stalls give a greater livability rate, help the farmer to monitor each calf's eating habits and allow immediate detection of sickness. People who don't know calves

Calf Rearing Study Copywrited In 1988

A research study related to "Artificially Rearing Calves" was completed at Texas A&M University Ag Experiment Station and a report was copywrited in 1988. This study by Ted Friend and Gisela Dellmeier takes a ethological view of the common practices and problems found in raising calves. Ethology looks at animal behavior in relation to habitat.

Friend and Dellmeier use an ethogram to catalogue "human perception of the richness and complexity of behaviors that optimize the welfare of an animal--in this case a calf. The authors show major bovine ethogram components to include: general postural behavior; ingestive behavior; locomotion/kinetics; sleeping/resting; body maintenance/grooming; social behavior; explorative behavior; eliminative behavior and circadian/diurnal rhythms.

From a locomation/kinetics (body movement) study, the report says that maintaining calves in groups would appear to be the solution for common problems found in calves in small individual stalls. Problems such as impaired locomotor ability and learned helplessness. But little is known about the potential effects of the prevention of normal grooming.

Yet, the group housing method is subject to other problems which farmers have to contend. The report lists: inter-calf sucking, urine drinking and the regulation of feed intake as some of these problems.

Lycoming County Man Wins Third In National Corn Yield Contest

BY LISA RISSER

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — Most Pennsylvania farmers considered themselves lucky to harvest 80 bushels per acre of corn last year. One Lycoming County farmer fared better than most; in fact he was the top corn producer, on a 3-acre plot, in Pennsylvania with 198 bushels per acre!

Dick Snyder's 198.27 yield was high enough to place him third in the nation in the Class A non-irrigated division of the national corn yield contest. The contest, sponsored by DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics, American Cyanamid Co., and Monsanto Co., included a total of 2,312 corn growers from 46 states.

Snyder, a Montoursville man, has received a first-place state award on the national level three years out of the six that he has participated in the national contest. His six-year yield average for the national contest is 187 bushels per acre with five different hybrids.

On the state level, the 53-year-old farmer has won first place three times in the 3+ acre category out of the six years that the division has been in existence. In addition, he was won the three-year average for 3+ acre division every year since its inception in 1984.

Snyder attributes his success "to my two partners: Mother Nature and Lady Luck. I consider my role as being about 10 percent. They take care of it from there."

Another factor to his success is the rich soil of the 125-acre parcel he purchased from his father. The land is located in the Loyalsock Creek Watershed Area where the Loyalsock Creek flows into the Susquehanna River. It is classified Class I barber river-bottom soil.

"It's 15 to 20 feet deep and floods occasionally but doesn't wash," said Snyder. The river water deposits silt, which enrichens the soil.

This year Snyder prepared the seed bed by first plowing down 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre. Sometimes he takes a pass with the disk. He planted with a 7000 John Deere in 30-inch rows and put down 200 pounds of 8-32-16 commercial starter fertilizer. When the corn was knee deep, he knifed in 180 pounds of Super N with an inhibitor.

Snyder also used Furadan at a rate of eight pounds per acre and Prozine (combination of Prowl and Atrazine), three pounds to the acre, to control pests. He doesn't often use pesticides in his normal cropping program. "I don't consider it to be cost effective," Snyder explained. "But it helps to get an extra three to four bushels (per acre) for the contest."

He plants as early as possible after April 15 and is done by the last week of April.

Snyder conducts test plots of hybrid corn for himself, trying to find what works best for his land and management practices. When choosing new hybrids, he studies the test results from Ohio University and Penn State research plots and consults with seed salesmen. "I make sure that I select a hybrid that has leaf-disease resistance, because fog rolls in during the fall causing a favorable environment for leaf disease," said Snyder. Last year he used Funks 4626.

Snyder grows field and sweet corn on much of his 250 acres; he uses rye and oats as a cover crop on land that isn't in continuous corn. He sells 90 percent of his field corn as high moisture corn to dairymen within a 60- to 90-mile radius of his farm. The remaining 10 percent is sold as shelled corn to feed mills.

Pre-planting Herbicides

coverage on the seed.

Pre-planting incorporation works very well for those herbicides which are actually degraded by the sunlight. Also, most those herbicides which are most volatile lose less of their power when used this way prior to planting.

There is also less variability in weed control when using pre-plant incorporated herbicides. Efficiency should be between 80-90 percent.

There is a big advantage when pre-planting herbicides are used to control large seed weeds because the herbicide can be incorporated 2-3 inches deep where the weeds actually germinate. This is superior to the surface application which depends on the rain to carry and the rain won't carry to the level of germination.

Using pre-plant hrebicides, although it does postpone planting, forces the farmer to get his weed control work done first. That's a big plus. Trying to control weeds when the farmer can see them is sometimes too late and not cost effective.

Pre-emergence herbicides are far superior to other programs for use. Because there is no diluting as in post emergence to protect the crop, pre-emergence allows a higher concentration of chemical application.

One big "must" with pre-emergence is th euse of markers on the sprayer to mark the field. How many farmers are able to spread or spray without markers and not come up with some skipped strips.

New Products To Look For

Some new materials are coming up for use with corn. According to Yocum Accent® should be ready by next spring. Agronomists were hoping for the EPA to see an emergency situation and make it available in 1989 because it is far superior to enything in controlling shattercane.

Tough® is a post emergence herbicide for corn which will also be available next year. It is excellent in test plots controlling 3-4 inch high pigweed and lambsquarters and on Triazin® resistant weeds.

One drawback Yocum noted, Tough° stinks. If it works of course, most farmers won't care, but those farmers near urban areas will need to be concerned because it draws attention to their herbicide use and application.

Also, there is a label change for Prowl® for use with no-till corn, but the seed must be 1½ " deep.

Harmony® is the new product for use with wheat and barley. It is excellent in controlling wild garlic and chickweed. It must be used with a surfactant or it won't work. Liquid nitrogen has shown to work best with it. It works slowly, Yocum cautioned, but it does work. The plant stops growing when it comes in contact with Harmony®, but the effects do not appear for nearly two weeks.

For alfalfa Buctril® is effective in controlling wild radish, but a caution here. If the next three days are to be in the 70 degrees, don't use, it won't work.

For soybeans Pursuit®, a post-emergence, is an excellent control for velvet leaf and giant ragweed. Its advantage over Scepter is that it gives the farmer better control over velvet leaf. Assure® and Option® have been shown to effectively control the warm season grasses.

Do you want to go back to mechanical cultivation?

The environmental impact of agri-chemical use is being increasingly scrutinized. Chemical use replaced the need for mechanical cultivation. However, cultivation can reduce the need or eliminate the need for chemical use. But unfortunately there is much more to the chemical versus mechanical debate.

Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate with the Penn State Agronomy Department noted that between the all-mechanical and all-chemicals weed control programs there is a lot of room for opportunity to reduce the environmental impact and chemical management ability of the farmer.

There are drawbacks to the mechanical side. It moves away from minimum tillage systems, destroys beneficial crop residues and anyone who remembers cultivating corn, knows it is a slow, slow process. Hoffman asked in this high gear industry, who has that kind of time?

For those who are attracted to this idea there are a variety of cultivator tools and they are complex machines with many adjustements critical to the success of your crop.

To be considered are depth of cultivation around crop, closeness to crop and possibility of plowing

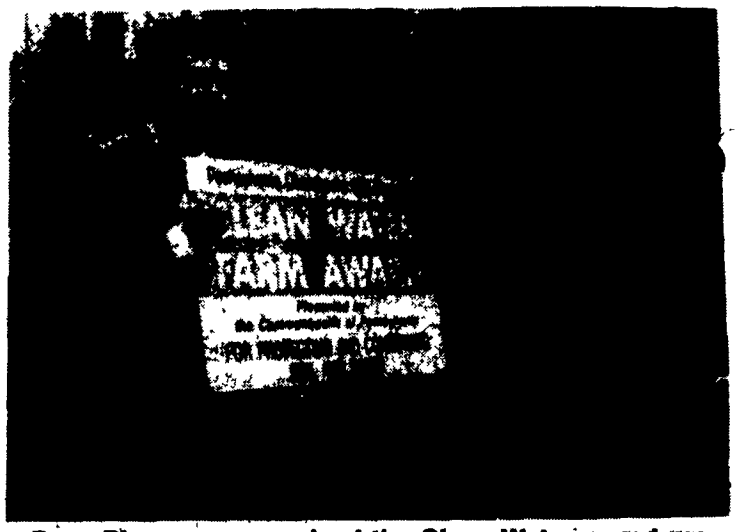
As part of the Chester County Crops Day Elbert Wells,(left) director of Chester County Soil and Water Conservation presented the USDA's Bicentennial Farm Award to Robert Kolle. Six families in Chester County were honored for farming the same land for 200 years or more. They were: Thomas Martin of West Grove; William Handy of Coatesville; Robert F. Cochran of Cochranville; Charles McFarlan of Downingtown; Jane (Kreuger) McElhenny of Honey Brook; and Marlan Kolle of Pottstown.



Dave Pierce received the Clean Water award presented by the Chesapeake Bay Program for his soil conservation and nutrient management practices on his 130-acre farm near Lincoln University in Chester County. Pierce was the first Chester County farmer to sign up for the program. He was recently named the regional winner of the Clean Water award. He is the second farmer to win that honor in Chester County. Presenting the award is Dan Grieg, Chester County Conservation District Manager.

Mr. and Mrs. William Handy, Jr. were awarded the USDA's Bicentennial Farm Award by Elbert Wells, Director of Chester County Soil Conservation.

High-Density Nutrients Assure Good Health

BIRD—IN—HAND (Lancaster) — The Purina Mills Dairy Nutrition meeting gathered more than 130 dairy farmers at the the Plain and Fancy Restaurant in Bird-in-Hand recently to share the newest findings on high density nutrients and their place in herd health and milk production.

According to Larry Wile, Purina researchers have broken new ground on feeding extremely high density nutrients to produce high energy levels and allow today's high producers to reach their genetic potential.

High density nutrients are critically important in the early lactation phase to supply a boost of energy in a short amount of time. Dr. John Clark and Wile discussed feeding during the two weeks before freshening leading into the early lactation phase. This period should be used to prepare the cow's system slowly for the abrupt change after calving.

Both of these stages demand that certain nutritional needs be met. Not meeting these needs will produce a rash of unwanted results. These include lower peaking, a shorter persistency, increased breeding problems, a greater chance of causing milk fever and/or ketosis and a loss of body weight as the cow struggles to maintain milk production by rapidly utilizing her body's reserves.

There are some basic considerations which must be met. Dry matter intake must be maximized to assure rumen fill and the ration must have sufficient moisture. It must be a palatable feed with sufficient fiber to encourage cud chewing. Most importantly it must supply sufficient nutrients to prevent certain metabolic problems and to support a jump in milk production.

Feeding the final two weeks before freshening has a direct effect on her early lactation phase. It will:

— determine milk in next phase of lactation.

— minimize metabolic problems immediately after calving.

The proper balance of nutrients is critical during these stages. After calving the cow needs a tremendous source of nutrients and it either comes from feed or from the body. The proper balance will enable the cow to convert nutrients to energy and preserve body conditioning.

It is important to begin the transition from a dry cow's low energy ration to a high energy ration before calving. Protein and energy must be in place before she calves so the proper nutrient balance is in the cow's system at the time she needs them. Calcium and phosphorus are also needed to avoid milk fever. Fiber is needed to encourage cud chewing and to avoid twisted stomachs.

Recommendations can only be used as guidelines. A feed consultant should determine what's right for each dairy herd.

But feeding nutrient dense rations is not enough to assure peak production and good health. These high power feeds must be fed at the right time and in the right ratios.

The goals are:

—good health and rumen function;

—optimum peak milk;

—balanced energy levels to avoid breeding problems;

Remember, the ration is only as good as its weakest link. The quantity, quality and balance must be in line. When balancing the ration consider:

—Fiber, type and percentage in the ration.

—Energy, how much, type, timing determines milk production and breeding success.

—Protein produces milk.

—Vitamin and minerals determine breeding success and health.

These high density nutrients must be fed according to milk production and then some. The dairyman must fed for production and then add a few more pounds to enable her to reach her genetic potential. For example, if she milks 90 lbs., then feed her for 90 lbs., but add a few more pounds to push her to 100 lbs. a day.

The low nutrient feed is not as responsive to production. It remains stable and changes much more slowly thant the dense nutrient supplement.

Changing the feed the final two weeks before freshening fortifies the cows system to support her milk production at freshening. A boost in fat supplies that extra energy needed to support a quick boost in milk production and prevents her system from pulling off body weight to support milk produciton. This will help her also to reach her peak and maintain persistency longer.

Feeding Your Future

According to Philip Jaquith the dairy farmer has as much resting on his heifer and replacement program as on any other facet of his operation.

"Your goal is to get that heifer into your herd at the right size and within reasonable feed costs," said Jaquith.

Growing healthy heifers which weigh in at 750 lbs. for Holsteins at breeding time can be done with the right blend of feed and forage and without a lot dollars invested or wasted.

The program starts with colostrum the first three days of life. It is especially critical in the first 24 hours to provide antibodies. From 4 days to 31 days, calves should get milk replacer and Jaquith emphasized absolutely no hay at this young age. This slows down the overall development of the rumen. Feeding hay does not build healthy growthy heifers. What it does produce are calves with round hay bellies and lacking in other physical strengths.

From 32 days to two months, calves should be given Startena® and not until they are three months old should they be given any hay.

At three months start calves on Growena® and free choice hay.

At four months feed six pounds of Growena® and free choice hay. From five to six months feed four pounds of Growena® and free choice hay. From 7 to 24 months, D & H® concentrate should be fed with forage including both hay and corn silage.

This program builds 1400-pound heifers in 24 months. Take care to provide enough protein in the ration. Limiting protein at this stage will not produce tall heifers. Tall heifers become cows with the capacity to produce more milk because the tall cow eats more and produces more milk.

Order No. 4 Base Milk price $13.61 For February

ALEXANDRIA, VA — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine recently announced a February 1989 base milk price of $13.61 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.30. Effective January 1989 the base and excess prices do not reflect any deductions for advertising and promotion. The weighted average February price was $13.28 and the butterfat differential for the month was 15.1 cents. The comparable base milk price was down 20 cents from January but was $1.01 higher than last February. The weighted average price was down 29 cents from January but was 88 cents higher than a year earlier. The gross value of February producer milk was $65.8 million, compared to $62.8 million a year ago.

Mr. Shine said that producer receipts totaled 496.7 million pounds during February, an increase of 1.2 percent on an average daily basis from last February. The average daily delivery of 3,008 pounds per producer increased 211 pounds or 7.5 percent from a year earlier. Class I producer milk totaled 242.6 million pounds, unchanged from last February on an average daily basis. Class I milk accounted for 48.84 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 49.42 percent in February 1988. Base milk accounted for 86.05 percent of total producer milk receipts in February compared with 89.86 percent last year. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.76 percent, down from 3.80 percent last February.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 205.5 million pounds during February, an increase of 2.6 percent from a year earlier after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Veal Industry

don't realize how calves suck and tramp on each other in an open pen. In a group of calves, one can get sick and you don't see it until it's too late. In the individual stall you can immediately detect the bent ear, the infected navel or the fever."

As for the feeding formula, Hoffman says the diet is highly nutritious and arranged by medical professionals. And the calves do not have constant diarrhea. "A major concern of the veal grower is that the calves do not have diarrhea," Hoffman said. "In our last group of calves, we put in 472 calves and sold 469 calves. That's 99.4 percent livability and at a gain of two and a half pounds per day. Calves that are sick or have diarrhea cannot possibly do that."

Hershaft, who heads the 10,000 member animal rights group in Bethesda, MD, says he can't see how there can be two sides to the idea that an animal should be able to move about. "The word animal means moving," Hershaft said. "I think they should be able to move".

But Connelly said that the department of agriculture takes the position that the veal industry isn't a problem. "When you look at the facts," Connelly said, "the veal growers in Maryland raise their calves with proper milk replacer and keep them comfortable in their stalls."

Pennsylvania Angus Sale

consigned was $1,600. The sale was preceded by a parade of the cattle and a Junior's Semen Auction, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association to help with the cost of sponsoring the Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show. The average price per unit of semen of the 20 popular Angus bulls was $43.50, with the high being $65, for semen of R&J Vision.

The sale manager was Tom Burke of the American Angus Hall of Fame, and his assistant was Dick Beck. The sale was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Angus Association whose officers are: Fred Frey, President; Joe Calderazzo, Vice President; Kaye Sweigard, Secretary; and Diana Shive, Treasurer. The auctioneers were Col. Mike Jones and Col. Harry Bachman.

Dog Obedience Classes

There will be two 4-H dog obedience and handling classes forming in April. One class will meet at Hoopes Park in West Chester and the other will meet at Brownback's UCC Church on Route 23 in Spring City. Participants will learn to train their dog to heel, do figure eights around two posts, come on command, stay and sit for 1-3 minutes, and lay down for 3-5 minutes with the handler at the end of the leash. Also, this dog training provides the opportunity to meet people and make new friends while comparing dog experiences. This is fun way to train your dog in a friendly atmosphere.

The requirement to participate is that the trainer has to be at least seven years old and no older than eighteen as of 1/1/89. All dogs are trainable after six months of age and, for a dog to participate, it must have all of its shots. For more information on the 4-H dog obedience and handling project, call the Chester County 4-H Program office at 696-3500.

Opportunities Workshop Offered For Disabled Farmers

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre) What is the most dangerous occupation? It isn't mining or heavy industry. According to the National Safety Council the most dangerous occupation in the United States is farming.

The Council estimates that between 130,000 and 150,000 people suffer disabling injuries every year as a result of farming accidents. In many cases these accidents end the victim's working life.

"To help victims, their families and rehabilitation professionals we have developed two one-day workshops to focus attention on opportunities available for these farmers," says Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State associate professor of agricultural engineering and executive secretary to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council. "Two nationally known experts will discuss their programs and the range of options available to farmers with severe physical disabilities," says Murphy. "These two programs are models for the rest of the country."

One of the national experts is Terry Willkomm, program director of Farm Family Rehabilitation Management, a program established by the Easter Seal Society of Iowa.

In Iowa, Willkomm's program provides on-the-farm rural rehabilitation service to farm families affected by physical disabilities. This is the only on-the-farm rehabilitation program in the United States. At each of the Pennsylvania workshops her topics will include: new approaches to farming with a physical disability, prosthetic adaptions for upper and lower extremity amputations, and the role of rural rehabilitation practitioners.

The other national expert is Bill Field, Purdue University professor of agricultural engineering and project director of a Purdue-sponsored program for physically disabled farmers called "Breaking New Ground."

Field's involvement with physically disabled farmers began 10 years ago, when he received a call from an Indiana farmer who broke his neck in an accident. The man already had contacted several universities to get help in modifying his machinery, all to no avail. With Field's help, a Purdue University team devised a special lift that enabled the injured man to continue farming.

Further inquiry convinced Field that there was very little technical information to help physically handicapped farmers. He established Breaking New Ground. Today the program reaches thousands of farmers in all 50 states, Canada and several other countries.

Along with having assembled the largest known collection of information on ways to assist disabled farmers, Field has developed two manuals on handicapped farming methods and equipment modifications.

Because physically disabled farmers often live in isolated areas, a quarterly newsletter, distributed free, lists current technological advances for handicapped farmers. Field has also trained hundreds of rehabilitation counselors.

Field will discuss evaluation of appropriate rehabilitation technology and modifications to the worksite for specific disabilities at both of the Pennsylvania workshops.

In addition to the national speakers, Ray Walker, acting supervisor for Facilities and Grants Management of the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, will give an overview of vocational rehabilitation resources in Pennsylvania. He will explain a new four-year plan to provide rehabilitation and technical services.

"Farming requires a lot of stamina, and for those with permanent physical disabilities the challenge is even greater," explains Murphy. "We have asked local organizations to identify disabled farmers in the community." He is requesting the information so invitations to attend one of the workshops can be sent to physically disabled farmers.

The workshops for disabled farmers and families will be held in Lancaster on March 15 and in Indiana on March 16. Registration is $10 for disabled farmers and family members, $25 for professionals and $50 for vendors of products and services.

If you are a disabled farmer or know of a disabled farmer contact: Dr. Dennis Murphy, at (814) 865-7685 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. or write to him at 220 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802.

The co-sponsors of the workshop are the Pennsylvania Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Inservco Insurance Services and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

High-Quality Alfalfa

the need for insecticides to control weevil and can have a positive effect on alfalfa yield and quality on the next crop by reducing certain weeds."

Lacefield recommends harvesting at bud stage on established stands and at first flower on new stands.

Cuttings per season

The number of cuttings per season depends not only on the date of the first harvest but also on when freezing occurs in fall and the region's water availability and temperature. The total number of potential harvests can vary from six to 10 under irrigation in the Southwest and Deep South to only one or two in the North. In the Mid-Atlantic and Eastern regions, cuttings per year range from three to five.

Studies done in Pennsylvania, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Iowa have shown that cutting alfalfa on an intensive schedule can produce high yields and high quality. But, "stand persistance is often shortened on the most intensive cutting schedule," Lacefield pointed out. A study by Minnesota researchers found, however, that a long rest period either mid summer or fall used with a four-cut system resulted in a reasonable stand persistance after three years of harvest.

Traditionally alfalfa experts discouraged a harvest during the four to six weeks before the first killing frost. But due to advancements in new varieties, fertility progrms, pest control, and management strategies, this practice is being questioned and studied further. "The concept of a fall "critical period" is not always valid," said Lacefield, "particularly when a winter-dormant, disease-resistant variety is used and soil fertility is high."

Grazing the alfalfa is an alternative that should be considered when drawing up a cutting schedule. It has not been popular in the United States, although other countries do it quite a bit. American farmers who did put their stock out on alfalfa had them graze weedy or dormant stands.

The advantages to grazing alfalfa are that the animal will consume a higher-quality alfalfa and that high gains per animal can be achieved. "But in order to get high gains, you must graze animals with the ability to grow," Lacefield stressed.

Steers grazing on alfalfa can gain as much as 2.40 pounds per day, and an acre of alfalfa can produce as much as 1,000 pounds.

Fences are a must when grazing alfalfa. Farmers needn't erect big fences, just something to show the animal its boundaries, according to Lacefield. He also recommended starting with five paddocks for the first year. Paddocks should grazed one week and rested for four to five weeks. "You should have a "sacrifice paddock" that you can move animals to in case of heavy rain," he added. This paddock, which would save the alfalfa field from becoming torn up by animals after a heavy rain, could be of almost any lesser-quality forage.

Grazing alfalfa is a problem because it does require moving cattle and erecting fences, but the gains outweigh these, Lacefield believes. Another problem is bloating, which probably has kept many farmers from using alfalfa for grazing.

"Bloating is a serious problem if it's on your farm," Lacefield said. "But farmers have lost more money from the fear of bloating than from bloating. If an animal dies in or near an alfalfa field, don't blame it on the alfalfa automatically."

Bloating incidences can be reduced or avoided by growing grass with the alfalfa, grazing animals only on dry alfalfa, and feeding the animals before turning them out to pasture. In addition, there are materials on the market that help prevent bloating.

On farms where alfalfa is needed as hay, grazing can be factored into the cutting schedule. "Systems of grazing early spring growth provide quality feed and delay the first hay harvest until more favorable weather," said Lacefield. "Other systems provide for grazing during mid summer when cool-season grasses often are unproductive."

A Kentucky research study showed very little yield differences with grazing in a four-cut system when the grazing periods were altered.

High-quality aflafla is important to many livestock operations. A carefully considered cutting schedule can help farmers optimize both the yield and quality of their alfalfa.

sedimentation. Those recognized for their work were Horst & Huffman of Lancaster, developers; Rettew Associates of Lancaster, engineers; B.R. Krieder Sons Inc. of Manheim, excavating contractors; and West Hempfield Township Munincipal officials.

A special award went to those involved in the Lancaster County Solid Waste Management Authority. Called the Outstanding Public Service Project Award, the recognition was presented for implementing good erosion and sediment pollution controls on the access road and Fry farm land-fill construction project in Manor Township. Those receiving the award were the LCSWMA, Leon E. Wintermyer Inc. of Conestoga, excavators; Hart Engineers Inc. of Cresswell, engineers; and Manor Township Munincipal officials.

Herr currently owns three farms with a total of 460 acres, 360 of which are tillable. He has worked closely with the Conservation District over the years and now is very close to being finished installing conservation measures. Herr is currently under his fourth long-term agreement.

"Instead of doing everything in one year, I do something every year," he explained. "It helps with my cash flow." Over the last 1[illegible] years, Herr and the Conservation District have installed 3,800 feedt of sod waterways, 8,700 feet of diversion terraces, 14,900 feet of cropland terraces, and 6,85 feet of sub-surface drainage. He predicts it will take another three to four years before he is done. Among the things he wants to do is convert a diversion to a pipe-outlet terrace and install spring-fed pools in a couple pastures for the cows to keep them out of the streams.

Herr, who is aided by his wife, Fay, and son, Dale, stores manure from his 105-cow, 110-heifer herd in an earthen bank storage area, which holds about a six-month supply. Using soil and manure samples he has worked out his own nutrient-management plan with the help of his fertilizer salesman. He takes soil samples in the fall so that he can apply lime at that time should he need it.

Corn and alfalfa hay are grown at the home farm, while corn, barley, and soybeans are grown at the other farms. He plants using a minimum or no-till system and applies manure as a liquid. Rye follows corn as a cover crop and late soybeans follow the barley. Pesticides are kept to a minimum by rotating crops.

How mechanical cultivation can fit into an operation only the operator knows. In its day before chemicals, farmers were farming as much as 50 percent less row crops than what they are today. Hoffman emphasized that he was not advocating mechanical cultivation, nor was he against it. However, investigating the mechanical means of controlling weeds could lead to a "marriage" of the two systems. This could be beneficial to the farmer and to the environment. Hoffman reminded his audience that non-farming members of the community will someday see to it that farmers curb their chemical use. Hoffman suggested farmers curb their use voluntarily before someone else demands it.

Watch For Pesticide Poisoning

Farmers are the type of people who don't take off a day of work and run to the doctor every time they feel sick. If a farmer feels nauseous, dizzy, has a headache and feels aches and pains he's most likely to come in and tell his wife he has the flu and take a quick nap in hopes it will go away. Because of this reluctance to see a doctor, farmers are the prime candidates for death or serious illness due to pesticide poisoning, according to Dave Swartz, Chester County Extension Agent.

Immediate action is the only antidote for pesticide poisoning. Chemical poisoning can result from spilling chemical on your clothes and allowing the chemical to penetrate to the skin and be absorbed into the body. Of course it also comes when the chemical is swallowed or the fumes inhaled. The body's reaction to pesticide chemicals is so quick and violent that every minute can determine life or death.

Before using a chemical the user should read the label to know what to do in case of poisoning. When contact is made-it gets on the skin, is inhaled or swalloed-the victim and a container with a label of the pesticide should be taken immediately to the hospital. The symptoms may or may not go away, but the poison will continue to damage the body until death.

Wool Wizard Declares: "I can't make a living doing this, but it pays for my addiction"

BY LOU ANN GOOD

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin) — Mary Hubler has a "great" room in her Hummelstown farm house. It's expansive space allows room for three spinning wheels, a knitting machine, bags of fleece and numerous knitted projects interspersed among the usual family room furnishings and baby paraphernalia.

"I can't make a living doing this," Mary jokes as she spins, but what I do pays for my addiction."

Her addiction is spinning traditional and exotic wools plus unusual fibers from dogs, llamas, linen and silk strands.

Strands of all sizes and textures show Mary's spinning skill that has earned her numerous awards and causes her to be in demand as an instructor in eight different states.

Her yarns amaze others. They are so finely woven. Mary admits that everytime she sits down she concentrates on doing a better job than before.

This 67-year-old headed the sheep to Shawl team that participated at Farm Show competition and took first place.

Mary will be the first to tell you that winning was not luck, but a finely calculated effort. "We did it scientifically," she explained.

Five years ago, Mary saw her first sheep to shawl contest at the Farm Show. She vowed, "I'm going to do that next year."

She did. Her team placed last in Farm Show competition. Undauted Mary studied competitors' spinning. She examined the critiques and scores of all teams competing to learn the strong and weak parts of each team. In four years time, the team went from ninth place to fifth, seventh and finally to the coveted first.

Amazingly enough, the team never worked together until farm show, but they did spend months practicing. Mary had selected two spinners in addition to herself. Each sent samples to the selected weaver, Tom Knisely. He critiqued their work, looking for ends and overtwists, which slow down weavers. The spinners kept practicing to perfect their work. Knisely wove a sample shawl.

"I'm a firm believer that the weaver should choose the pattern and the yarn," Mary stressed. She did not see the pattern Fred Knisely chose until Farm Show competition.

"It is not the most fancy shawl but the most technically perfect shawl that gets the prize." Mary said. "Some weave a beautiful pattern, but it's full of mistakes. In competition you go for perfection not fancy work."

Her shearer Chris Herr had never sheared a long haired sheep until the scheduled competition, but that did not slow him down. His years of shearing more than 2,000 sheep annually enabled him to finish within one and one-half minutes.

Of course, the spinners were in top condition. For the past two years, Mary received the best spinner award at the contest. Of her two assistants, she says, "I have faith in my girls. I taught one of them myself."

Mary explained that in competition, some competitors knock their brains out trying to get enough wool. She said, "The secret is to have the right sheep."

She insists on a long wool sheep that has been covered so that the wool is free of dirt. Unlike most teams, Mary team does not card the wool, which she considers a time waster, instead they flick the ends with a special comb. She said, "The wool lay so nicely that it flicked off like butter."

"Our shearer was so good, the wool had no second cuts. You need long fibers to win. It took one hour and seven minutes to spin and weave the winning shawl that measured 87 inches. Contest rules required at least 78 inches.

Already Mary and her team have their plans laid for next year's competition. Although she spends months getting ready, Mary finds plenty of time to experimenting with other projects. She especially likes spinning fibers other than yarn. She said, "I have friends with Samoyed and Great Pyerenees dogs. When they brush them, they save the hair for me to spin."

Friends also send her cashmere, silk, Angora and other fibers to spin. Mary's favorite is combining wool and silk. Her least favorite is Angora since it irritates her allergies.

Mary Hubler feeds her prize sheep that offer her a variety of wool to spin and knit.

"You can't go wrong when you spin," Mary said, "because some like yarn very lumpy and others like it fine."

Mary seldom sells her spun yarn. She knits it by hand and by using a knitting machine. Although some protest that knitting takes too much time to make a profit from it, Mary said, "I don't worry about the time. I have the time."

She is content that she made enough sweaters on her knitting machine the first year to pay for it. Customers' favorite was a "bear hugs and kisses" pattern for toddlers. Each one took her a day. It takes her approximately two weeks for a hand knit sweater.

Mary began knitting at five years of age when she lived in the Phillipines. Her teacher was the wife of famed General Douglas MacArthur.

In addition to giving away heaps of her projects, Mary does custom spinning for people in eight different states. Many people send their wool to be cleaned professionally. But Mary said, "There is a great advantage over washing it by hand. Otherwise the wool bats get washed in a chemical solution that carbonizes and ruins wool. If it is washed by hand, it doesn't affect allergies.

Although Mary has had to reduce her spinning time considerably since taking on her day care responsibilities, she still finds some time to do it while the children play in the same room that offers lots of space for toys, knitting machine, yarns and raw wool.

Wool is also ruined if it is spun a high speeds. Mary suggests that spinners relax when they spin. "Even though I try to improve my spinning, I am always relaxed."

Several months ago, Mary took on additional responsibility. She babysits for three children. She said, "I got so homesick for my grandchildren who don't live nearby that I decided to keep babies." Tending children cut down her seven hour daily spinning time, but Mary loves the combination of "loving the babies" and spinning in-between times. She daily bakes homemade bread. During holiday seasons, she invites many children to home to decorate gingerbread houses and chocolate bunnies.

"I'm busy," she said. "I'll be 67 in August, but I don't intend to get old."

She doesn't have time. But she is confident she will always have time to continue her spinning addiction.

Home sick for her grandchildren who do not live nearby, Mary decided to become a substitute grandmother, "I love my babies and my sheep," Mary often comments.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Yesterday was St. Patrick's Day.

Day after tomorrow, we celebrate the first day of Spring, which is also, appropriately enough, National Agriculture Day.

That we should annually observe two "green" holidays at this time of year, and within such a short time span, seems too appropriate to be coincidental. Because, by this time of the year, most of us are passionately yearning for a metamorphosis from the dull, depressing brown of winter into the vibrant greens of springtime.

"Think green!" the brain seems to be pleading.

Sure enough, even in spite of the winter's lack of snow cover and continuing plague of insufficient moisture, the annual miracle of re-greening has already begun.

Greening has been noticeable on the back lawn for the last few weeks, but got an extra boost with the protective blanket and moisture of the recent snowfall. And, when the white cover melted away, the lawn's green had deepened by several shades to a much healthier and vigorous grass color.

More green is showing on the east-side banks of the ponds, where the rays of afternoon sunshine have coaxed new life into scattered clumps of dormant clover. On a chilly mid-March morning, frost encases the fragile, three-lobed leaves in icy coats of delicate crystal.

Perhaps a four-leaf clover huddles somewhere there in the frosted clump, but a brisk breeze off the water and gray clouds overhead discourage the search. Better to put off looking for four-leafed clovers until the sun climbs higher in the sky.

Green is emerging in the rose bed - if one goes looking for it. In this case, most of the green is red, in the form of reddish-colored foliage buds swelling along the thorn-spiked stems.

As protection against harsh, drying winter winds, each bush was lightly wrapped last fall with paper feed bags, fastened with baling twine (naturally). Stimulated by slightly higher temperatures in the mini-environment of that protective covering, tiny leaves on a few early types have already opened. Time to remove the coverings, before the green overheats into black.

Spikes of green poke out of the ground in all directions, with the first species of crocus sending tiny, spunky blooms out in defiance of ice and snow. Daffodils reach higher each day, pushing ahead tight buds waiting to unfold to the first stretch of warm days. Angular tips of sword-like foliage peek out of the gnarled, exposed rhizomes of iris clumps, and daylilies poke their hardy noses up to sniff the air on Spring's arrival.

And, green continues to creep over the garden. This is not really a desirable green, however. This is not the green of edibles such as spinach, or early lettuce, or asparagus shoots, or rhubarb, nor is it the protective green cover of rye. This is the green of chickweed - emphasis on the "weed" part.

But then, to take a kinder, gentler approach, the ground cover effect of this perennial pest does offer winter protection to the soil. It also provides the half-dozen chickens something to scatch at even in the coldest weather, and eventually enhances the soil with more organic material when we work up the garden for planting.

Celebrate the weekend. Go bring in a bouquet of chickweed.

Shamrocks it isn't. But at least it's green.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Seems like everyone is Irish when St. Patrick's Day rolls around. So for that special day, Corned Beef and Cabbage is the meal to serve.

Corned beef is beef brisket or another less-tender cut, such as rump, eye of round, or bottom round roast. The term "corned," when applied to meat, means cured in brine. The term came from olden times in England when the salt used to cure meat was the size of English grain — what they call corn.

Corned beef, even though tenderized somewhat with the curing, is a less-tender meat, so it must be cooked slowly in order to become fork-tender. Conventionally it is simmered in water for 3 to 4 hours. Microwaved on a low-power setting, cooking time is about 1-1/2 to 2 hours.

Micro-cook corned beef on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts). Use a deep casserole, so liquid can come up around meat. Tightly cover it to hold in steam and moisture. Use a microwave-safe cooking bag, a tight-fitting lid, or plastic wrap. Turn meat over at least once to prevent the top from overcooking and drying out. Allow the cooked meat to rest — tightly covered — at least 15 minutes after cooking to further tenderize it. Slice it across the grain in thin slices for extra tenderness.

Add cabbage and other vegetables such as potatoes, carrots, or turnips about halfway through cooking. Placing the vegetables atop meat and around edges of meat helps slow down cooking and tenderize the meat. Keeping the corned beef down into cooking liquid helps too.

Corned beef may be microwaved in a soaked microwave-safe clay pot or microwave pressure cooker, but cooking time is still about 1-1/2 to 2 hours. In a soaked clay pot, very little or no liquid is needed. Use a combination of High power for 15 minutes, then Medium power for 1 to 1-1/2 hours. About halfway through cooking, turn meat over and add vegetables.

In a microwave pressure cooker, cooking time is about 1 hour on High. Follow manufacturer's directions for amount of liquid and for any other special recommendations. With the microwave pressure cooker, there's no room for vegetables. So if you want to use the pressure cooker, cook the corned beef as directed ahead of time, and follow the recipe for Quick Corned Beef and Cabbage (below) to make your dinner.

If time is short, you may want to buy a can of corned beef for your Irish dinner. Microwave the cabbage, carrots, onions and spices until vegetables are tender. Put thick slices of corned beef atop the vegetables and microwave a few minutes, just until meat is heated through. See Quick Corned Beef and Cabbage (below).

Serve your Corned Beef and Cabbage with cooked potatoes. If using Slow-Cooked Corned Beef and Cabbage (below), cook potatoes during the 15-minute standing time. With the quick version, cook potatoes before and let them stand tightly covered while cooking the meat and vegetables.

For a touch of traditional Irish green, sprinkle cooked potatoes with chopped fresh parsley and add a refreshing lime gelatin salad to your meal. For dessert, vanilla ice cream drizzled with green cream de menthe, pistachio pudding, or slices of kiwifruit adds color and a festive note.

Slow-Cooked Corned Beef and Cabbage

2-1/2 to 3 pounds corned beef brisket
2 small onions, quartered
2 cups water
3 medium carrots, cut into thin sticks
1 small head cabbage, cut in eighths

Thoroughly pierce both sides of corned beef with meat fork; cut corned beef in half. Place corned beef, fat-side up and thickest parts to outside edges, in microwave-safe 2- to 3-quart casserole. Top corned beef with onions and add water. (If a seasoning spice packet comes with the corned beef, add contents.) Cover with tight-fitting lid or plastic wrap. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 40 minutes, rotating dish halfway through cooking. Carefully remove lid or cover. Turn meat over and rearrange so center parts are to outside edges; push meat into juices. Place carrots and cabbage atop and around outside edges of meat. Continue microwaving on Medium 35 to 40 minutes more, rotating dish halfway through cooking, or until vegetables and meat are tender. Let stand, tightly covered, 15 minutes. To serve, trim off fat and cut meat across grain in thin slices. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: A microwave-safe cooking bag may be used. Place corned beef, seasoning, onions and water in bag; place in casserole. Close and vent bag by closing 3/4 of open end with the provided nylon tie or with a 1/2-inch strip cut from open end. Continue as above. To turn corned beef over; Using potholders, turn corned beef over in bag, holding open end of bag upright to prevent spilling.

Get Cracking For "Eggsciting" Eating

Eggs have taken a beating on the medical front during the past decade, and this has resulted in scrambled thoughts about eggs. Recently, a few health authorities have come to their defense. Tests are showing they have less cholesterol than generally believed.

Eggs are very low in both fat and saturated fat compared with other sources of high quality protein such as red meats and cheese.

According to American Health "If the cholesterol on the dinner plate goes up, production of body cholesterol often goes down—in healthy people—to maintain balance."

Try these "eggsciting" recipes and see if eggs aren't better than they're cracked up to be.

FRIED TOMATOES & EGGS

1 cup purple onion, sliced ¼-inch thick
½ cup butter, softened
2 cups milk
8 hard-cooked eggs, sliced ¼-inch thick
2 tablespoons dried parsley
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 raw eggs, beaten until lemon yellow in color
3 medium tomatoes, sliced ½-inch thick
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons cooking oil
4 slices toasted bread

Melt butter, add onions and saute over low heat until onions are transparent and slightly brown. Add milk and continue to cook over low heat until bubbles start forming around the edge. Remove from heat and stir in sliced eggs, parsley, cheese, lemon juice, salt, and pepper. Mix well.

Add ½ cup of hot milk mixture to the beaten eggs and mix well; then add egg mixture to milk mixture. Place over slowly boiling water, using double boiler, and cook stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Turn off the heat, cover, and set aside.

Dip tomato slices in the flour. Saute in the oil until slices are golden brown yet still retain their shape. Do not over cook. Place hot tomato slices on toasted bread and top with hot egg mixture. Serves 4.

1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Hard-cooked eggs are great for a snack or fixed as deviled eggs. A basic egg salad varied by what you have in the refrigerator can yield "eggsciting" eating.

GOLDEN EGG PUFF

6 eggs
3 cups milk
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups sharp cheddar cheese, shredded

Remove crusts from bread and cut into cubes. Beat eggs, milk and mustard. Stir in bread cubes and cheese. Pour into an ungreased 9x13-inch glass dish. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven about 1 hour or until center is set. Serve immediately. Serves 8 to 10.

Variations: add one pound cooked, drained sausage or two cups shrimp that has been cleaned and cooked.

Anna Fisher
Gordonville

STUFFED EGGS EXTRAORDINAIRE

6 hard-cooked eggs, in shells
¼ cup mayonnaise, or enough to moisten
2 tablespoons fresh or freeze-dried chives
Dash pepper
¼ cup seasoned bread crumbs

With sharp knife, slice eggs lengthwise through shell. Remove yolks and whites. Set shells aside. Finely chop yolks and whites, add mayonnaise, pepper, and chives. Place mixture into shells. Invert stuffed egg halves into bread crumbs to coat top. Fry in butter until golden brown, stuffed side down.

Serve hot in shells with sausage or remove shell and serve cold with salad.

ONE EGG

It's hardly enough for your breakfast,
It isn't enough when you bake.
It isn't sufficient when making meringue,
Or cookies or a cake
It doesn't go far in salads,
Though you devil it, slice it or chop it.
But, if uncooked, it does go from wall to wall
Should you drop it.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Luella Wenger who lives on a layer poultry farm in Manheim.

She writes, "My husband, I, and each of our six sons really like eggs. On rare mornings when I cheat and serve cereal instead, the farmers always feel the difference and run low on energy by 10:30 or 11:00 a.m."

Eggs can be made in so many different ways, and many preparations are so simple that most cooks don't follow a written recipe. Mrs. Wenger doesn't use a recipe when she makes these so she said, "Maybe I should call this an idea instead."

She calls it McWengers. "Once when we ate breakfast at a fast food restaurant, we ate something similar, but my children didn't care for the hard rolls," she commented.

This is her version, which has become a family favorite. Try it.

McWENGERS

Soft hamburger roll, buttered
2 fried eggs, over lightly
Ham slice, heated
White American cheese slice

Put one egg on the bottom half of the roll. Place one slice of cheese, then the next egg on top. Salt and pepper to taste and top with a slice of ham. Let set a few seconds until cheese is softened.

ANSWER — Kimberly Channell, Kerens, W. Va., requested a recipe for cocoa gravy. Thanks to Mrs. Frank Russo of Evening Shade, Ark., for hers and to an anonymous reader who responded that the gravy often was used as a weekend supper ladled over slices of buttered stale bread. Through the early '30s, when people were just glad for something on the plate to eat, it was a welcome treat.

Chocolate Gravy

3 tablespoons cocoa
2 cups sugar
1 pint to 1 quart milk
Flour to thicken, about 3 to 5 tablespoons

Combine the first three ingredient in saucepan. Heat until quite warm, but not boiling. Add flour combined with a little water, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly.

Chocolate Cornstarch Pudding

1 quart milk
4 tablespoons flour or cornstarch
1 tablespoon cocoa
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Pinch salt

Heat milk to boiling. Meanwhile, mix flour, cocoa, and sugar with about ½ cup or so of milk to make paste. Pour slowly into boiling milk, stirring to prevent lumps and scorching. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla and salt.

For a "nicer" pudding: beat 2 egg yolks in a small bowl. Ladle a few spoonfuls of boiling pudding to yolks, stir well. Then add to pan stirring contantly, for a few moments; do not boil. In separate bowl, beat whites until stiff, fold hot pudding mixture into egg whites.

EGG, MUSHROOM SPINACH MOLD

4 eggs, separated
2 (10-ounce) packages frozen, chopped spinach, thawed
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
½ cup half and half cream
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 (10-ounce) can mushroom stems and pieces
1 (10-ounce) can cream of mushroom soup

Beat egg yolks until lemon colored. Set aside. Beat egg whites until they stand in peaks. Set aside. Melt butter, add flour to make a rue, stir in cream, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Mix until blended and cook for a few seconds. Add the spinach and mix until smoothly blended. Remove from heat to cool.

Fold the beaten egg whites into the spinach; mix gently. Spoon the mixture into a 10-inch ring mold that has been generously buttered. Place the mold, uncovered, in a pan of hot water in a 350 degree oven and bake for 35 minutes or until firmly set and slightly puffed.

Meanwhile, heat the mushroom soup and the mushroom pieces over low heat. Use a wire wisk to make the soup smooth. Five minutes before serving, add the sliced hard-cooked eggs to the soup. Heat thoroughly.

Hello! My name is Edna Stoltzfus. I am 9 years old.

I have two goats and their names are Susie and Betty Ann. They like to take a ride on the wagon. They are funny. Susie's birthday is on March 10 and Betty Ann's is on April 2. Susie had twins and Betty Ann is one of the twins. We sold the other one. He was a billy goat.

They like to buck my sisters. They are very mischievious. Sometimes I make them a card then they eat it. They like to eat cookies, candy, bread, chips, pretzels apples, cabbage, carrots and cereal. They eat anything.

They climb up the hills and jump right up to me but they do it for fun and they jump up to other people too. When Susie was little she was in our house and then she was jumping on the chairs and she was running in the house. I think she had fun playing.

Sometimes they jump on the wagon to let me know that they want a ride on the wagon. I like goats for my pets. But sometimes they get mad when we tease them. In spring they are going to have fun. They are going to play outside. They are going to play, run, and jump. They like to get my scarf when I have it on.

Bye bye,
Edna Stoltzfus

Hello! My name is Erin Lausch. I live on a farm. We have chickens. They are banny chickens. We set our eggs from them.

We also have geese. Whenever I bring the garbage to them, they honk at me. We have sheep also. We have only one ram, Isaac. We also have ewes. At wintertime we have little lambs in the barn. We have lots of cats. Once when some of the cats were kittens, I tried to braid their tails, but I couldn't do it.

We also have a German Shepherd dog named Sheba. When I was real little my family had a Collie whose name was Tina. Tina died because a truck ran over her. We're going to get a St. Bernard dog soon. We used to have two horses, Lady and Princess.

We also had a goat. We didn't know what to name her until we kept on calling her Goatie. She had two little kids. One died, but the other lived. We named it Pepper because it had black spots on it.

I'm eight years old. I'm going to be nine on May 28. My dad (H. Nevin Lausch) is an engineer. There are cornfields around here but he doesn't have time to farm so he lets someone else do the farming. My mom (Angelina A. Lausch) works as a secretary.

I have two brothers. One, H. Stephen Lausch, is a junior in high school. My other one is Nathan B. Lausch who is a freshman this year. I'm in the third grade. My hobbies are music, kickball and sewing.

Bye!
Erin Lausch, Denver

Hello,

My name is Matthew Smith. I live in East Dixfield, Maine. I am 7 years old and in the second grade. I live on a dairy farm. We have Brown Swiss cows. I like to play with my tractors. I have a John Deere and a Ford pedal tractor and lots of matchboxes. I like to read too. I have barn chores that I have to do every day.

"Kid's Korner" is fun to look at.

Goodbye,
Matthew

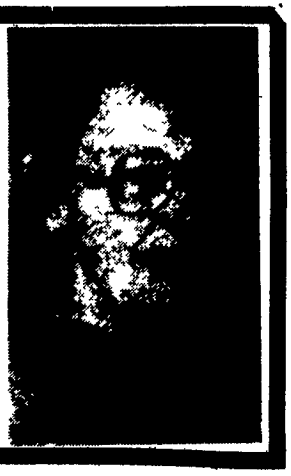
Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser



What is as frustrating as losing or misplacing an item? Over the years I've had some very frustrating experiences. Even a small thing like hunting through an old newspaper for a specific article can upset me because I am determined to find what I'm looking for, and I waste a lot of time doing it.

The other day, after finishing the braided rug I've been working on, I decided to do some embroidery. Now I had not embroidered for over a year, and so I started looking through bureau drawers for materials. The bag containing my embroidery floss was no where to be found. Of course, I did come across some linens and fancywork that I hadn't seen for a long time. Eventually I found what I was hunting for on the table behind by sewing machine. It was right under my nose but hidden by some wool scraps from the rug.

Jewelry is a worrisome thing to lose. A diamond fell out of my ring -- never to be found. But, another time an opal fell out of a ring, and a year later turned up in a kitchen cabinet. What a thrill to discover something that you're sure is lost forever.

When my Hamilton watch was lost in a cherry orchard, I rented a metal detector and after searching diligently, found it in some tall grass. One time I was given gold coins to distribute to my sisters and I ended up one short! Guess who had to do without. To this day I don't know if one sister was given two or if one coin was misplaced.

I'm sure there are bigger things to be disturbed about than lost items. But, when you try to keep everything in order and have a definite place for everything, then it is quite disturbing to waste time hunting something. Over a period of many years, one accumulates many things and it is no wonder that occasionally one is surprised to find a particular item in a trunk in the attic or at the bottom of a bureau drawer.

Shreds stalks yet won't plug up!

The perfect tool for ridge and minimum till

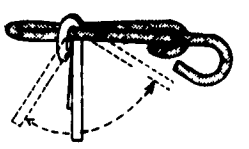
The Fuerst harrow cleans ridge tops, creating excellent seedbed. Unique "Spreading Action"® tines hug the soil at faster speeds to shred and evenly spread no-till stalks in the spring.

Dozens of uses:

The harrow used behind a disc or cultivator, incorporates herbicides in one pass. Used alone, it covers broadcasted seed, renovates, maintains pastures and more.

The harrow/cart (an optional harrow carrier as shown) follows tight turns, has folding wings for easy transport. Harrow and cart are available in 16 to 42 ft. widths.

"I believe the harrow works as good as a stalk shredder; it lifts and shatters the stalks and yet doesn't tear up the ground."
Roger Bommer -- Brookville, IN



Free swinging tines
Fuerst's free swinging "Spreading Action"® tines make it the ONLY harrow that can effectively incorporate and shed trash.

425 lbs. x 1.01 = 429.25

Penciled out for yourself. Despite the premium you get for those lightweight calves, the dollars just aren't there. And it's total dollars that pay the bills.

Simmental sired calves are in demand As top replacement heifers or as fast gaining feeder that produce more red meat — less fat.

Why tool around with lightweights. Simmental. More pound for pound more dollars.

Vocational Agricultural Education: Is Diversification T

BY LOU ANN GOOD

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) —Nationwide, vocational agricultural teachers grapple with changing their image by offering elective courses to appeal to more students. But Dr. Philip Ogline of Garden Spot High School, New Holland, cautions, "We shouldn't look at new ideas as the salvation of the vo-ag program."

While trying to entice more students, Ogline and his fellow vocational agricultural teachers fear the program may become so diversified that it may lose the students it was created to help.

Ogline said, "Vocational agricultural programs must be kept viable and of high quality to provide convincing evidence for continued support. Funding, although not a problem now, could become one if curriculum is designed to attract numbers rather than ag students. Then we would would lose vo ag funding because federal and state requirments state that instruction in agriculture in secondary schools be designed primarily, if not exclusively, for vocational purposes."

LF Joint Staff Ag-Ed Curriculum Exclusive Series

A Model Program

From the beginning, the national study that recommended changes for vocational agricultural education, admitted that some schools' programs serve as models.

Donald Robinson, who heads the adult farmer program at Garden Spot, believes his school has one of those model programs. The school's vocational agricultural program has a history of enrolling some of the brightest and highest achieving students in the vo-ag program.

"In fact," Robinson emphasized, "statistics show that some years a higher percentage of our students went on to college than those enrolled in other courses."

Not bad for a program which at the national level has been accused of catering to the vocational and the non-academic student.

Despite its record, Garden Spot, like the majority of schools nationwide, shows a decline in their vocational ag program. But Ogline counters that decreasing enrollment in the program simply reflects the school district's decreasing enrollment.

The school, situated in some of Lancaster's prime farmland, is still strongly agricultural, but 50 percent of the district's students are enrolled in parochial schools and never use the school's agriculture facilities until, ironically, they drop out of school and participate in the adult farmer program.

The Pendulum May Swing Back

Dr. Robert Herr, who has spent more than 30 years teaching vocational agriculture, said that he has seen the pendulum swing back and forth in class enrollment over the years.

"You can't always put your finger on reasons for low or high enrollment," he said. "I remember enrollment dropped during the Sputnik years—everyone was interested in science—but later enrollment in vocational agricultural courses soared to an all-time high."

Herr believes that low enrollment now does not necessarily mean that vo-ag interest will not rebound. Since most ag teachers also are qualified to teach science, many schools are contemplating adding ag courses for science credit.

But that carries some drawbacks. Some districts put departments into clusters and ag teachers are often grouped with science teachers. If a teacher wants to introduce a new course, he must gain the approval of the cluster teachers before presenting his idea to an advisory committee or the school board. Science courses, such as zoology or biotechnology, taught by ag teachers are frowned upon by science teachers and causes them to question: "What is ag?"

While many ag programs are upgrading requirements that science content be credited toward satisfying college science courses, Herr cautions, "To swing too far into the science phase eliminates practicality. A strictly scientific approach doesn't appeal to many students. To make changes for scheduling reasons and to meet what the school district and the public perceives we should be doing, is not very sound or in the best interest of the students."

Basic Training Important

Herr said, "Our graduates are very attractive to local businesses because there is no other place to get adequate, basic training in ag. The need for a skilled background will never go out of style."

The national study stated that technological and structural changes in agricultural industries have enlarged the scope and number of careers and that approximately 20 percent of the labor force works for the ag industry in some capacity. The study found that production farming, which prepares students for jobs that represent less than three percent of the nations' labor force, dominates most programs.

The study encourages that students be taught skills needed to enter and advance in careers such as agribusiness management, marketing, research, engineering, food science, urban planning and other fields.

Herr said, "Garden Spot, which currently has five full-time teachers, has probably begun more ag programs than any other school in the state. We always added on; we did not eliminate programs because students need the basic knowledge that ag production teaches."

Ag education begins in the sixth grade when students are taught safety, conservation, and sanitation. Next year, Garden Spot will introduce an ag awareness course (environmental science)in which every ninth grader will be required to take nine weeks of the instruction.

Students may be attracted to agricultural fields, but their interests may wane or change with the on-hands training offered them. According to Ogline, many junior high students express interest in wildlife and want to be forest rangers, but their interest dwindles when they actually assist a ranger and get their hands dirty.

Although landscaping is now attracting many students, the economy could change that. Herr explained, "The housing industry is strong now, but rising interests rates would result in less demand for landscapers."

In the past Garden Spot has been successful in meshing a vocational agricultural program for both college-bound students and for potential dropouts. Herr wants to see that continue, but he admits with the increased academic load placed on them by state requirements, it is difficult. Students who want to take everything find it difficult to choose from the many electives offered; but, for the serious student, combining ag and college preparatory courses can be done.

Drop Double Periods?

Because the department teaches that the community is their classroom, double periods have been mandatory. That makes it more difficult for some students to schedule ag classes. The instructors are wrestling with changing classes to one rather than two-period increments, but before they offer ag as an elective, the teachers want assurance that they can have at least one double period weekly. They are concerned that one period classes will eliminate the work-study program and field trips.

The department pushes academics as much as possible, but Herr said, "Every kid doesn't want or need college, yet they should have an educational background that gives them confidence to do a good job."

Cliff Day, Dr. Ogline and Robinson consult computer data to enhance their vocational agricultural classes.

He perceives that most school programs cater to college students and that concerns him. "We still need programs to keep kids in school and keep them interested in learning."

Neither do the vo ag teaches want to see vocational agriculture programs incorporated into vo-tech schools. Herr said, "If we lose our local connection, we lose a great deal. Vo techs are not popular because it causes students to leave their school. Evaluations of the programs show that successful vo ag programs are locally based."

Instructors believe that the vocational label should be avoided to help attract students with diverse interests, including the college bound and those aspiring to professional and scientific careers in ag.

Out-dated Teaching Material

An overview of the nationwide programs show that material tends to be fragmented, frequently outdated, usually only farm oriented, and often negative or condescending in tone.

Ag teachers report that is the result of not having adequate guidance. At one time the Department of Agriculture had two full-time persons working for vocational agriculture. Now they only have one-fifth of one person's time. They feel they get little guidance from agricultural universities, which are research oriented. At the same time, technology is exploding so fast, that printed material gets out of date by the time it is ready for publication.

"We can't be teaching them something that was new two years ago," Ogline said. "It must be up-to-date."

To cope with changing technology, many teachers feel that instead of teaching it, because it will be outdated by the time students leave school, they should teach students how to use resoures and find information.

For example instead of teaching detailed agronomy, Herr believes students should learn where to find information. "The Agronomy Guide is the so called bible of plant sciences. We need to make students aware of how to use it. We can't teach them everything in it."

Ogline said, "Many programs appear to be undergoing a significant metamorphosis, others maintaining the status quo, others losing students in increasing numbers. The youth and adults we serve will be permanently affected."

Revamping programs, he believes, needs to be based on the needs of the students and employment needs and not on what the community or the government dictates.

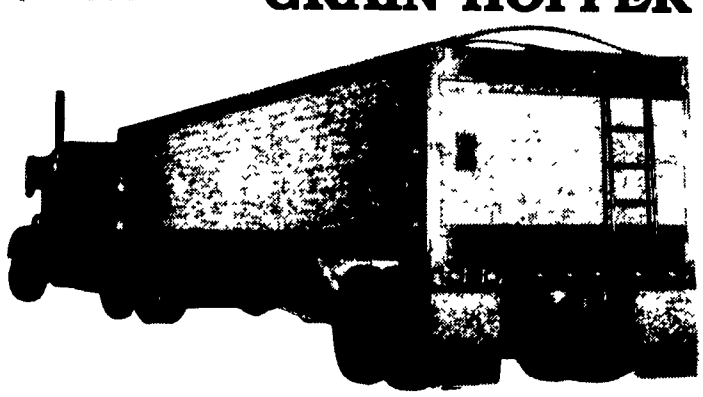
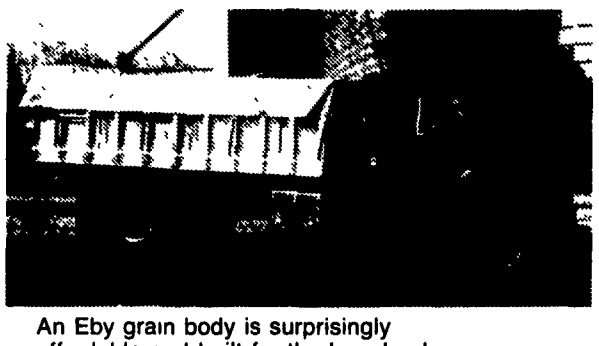
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER



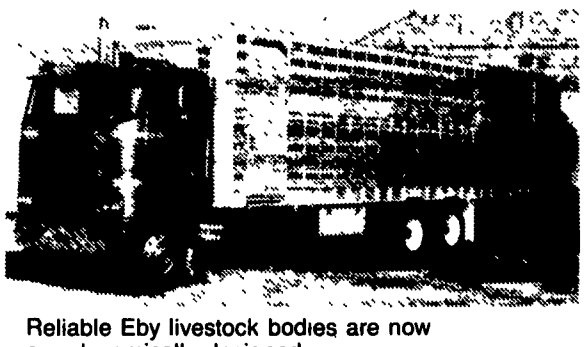
Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

M.H. EBY, INC.

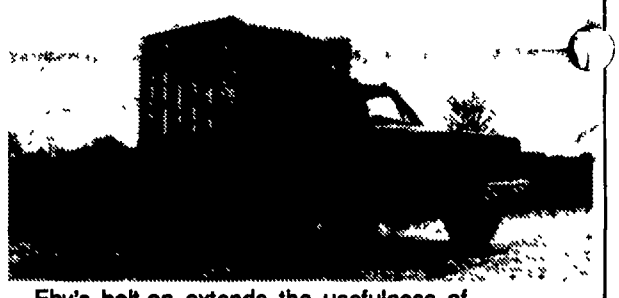
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971



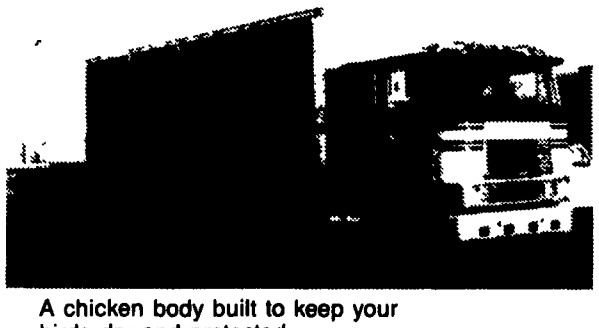
An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul.



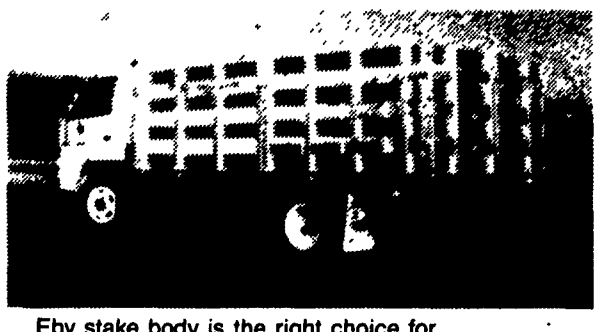
Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.



Eby's bolt-on extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment.



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected.



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

USDA Submits Final Rule On Horse Protection Regulations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture today announced changes to the Horse Protection Regulations which make permanent some restrictions on the use of pads and action devices on show horses, and amends the regulations regarding pad configuration, effective March 20.

The changes were developed in a series of interim rules published between April and October 1988.

"Our final rule retains a previous change, effective August 1, 1988, getting the height of a pad at no more than half the length of a horse's hoof," said James W. Glosser, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"The rule also removes a requirement that any artificial extension of the hoof length must follow the angle of the front of the hoof wall." he said. Pad height must be measured from the bottom of the tip of the toe at a 90-degree angle to the top surface of the shoe.

The rule also makes final a six-ounce weight limit on chains and rollers used on show horses, said Glosser.

APHIS' final decision requires that toe length on all horses subject to the regulations must exceed heel height by at least one-inch. "This heel/toe ratio is sufficient to preserve the natural position of a horse's hoof," Glosser said. The one-inch heel/toe ratio applies to all horses used in shows, exhibitions, sales or auctions."

Additionally, the final rule now prohibits only use of pads in violation of the regulations, even if used for corrective or medical purposes. Previously, the regulations exempted a hoof from certain requirements regarding pads as long as its opposite hoof met the requirements.

The final rule also clarifies the term yearling to mean any horse that is up to two years old.

"Based on our investigations and the recommendations of about 2,500 commenters, we have developed a set of regulations which adequately enforce the Horse Protection Act," Glosser said. "Our position on soring is clear. If we find sore horses, we will take action against the responsible party, regardless of the device used."

The final rule also makes permanent several provisions which were established in last year's interim rules:

- a prohibition on the placement of objects or materials between pad and hoof, except certain approved packing materials;
- a requirement that all pads be made of leather or plastic or other similar soft pliable material;
- a restriction regarding the placement of certain weights on a horse's foot.

Additionally, the rule makes permanent the removal of a 16-ounce weight limit on horseshoes, and the removal of a six-ounce limit on soft rubber and soft leather bell boots and quarter boots that are used as protective devices.

APHIS administers the Horse Protection Act, passed in 1970, to eliminate the practice of "soring." Soring is the use of cruel methods devices or chemicals on a horse's legs or feet that cause a horse pain when walking. Soring is done primarily to alter a horse's gait in the show ring.

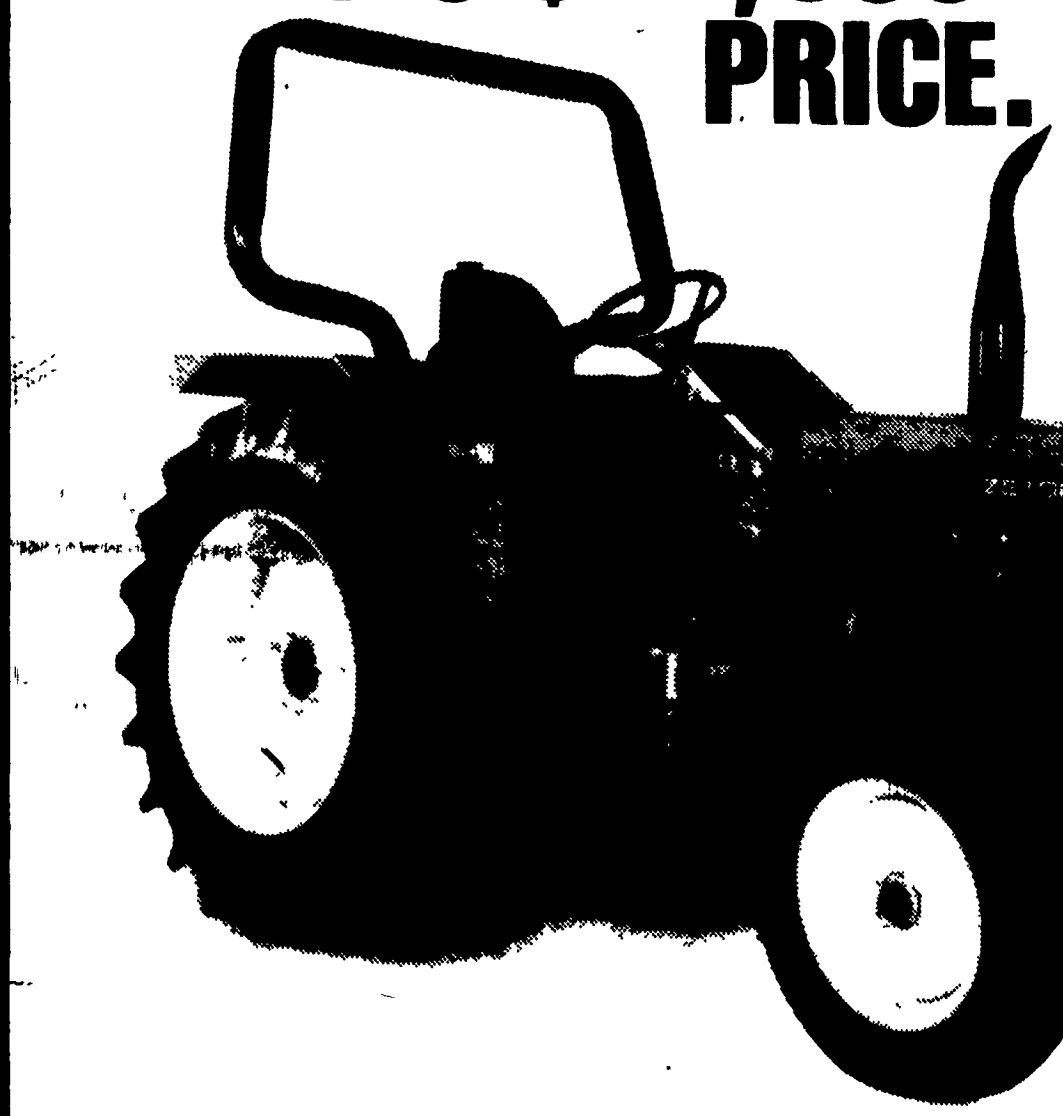
IN SCANDINAVIA, THE ZETOR 7700 SERIES' CAST IRON MUSCLE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN ITS $14,050* PRICE.



With 65 PTO HP and a cast iron chassis, Zetor's 7700 Series tractors give you solid, well-balanced muscle for your money.

And more.

Zetor's flat operator's deck is designed to suit you, not the transmission. You can mount and dismount from either side. And spend hours in a seat that's been ergonomically-designed to give you the support you need to stay in the field longer.

Beneath you, the sophisticated engineering that has earned Zetor its 40-year reputation for durability, easy maintenance and economy in Norway, Sweden, Denmark and over 75 other countries around the world.

No matter which Zetor 7700 Series tractor you need, you can own it for about half what you'd spend on its lightweight competitors. Even if you choose the turbo-charged model 7745 with 4-wheel drive, a cab and a front 3-point hitch that floats over hill and dale.

The first thing you'll like about a Zetor may be the price, but in the long run you'll find that's the least important of its features.

See for yourself. Visit your nearest Zetor dealer soon.

Not just another pretty price.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy duty steel welded seams and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5 inch steps to lengths from 6' 3" to 7' 11". To allow for different row crop spacings you can offset either right or left 5", 7", 10" or 12" inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching during dumping cycle and when drafting.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulically lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight through air flow.

DO YOU FARM HILLS? WE HAVE ONE UNIT IN STOCK WITH BRAKES READY TO GO!

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

When Your Truck Reaches The Blower, Just Back Into Your RICHARDTON Conveyor Box, Dump Your Load And Race Away For The Next!

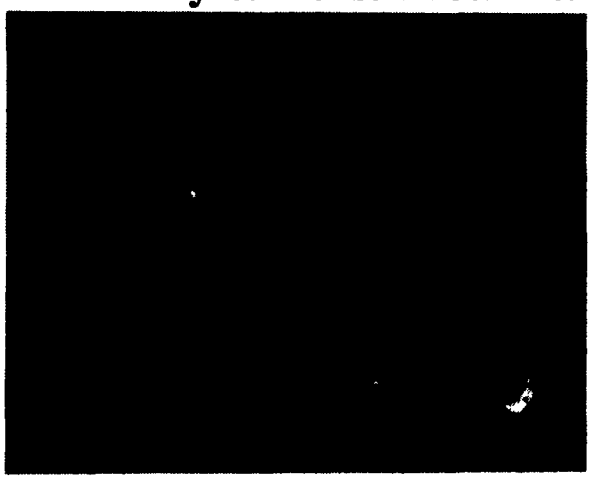
Only Gehl Offers Total Density Control - In Stock Now At Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. At Pre-Season Prices For The Early Bird Buyer!



Model 1465 builds bales that are 5 feet in diameter and 45" wide - a simple "Airdraulics" system gives you total density control which works great!

Round bale silage. The concept of baled silage, or balage, is rapidly growing as an alternative to regular baling. It's ideal when weather conditions are unfavorable for quality haymaking. Gehl balers, with their ability to make bales of various sizes in addition to nearly infinite densities, are perfect balers for making balage.

Proven Performance Features And Economical Price Makes Gehl Your Box Spreader Choice

Heavy-duty gear boxes
Two heavy-duty gear boxes, one a 90 degree beater drive, the other a two-speed worm box with bronze gear and steel worm; provide efficient power transmissions, smoother operation and long life.

Gehl-Tuff floor
In cold weather, the slick Gehl-Tuff surface reduces the force needed to break a frozen apron loose from the floor. So your whole load glides out with little resistance. And less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains.

Full 10-year warranty on floor and sides

The entire ROPS/FOPS structure pivots back and out of the way and locks in the "up" position for full and easy access to drive and hydraulic components. The spring-loaded, counter-balanced ROPS/FOPS makes rollback an easy one-man operation.

KRAUSE TILLAGE INNOVATORS INVENTED THE ROCKFLEX DISC TO BRING PLEASURE TO FARMERS

1...Rugged, dependable performance.

2...Excellent penetration in tough conditions.

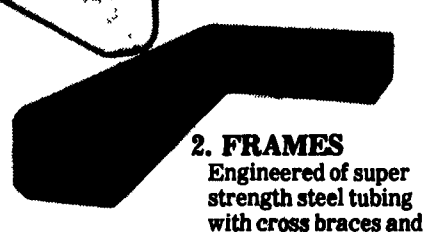
3...Level job every time.

4...Higher resale value when it's time to trade or sell.

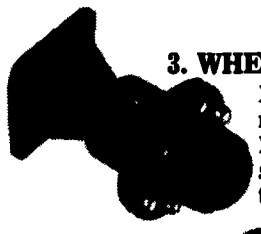
5...More timely planting.

6...More time with the wife.

1. "SUPERSEAL" BEARINGS
Engineered to assure positive greasing directly into the cartridge. The triple lip seals keep grease in, dirt and moisture out.



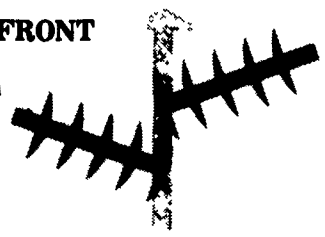
2. FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.

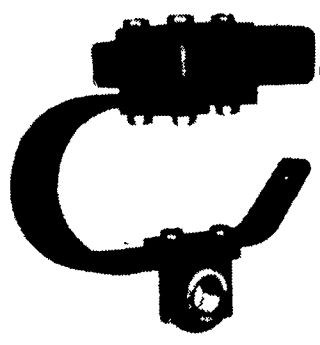


3. WHEEL HUBS
Krause Made - Precision machined and regreasable. Every hub passes rigid inspection to assure proper tolerances.

4. TIE RODS AND SPOOLS
Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) - (30% to 70% stronger than many other brands.) There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing.
Krause spools are ductile iron, and weigh 20-to 30-lbs. each.

5. OVERLAPPING FRONT DISC GANGS
A unique Krause design for smoother, more uniform field finish. It eliminates the center strip of untilled ground left by conventional tandem discs.





6. "ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS
Krause invented the "Rock-Flex" arm in 1965. This unique C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage. "SuperSeal" bearing is completely encased in rubber to absorb shock.

7. WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.

8. ROCKER SHAFTS
A full 6" in diameter with big steel tube wheel arms for maximum carrying capacity. Compare ours to other makes!

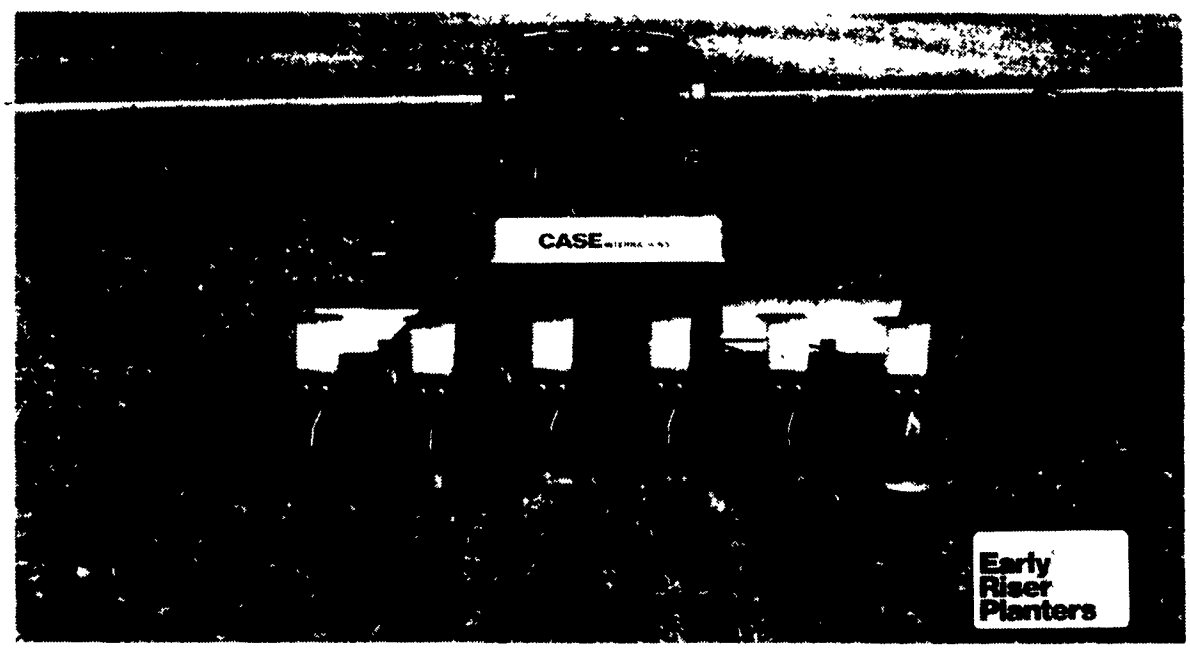
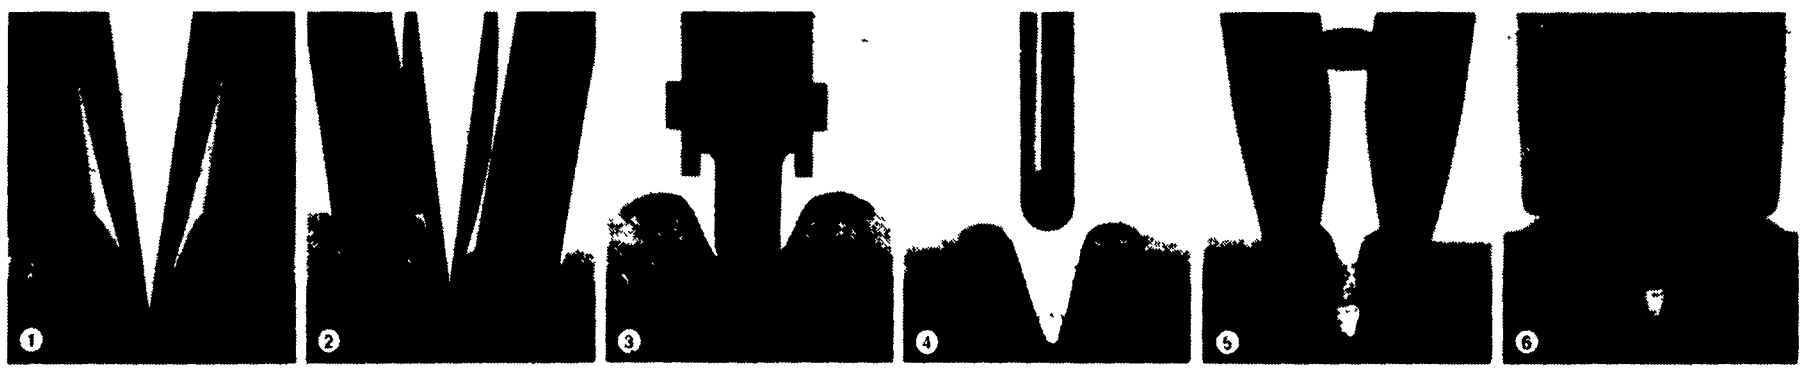
EARLY RISER PLANTER

THE ONE FOR CONVENTIONAL, MIN-TILL, NO-TILL & SOD



The 900 Series Early Riser Row Units Are The Secret!



1. Case IH staggered doubled disk openers reduce power demands, effectively cut through trash and penetrate hard soils, eliminating the need for costly colter attachments common to so-called "no till" planters.

2. Exclusive front pull equalizing depth gauge wheels are connected through special linkage that maintains equal pressure on the gauge wheels at all times. Grooved gauge wheel tires work to trap the moist soil brought up by the openers so that soil is placed back into the bottom of the seed trench following seed placement.

3. Improved Furrow firming point forms a well-defined "V" furrow bottom offering optimum depth control, seed spacing and germination.

4. With the clean "V" furrow bottom and smooth, narrow seed trench, seeds are delivered to the same depth and held in place for reliable uniform emergence.

5. Twin inverted staggered covering disks mounted directly behind the openers, return moist soil to the seed trench and provide good seed/soil contact.

6. Chevron-tread press wheels seal the closed seed trench and firm the furrow, eliminating air pockets and promoting optimum germination.

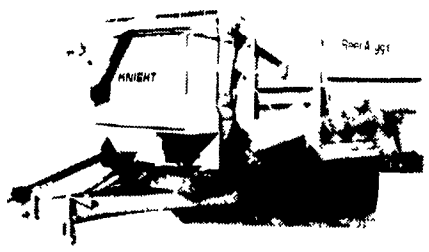
Reel Auggie

2000 Series

A new concept in TMR Mixers



The Mixer/Blender/Feeder that handles your TMR ingredients including long stem hay. Pictured is the RA2250.

Reel Auggie Mixing Chamber

The reel turns slowly and gently lifts material into the two blending augers. The lower auger is notched and moves the material forward. The upper auger, which moves the material rearward, features replaceable knives which assist the blending of long baled hay or other tough roughage materials.

Advantages of the Reel Auggie Design

*Blending long hay, other roughages, and by-product materials.
*Reduced mixing time with lower horsepower requirements.
*Reduced material breakdown, fluffier material consistency and faster, more even unloading.
*Power chute optional in tow and truck mount applications.

The John Deere patented Concave Twisted Shovels are designed to enhance the soil, mixing action of a twisted shovel while increasing residue flow control. As soil "ribbons off" the concave off the concave twisted shovel, crop residue is moved to the side where plugging problems are less likely.

John Deere Concave Twisted Shovels make an excellent replacement for other brand chisel plows and mulch tillers such as Glencoe & Brillion.

Replacing tillage parts is part of farming. So stock up on these top quality John Deere parts at these low prices.

Twisted Shovels	Reg. Price	Sale Price*
John Deere 3"x22" ½ " Thick Concave	$12.83	$10.25
John Deere 4"x22" ½ " Thick Concave	$15.92	$12.80

"Consider The Concrete Advantages"

THE IMPORTANCE OF MOISTURE TESTING

There are two primary reasons for having your forages tested for moisture content:

#1 - The production of high-quality feed depends upon the proper processing of the crop during harvesting and storage.

#2 - After the feed has been stored and ready for feeding, your feeding ration cannot be accurately formulated unless the moisture contents of the feeds being used is known.

Many types of moisture testers are available for on-the-farm use and the purchase of one would be a wise investment for most forage producers and feeders. A quick, accurate test could help save valuable feed both for storage and during ration formulation. Guess procedures can easily be mis leading and the wrong decisions can be the result. The recent hot, dry summers caused feeds to dry down faster than usual, and the forage producer made some costly mistakes unless he was very careful.

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER

A-Authorities state that combustion can take place in hay and silage if they are stored with a moisture content in the range of 30% to 40%.

B-Forages stored above 65% moisture will weep, causing loss of nutrients and damage to the silo and feeding equipment

C-Feeds containing more than 70% moisture provide an excellent environment for harmful bacteria growth and production of undesirable acids.

D-The general recommended moisture content for forage being placed in a conventional top-unloading silo is in the range of 55% to 65%

E-Forages, especially hay, placed in a bottom-unloading silo need to be 50% moisture or less.

F-The moisture content of high-moisture grains should be in the range of 25% to 32%.

G-A reliable source of information on harvesting and storing feed crops in your area is your local County Extension Office.

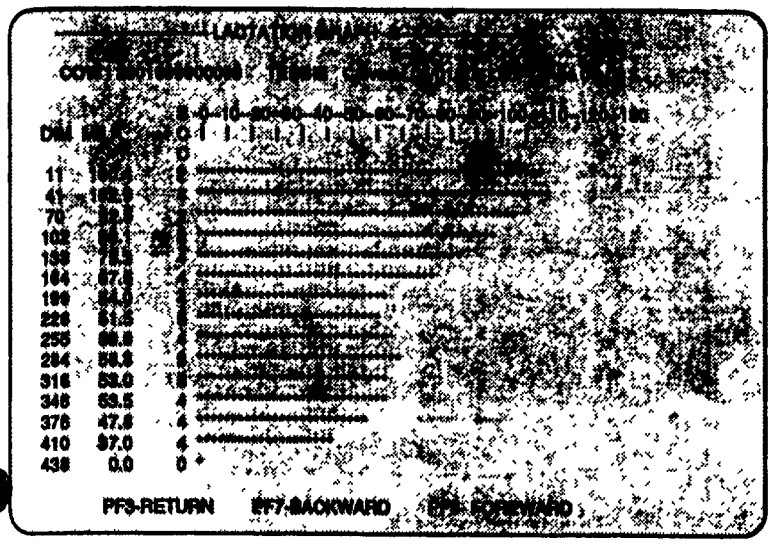
ARIS Makes Good Management Easier

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — The Agricultural Records Information Service (ARIS) provided by the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association is not for everyone. It is only for those dairy farmers who want to identify problem areas in their operation and improve output.

It is for those dairy farmers who want to increase production, cut calving intervals, improve reproduction and make more money per unit of input.

It is for those dairy farmers who want to be able to make better management decisions.



ARIS also offers lactation graphs for easier visual assessment.

ARIS Makes Managing Easier

ARIS cannot make the decisions, but it can allow the farmer to retrieve only the information he wants in a simple and easy to read report. What now takes hours of copying from monthly reports, with the ARIS and the touch of a key, takes just a few minutes.

"ARIS can save you a lot of time," Louise Sible, ARIS representative, told farmers, feed company reps and veterinarians on Thursday at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

They met with Sible to learn how ARIS works and how it can improve the way they do business. Matthew Young, a dairy farmer in Little Britain, watched as Sible ran reports in minutes that usually takes him hours to do using the monthly paper reports. It eliminated the need to sift through the paper report and saved a lot of time.

The information is presented in the format the farmer chooses. He can see if he's getting all the facts he needs to make the decision and not guessing.

What ARIS Does

ARIS allows DHIA members to access their herd information on the main frame computer in State College and run up to 70 different reports. If members don't find a report to suit their needs, they can design their own.

The program user can list cows in a variety of ways. For instance, he can use last test milk, fat or protein production, fat corrected milk, sire, lactation number, days in milk and somatic cell count.

There are also herd health reports listed by cows for postpartum check, cows to check for pregnancies, breeding dates and conception rates.

In the seven months ARIS has been available to the public, their list of reports has grown and many more are to come, according to Sible. There will be more graphs available to give farmers the visual tools they need.

Herd information can be accessed within three days after the herd has been tested. DHIA data is updated once a month. Several farmers have requested a program that will allow them to update breeding records daily. According to Sible, a program for personal computers will allow the farmer to download his herd data into his PC program and update his program. This, however, will not update the data on the main frame system. This program is a top priority for ARIS programmers and should be

CLEAN CORN

CONTROL TRIAZINE-RESISTANT WEEDS WITH PROWL®.

You want a good, clean stand of corn. A crop you can really take pride in.

That means getting control of triazine-resistant weeds, including pigweed and lambsquarters. So go with the herbicide that gets the job done. PROWL® herbicide. It not only helps control triazine-resistant weeds but other problem grasses and certain broadleaves such as foxtail and velvetleaf. And with PROWL, you don't have to worry about carryover.

You can surface-apply PROWL preemergence, or apply early postemergence in a tank mix with atrazine. Do NOT incorporate PROWL in corn.

So if you want a good, clean, healthy stand of corn, start with PROWL and you'll finish with pride.

ARIS Makes Good Management

available within the next few months.

Who Uses ARIS?

Currently 16 dairymen, 19 veterinarians and 18 feed companies are using the ARIS program. Information for more than 500 herds is currently being accessed. More than 30 county extension agents throughout the state have had some training in ARIS. Some agents may be able to demonstrate ARIS to those farmers who would like to see what the program can do.

Sible has some dairymen running reports for other farmers. However, the ARIS office must have a signed release form from the farmer before anyone other than himself can access his herd information.

How Much Will It Cost?

The cost for set-up and training is $95. There is a $5 monthly base charge for computer storage of the dairyman's herd information on the main computer. The actual cost per month for using ARIS depends upon several items.

Number one: the program user accesses his herd data via his telephone line. He can either call direct to State College or he can connect through his county extension office, which ever is cheaper.

Number two: connecting to the system between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. costs the user $.59 per minute while other hours cost the user only $.29 per minute. That's a big savings.

What You Need To Use ARIS

— You need an IBM or a 100-percent IBM-compatible computer.

— It must have at least a 640K memory.

— A hard disk drive is recommended.

— You also need a modem preferably with a 2400 baud rate. (A 1200 baud rate will do, however it will take longer to get information which will result in longer telephone time and higher costs. The 2400 will pay for itself in telephone costs.)

— The modem must be Hayes or Hayes compatible.

— Must have private telephone line. (Party lines do not work.)

— Printer is necessary to maintain permanent records.

For more information call Louise Sible, ARIS Representative at 1-800-DHI-ARIS.

Bicentennial Farms Honored In Franklin County

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
FRANKLIN CO.
CORRESPONDENT

LEMASTERS (Franklin) — Four Franklin County farms have been designated Bicentennial Farms by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Bicentennial Farm awards program acknowledges the contribution of farm families to the strength of the United States. These farms have stayed in the same family for 200 years.

Receiving a sign, video, certificate, and Bicentennial Farm hat from the USDA were Robert Rumler, Chambersburg; Edward Zarger, Greencastle; Daniel Myers, Waynesboro, and Donald Johnston, Mercersburg.

Johnston and his wife, Nedra, received their award at the Franklin County Forage and Soils Day at Lemasters Community Center February 22. A retired steer and crop farmer, Johnston now rents his land to a neighbor.

One of Johnston's ancestors appears on a 1710 Lancaster tax list. That man's son took out a patent for a tract of 535 acres near Mercersburg in 1753. Squatters were moved off the land in 1775, at which time the land was resurveyed. Johnston has this deed, which was granted by the Penn Land Company. His ancestor started farming the tract in 1793.

The Johnstons and their three sons plan to continue ownership.

Tom Kerr, Executive Director of the Franklin County ASCS office, informed farmers at the Forage and Soils Day about the sign-up deadlines for the 1989 Farm Programs.

Sign-up Dates for the set-aside program are now through April 14. Farmers may sign up for the Annual Conservation program, the Emergency Feed Program and the Disaster Assistance Program through March 31. Farmers who wish to participate in these programs must have conservation plan by December 1989. He urged farmers to call the office before coming in to discuss eligibility for these programs.

"We're being regulated to death these days," Kerr said when discussing the requirements for entering the set-aside program. Farmers must have a crop base, which is an average of their five-year crop reporting history; cross-compliance with the other programs; sodbuster compliance; person determination, which is new for 1989; and no hay or grazing on the set-aside acres. Person determination determines if the person applying to the program is actively engaged in farming.

Pleasure Walking Horse Clinic

LEBANON — The Pennsylvania Pleasure Walking Horse Association will be holding its annual spring clinic on April 8 at the Friendly Meadows Plantation Farm.

The seminar will begin at 9:00 a.m., and Bill Reed of Murfreesboro, Tenn., will be the instructor. Among the topics he will cover are how to choose a good trail horse, a short-cut to putting in show ribbons, how to present your horse in halter classes, improving gaits, and how to hitch and present horses in harness classes.

In addition, for those people who wish individual attention on their horse's performance, Reed will spend time with them and their horse. Horses may be boarded at the farm.

For those coming a distance, the following motels are located nearby: Four Seasons, 717/272-8402, and Quality Inn, 717/273-6771.

More information may be obtained by calling 215/267-7311 after 7:00 p.m.

Insecticide Improves Seedling Health

MIDLAND, MI — Three years of research data collected at the University of Illinois indicate Lorsban* 15G insecticide can improve seedling health and corn yields, in ways extending beyond protection from insect damage. Based on this, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has given The Dow Chemical Company permission to include seedling health on the product label as a side-benefit to using Lorsban 15G for insect control.

Dow feels this information is important to corn growers because the added seedling protection can significantly increase a grower's yields and profitability. Dow does not promote or contend that Lorsban 15G is a fungicide or growth promotant, but that it is an insecticide with the added potential for improving crop health and yields beyond insect control. Seedling health is only an issue after growers determine that an insecticide is needed and begin evaluating their product choices.

The Dow Chemical Company began promoting seedling health as a side-benefit of Lorsban 15G insecticide, based upon research conducted by corn pathologist, Dr. Wayne Pedersen at the University of Illlinois. After three years of research, Pedersen has found that some corn hybrids treated with Lorsban 15G yield better than untreated corn, even when insects are not a contributing factor.

In 1988, Pedersen tested 48 commercial hybrids and found 30 yielded five or more bushels per acre when treated with Lorsban 15G. Eighteen of those 30 hybrids demonstrated a 10 bushels per acre increase compared to untreated corn. Pedersen theorizes that increased yields are attributed to fungicidal properties of the insecticide. He bases this on laboratory and field research which indicates Lorsban 15G restricts the growth of certain soil-borne fungi, such as Gibberella zeae, which commonly attack corn seedlings and can cause late season stalk rot.

Last year, Pedersen compared emergence in plots treated with Lorsban 15G to that of untreated plots. Half of the plots were planted with seed treated with Captan®, a common fungicide used to treat commercial seedcorn, while the other half were planted with untreated seed. For one common commercial hybrid, he found that only 59 percent of the plants emerged when neither insecticide or fungicide was applied, while corn receiving only a standard T-Band application of Lorsban had 78 percent emergence. Treating seed with Captan fungicide alone increased emergence to 85 percent and when Lorsban insecticide was applied to seed treated with the fungicide, emergence remained at 85 percent. Although Lorsban 15G insecticide is not intended to replace seed treatments, this test does indicate it has certain fungicidal properties. The fungicidal activity of Lorsban 15G also has been demonstrated in the control of white mold in peanuts, and the product is labeled for this use.

Although research evidence indicates fungicidal activity is the likely key to yield enhancements, Pedersen has not ruled out the chance that Lorsban 15G is acting as a growth promotant as well. In 1986 and '87, he discovered that plants treated with the insecticide had greater leaf area and better root development than untreated plants. The first year, two of three hybrids tested also showed a significant yield response, while the second year one hybrid had significantly higher yields.

To determine if the yield responses attributed to Lorsban are a factor of fungicidal activity, growth enhancement, or a combination of the two, requires further research. Along with Pedersen, researchers at several other Midwest universities will continue to study the relationship between Lorsban 15G and seedling health to determine exactly why this insecticide can positively affect the health and yield of corn plants beyond insect control.

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

FOURTH YEAR

W-L | Competitors

W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

Modified-Atmosphere Packaging Gives New Life To Produce

COLLEGE PARK, MD — ...tional Agriculture Week, March 13-20, celebrates the accomplishments of an industry that has weathered droughts, freezes, increasing regulation and changing tastes to remain one of America's largest and most successful industries. The week-long event also presents an opportunity to focus on the trends that will determine the future course of American agriculture.

One of those trends involves a desire for fresh produce. Consumers are eating more fresh fruits and vegetables than ever before and are even choosing their supermarkets based on the quality of the produce.

"Consumers want fresher, less processed food," says Dr. Donald Schlimme, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Maryland College Park. "And they want it year 'round.

"These demands influence not only the marketing strategies of food retailers, but also the direction of food processing and packaging research. As per capita consumption of canned food dwindles, scientists search for new ways to provide acceptable, high quality alternatives."

One technology that looks promising is modified-atmosphere packaging, which extends the storage and distribution life of both raw and prepared products. Dr. Schlimme explains how the process works:

"All fruits and vegetables take in oxygen and release carbon dioxide. If you can retard the rate of this transfer, or respiration, and the associated metabolic activities, you can extend shelf life.

"One way of doing this is by cooling the items through refrigeration, which works because the various chemical reactions involved in the aging of fruits and vegetables are temperature dependent."

Another way of extneding shelf life, he continues, is to limit the amount of available oxygen. This is done by wrapping and sealing the items in plastic film.

As they respire, they use up oxygen within the sealed package at a rapid rate; this ultimately retards the respiration rate until a balance is achieved, with the packaged items using up oxygen at a rate equivalent to that replaced by natural diffusion through the plastic barrier.

Together, refrigeration and modified-atmosphere packaging are more effective than either technique used alone.

"You must have a partnership of temperature and atmosphere controls," explains Schlimme.

The ideal amount of oxygen inside the plastic seal, he adds, is between 2 and 5 percent. That range appears to offer the greatest benefits in terms of extending the life of fruits and vegetables. Below 1 or 2 percent oxygen, the items tend to deteriorate rapidly.

Achieving the proper atmospheric conditions is anything but simple. Different fruits and vegetables respire at different rates, so the plastic film used to seal them must be selected on an item-by-item basis.

The size of the package also must be correct because too few or too many items can cause a respiration imbalance. And, of course, temperature is always a factor.

Despite the complexities involved, Schlimme believes the benefits of modified-atmosphere packaging justify the time and effort involved in developing the technology.

"I really think you'll see an improvement in the quality of many fruits and vegetables over the next decade as a result of modified-atmosphere packaging," he says, using tomatoes to illustrate his point:

"The vast majority of tomatoes in eastern U.S. supermarkets during the winter months come from southern Florida or Mexico and are shipped great distances. Ripe red tomatoes won't withstand the rigors of transportation; they'll be mush by the time they get to the supermarket. Consequently, the tomatoes are picked when they're at what's called the mature green stage of developent. They ship well because they're hard as bullets."

Upon delivery, the tomatoes are exposed to ethylene gas, a plant hormone that triggers ripening. They are offered for sale once they have achieved a sufficient red color.

But as you may have noticed, that red isn't the same true red of tomatoes that have ripened on the vine, and the taste leaves something to be desired.

"Some people go so far as to call them cardboard tomatoes," said Schlimme.

But modified-atmosphere packaging can improve the quality of such tomatoes. Left on the vine longer, they develop more flavor but are still firm enough to hold up during shipping.

Proper plastic wrapping and refrigeration retard the already initiated ripening process and extend the tomatoes' high-quality shelf life to a minimum of 21 days while eliminating the need for ethylene gas, according to research conducted by Schlimme and his colleague, Professor Theophanes Solomos.

Modified-atmosphere packaging also offers great potential benefits for Delmarva farmers who produce sweet corn, according to Schlimme.

"A lot of farmers sell quite a bit of sweet corn at roadside stands during the summer," he says. "But that's peanuts compared to what they could make selling minimally processed corn to retailers in the Baltimore-Washington corridor." (By minimally processed, Schlimme means corn that has been picked, shucked, desilked, washed, cooled and then packaged in the appropriate plastic film and refrigerated.)

Last summer, Schlimme began evaluating several sweet corn varieties as potential candidates for modified atmosphere packaging. The best performer in preliminary studies achieved a satisfactory shelf life of 31 days when properly sealed and stored at a temperature of 34 F.

Encouraged by these preliminary results, Schlimme will continue his corn research this summer.

BRUNING PAINT

Now there's a flowable herbicide specifically formulated to deliver the grass and broadleaf control power you need in conservation tillage corn. Whether you've cut back by only one tillage trip or gone all the way to no-till, new Bullet® herbicide from Monsanto is for you. The difference in Bullet is encapsulation.* The weed controlling firepower of Bullet is protected in tiny, timed release capsules that move through crop residue into the weed germination zone where its power is unleashed.

TIMED RELEASE FOR SEASON LONG CONTROL New Bullet, with its unique timed release feature, discharges its firepower gradually to stop both early and later germinating weeds and grasses. Bullet gives you full season control of the worst troublemakers.

tough weeds and grasses like crabgrass, foxtail, fall panicum, velvetleaf, annual morning-glory, nutsedge, marestail and common ragweed. Even triazine-resistant pigweed is no match for the firepower of Bullet.

PERFORMS IN ADVERSE WEATHER Hot and dry, cool and wet. Adverse weather conditions steal power from many herbicides. But thanks to encapsulation, Bullet retains its strength and delivers high caliber control during adverse spring weather. If it's dry, encapsulation reduces loss from volatilization. If it's wet, encapsulation minimizes movement out of the weed germination zone.

EASY ON SEEDLINGS The gradual release feature of Bullet means it gives you excellent crop tolerance. That's because Bullet doesn't deliver the entire amount of active ingredient all at once. So it's easy on young corn seedlings. Bullet releases its power gradually for season long control and great crop tolerance.

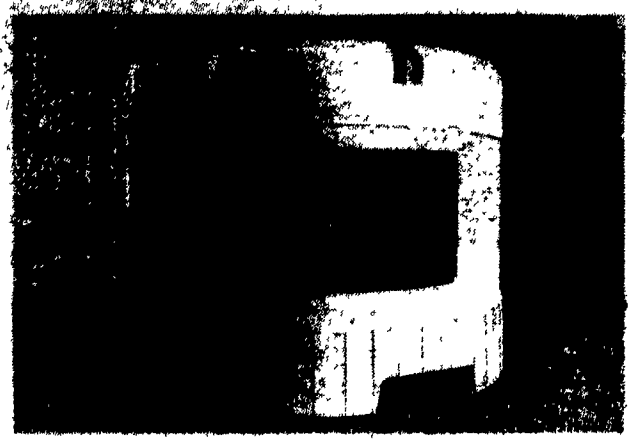
HIGH CALIBER PERFORMANCE FOR YOU Whatever your conservation tillage practice, Bullet is for you. Bullet controls the toughest weeds and grasses. And thanks to timed release technology, even the later germinating troublemakers can't escape. Bullet remains strong in adverse weather conditions and yet it's gentle on young corn seedlings. It's a unique package of benefits that no other herbicide can match. In con-till corn, you need maximum firepower to stay in control. You need Bullet. High caliber control for con-till corn.



U.S. EPA registration pending for use as a pre-emergent herbicide to control labeled grasses and broadleaf weeds in corn.

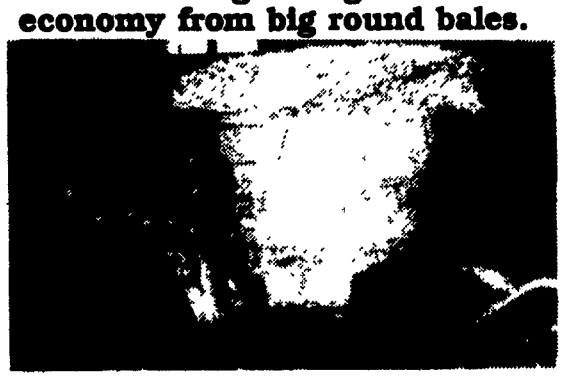
BIG BALE CHOPPERS
from KIDD give regular bale economy from big round bales.



For animal feed, bedding or mulching the Kidd Big Bale Chopper provides either or both sides delivery controlled from the tractor seat. It saves on hay, straw and labour. And with air box adaptor, it blows material through a 7 inch dia. flexible hose, ideal for landscaping applications. For animal feed, it chops and shreds hay to provide better digestion and increased growth rates and, for bedding, it means less waste. For mulching it can be used around strawberry plants or apple trees with considerable saving on straw and labour.

MULTIPLE PEST RESISTANCE IN ALFALFA

Today when one talks about improved alfalfa varieties he automatically talks about multiple pest resistance. It's a key term. And well it should be. Research has proven that an alfalfa variety with a moderate to high level of multiple-pest resistance for a given area is generally superior in yield and persistance to a variety with high resistance to one disease or pest but without resistance to others. WL Research alfalfa breeders recognized the importance of multiple-pest resistance many years ago and back in the early 70s pioneered the breeding programs to develop varieties with multiple-pest resistance. Today the goal of every alfalfa breeder is a variety with a high level of resistance to our major alfalfa pests.

The Big Five

What are those pests? In this region, five diseases get the major attention. And while all are important, they don't all affect alfalfa the same way in all areas.

Here's a brief run-down on the five major alfalfa diseases in the Northeast as I see them:

Bacterial Wilt: generally present throughout our region, this disease is considered mainly an old-age disease resulting in stand loss of 3- to 4-year-old stands. The bacteria are in the soil and enter the root through wounds, and, over time, reduce or prevent translocation of food and water throughout the plant. Since all varieties currently marketed in our area have adequate resistance to this disease, for all practical purposes it is no longer considered a serious threat.

Verticillium Wilt: This disease was first identified in the Northeast about eight years ago, and while on occasion diseased plants have been isolated in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland, this disease is considered an economic threat primarily from central Pennsylvania north. It is most likely to attack older stands, but when conditions are ideal for its development it can show up in younger stands as well. Many of the newer varieties have resistance to this disease.

Anthracnose: Favored by hot, moist weather, this stand depleting fungus disease is most serious in central and southeastern Pennsylvania and points south—but can be a problem in the Hudson River Valley and other river valleys in Pennsylvania. Dead, straw-colored stems with a "sheppards crook" scattered throughout the field in late summer, are a good indication of anthracnose infection. Diamond-shaped lesions often will appear on the lower portions of stems before the straw color develops.

Phythopthora Root Rot: called "wet foot" disease, it occurs mainly on new seedings in wet, marginally drained soils during extended periods of rainfall when saturated soil conditions occur. Tap roots rot off, leaving a blackened area, weakening the plant and frequently, when conditions are right, resulting in stand loss. Treating the seed with the fungicide Apron provides protection against this disease during the early establishment period.

Fusarium Wilt: considered an important disease of established alfalfa stands in most of Pennsylvania and points south, it is not thought to be important in New York and New England. The disease can result in considerable stand thinning. The fungus lives in the soil and enters through wounds or root hairs. Crown damage from machinery traffic in the field provides an entry point into the plant by the fungus.

Good overall fertility and cutting management along with field and equipment sanitation can lessen the losses for most of these diseases. However, the use of varieties with adequate levels of resistance is considered the most practical approach.

There are, of course, several other diseases, as well as a number of insects, that can attack alfalfa either during the establishment period or an older stands. These include: Sclerotina Crown and Stem Rot, Rhizoctonia Stem and Root Canker, Downy Mildew, a number of leaf spots, and the Root and Crown Rot complex. Overall, these diseases are less of a problem on alfalfa in our region, and generally cannot be, or have not been, controlled through the development of resistant varieties.

In my next column we'll take a further look at multiple pest resistance, and how you should evaluate it in terms of choosing varieties for your farm.

Game Propagation And Controlled Hunting, Illinois Style

BY BOB BAUER
Ill. Dept. of Conservation

Illinois was among the earlier states that got into the Game Propagation Program. The first game farm started in Yorkville, Ill., in the mid 1920s. Stocking was the name of the game in those days, and the state developed more than 200 sportsmen clubs to raise and release more than 130,000 pheasants and quail. The cooperative sportsmen clubs are still active today, but to a lesser extent. They cannot release young birds during the summer anymore, but have to have the facilities available to hold the birds for release during the hunting season. They can release quail through a controlled release program during October and pheasants during their season. This is so they can harvest a grater percentage of the birds they raise and release. We now supply them with 62,000 day-old quail that we purchase from commercial producers, and 25,000 sexed cock pheasant chicks.

In 1946 the state started a Put N Take hunting program, which is still active and growing today. At this time we have two types of hunting areas, mostly state areas, that we use in our program. There are eight permit controlled hunting areas and six non-permit controlled hunting areas. On the permit areas a person needs a permit to hunt on a particular area for that date.

Up until this year, the person had to send in for his permit on a special application form. This permit allowed the permittee and one other person to hunt on that permit. The hunter listed his first and second choice of areas to hunt and first and second choice of dates. He could leave the date open and mark a box for week day or a box for weekend. It took two months to process these permits and sometimes the person did not know if he was getting a permit or if he did, what his hunting date was, until just before the hunting season.

We now have a call-in system in operation, and the person calling in knows by the time he hangs up (once he gets through) what areas he, and up to four friends are hunting on and the dates.

The permits are issued in September for the November and December hunting season. There is no money handled in getting the permit, therefore there are some permit holders that do not show up at the check station. All permit holders have to check in between 7:00 and 8:00 a.m. After 8:00 a.m. the numer of unfilled hunter slots allowed for that area are filled by persons in a standby line until the quota is filled.

When they check in, they submit their hunting license, pay a $10 fee, get a usage stamp, and colored back patch. They are assigned a particular parking area, which are dispersed throughout the hunting area to control the dispersal of the hunters. By 8:30 a.m. all hunters are checked in and are given a hunter safety speech and any rules particular to that hunting area. They must also wear blaze orange vest and hats. They are then sent out to their parking area. They cannot leave the parking area until 9:00 a.m., and they police themselves very well on this. They have to remain in their assigned area for the first hour of hunting, then can go to other areas. All hunters have to check back in by 4:00 p.m., get their bird(s) tagged, hand in their colored back patch and pick up their hunting licenses. At 4:00 p.m. the birds for the next day's hunt are released at the rate of two birds, of either sex, per hunter. The bird limit is two birds of either sex.

The six non-permit hunting areas are handled in the same way, except they do not have pre-issued permits. If more hunters show up by 8:00 a.m. then the area can safely handle, the lucky hunters are chosen by a drawing. These areas are smaller in size and can handle 40 to 75 hunters a day, depending on area.

Some of the permit areas handle 200 hunters a day. This past year we released more than 100,000 pheasants in these areas and had almost 50,000 man days of hunting in areas that would normally have less than 5,000 man days of hunting if it were not for this program.

We have one permit area on 3,000 acres of farm land that we lease from farmers for this purpose. The community in this location like this program, as the check station is in the Community Center, and they run the food concession where they do make quite a bit of money. The farmers like it, as the hunters are controlled and parking areas assigned. It is actually like hunting on open farm land and knowing there are birds in the area.

At this time we get back 65 to 70 for the cost of raising the birds with the $10 fee. This fee will be going up to $15, so we will get back all of our production costs, plus a good deal of the check station and permit section costs.

The hunt clubs in Illinois like our program, as it keeps more people active in hunting, giving them more customers. We set one day aside during the season for a youth hunt where the youngsters are given a hunter safety course and a dog-handling demonstration before they hunt. They are accompanied by an adult who cannot carry a gun.

As huntable lands diminish for gamebird hunting putting more pressure on public lands, this is a program that states could consider, and it could be made self sustaining through user fees.

I might add, I believe the reason the Michigan Put N Take hunting went down the tube is because they felt they could not control the hunters using the areas, so they had no control of hunter numbers or actually of birds harvested.

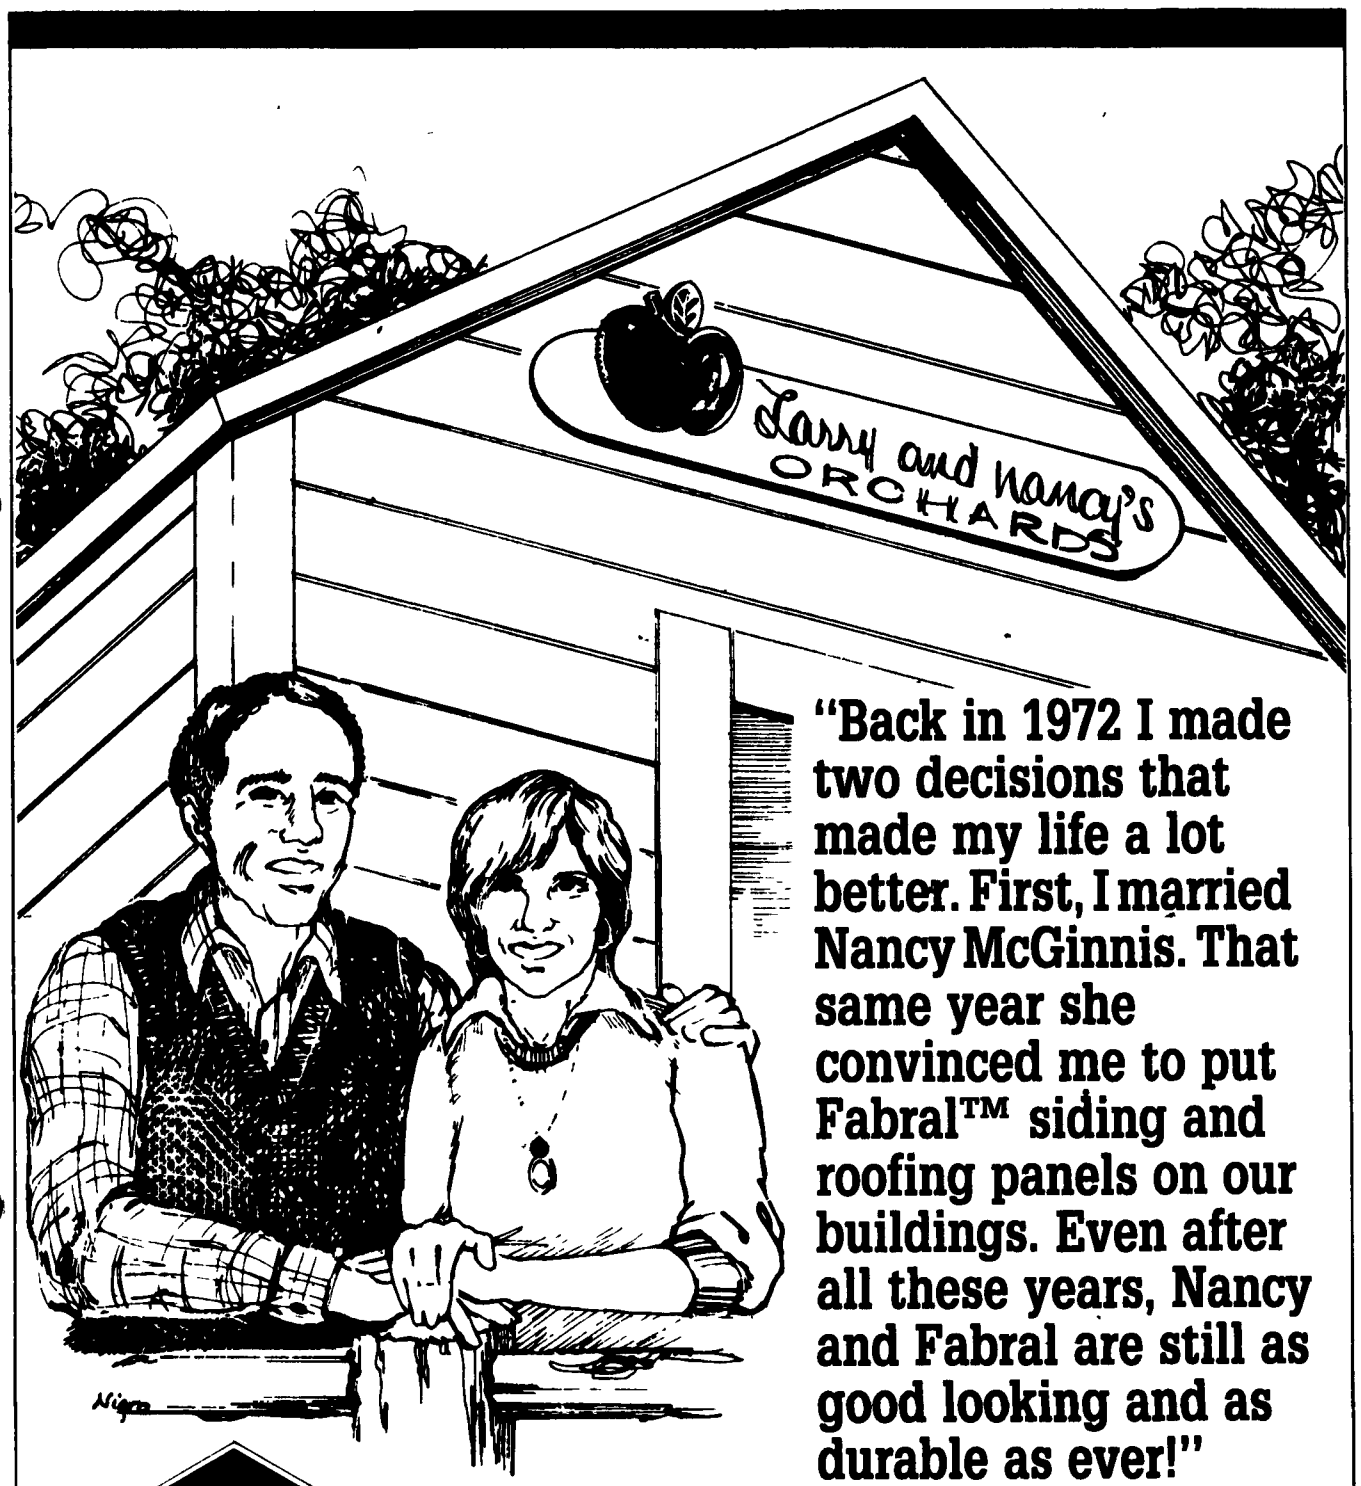
Not being able to control the hunters is a poor cop out. We have large areas, some with many roads and one with an interstate highway cutting through it. The fee-paying hunter is not about to let someone hunt without the right-colored back patch, or user stamp.

We now are renovating our game farm system, which is being designed to be as labor efficient as possible. Our part-time seasonal employees now receive $8.50 an hour plus benefits. Our new breeding hatchery unit, which will be operational in 1990, will use much less labor and allow us to release an extra 60,000 birds for the hunting programs.

In the brooding houses, we have gone to whole-room brooding where we start the chicks in the "A" room, which is one third the size of the brooderhouse. They are kept in the room for three weeks after which they go into the larger "B" room for another three weeks.

For the first three days in the "B" room, the birds are held just in half of the room. They they are caught up, "specked", and put through to the other half. It usually take a day and a half to speck 13,000 birds. After they are specked they are given the whole room.

At six weeks of age they are let out into a covered runway that leads to the large flight pens. There is feed and water available in the runways so the birds can stay there and get used to the outside before they are driven to the pens. This works pretty well as a lot of birds will reach the pen area on their own without being driven. The rest drive easier after being in the runway for several days. Our flight pens are 150'x300' with lots of good cover.



"Back in 1972 I made two decisions that made my life a lot better. First, I married Nancy McGinnis. That same year she convinced me to put Fabral™ siding and roofing panels on our buildings. Even after all these years, Nancy and Fabral are still as good looking and as durable as ever!"

If you're looking for siding and roofing that will last, then you want Fabral. Behind its good looks is a carefully engineered system that gives remarkable durability and design flexibility.

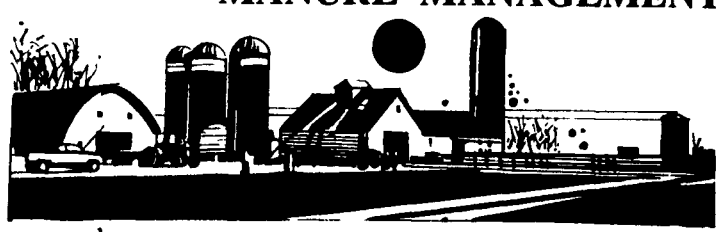
WATER QUALITY & MANURE MANAGEMENT



Questions & Answers About Manure Analysis

Whether you are a crop or livestock farmer, chances are you have heard about the importance of managing manure properly. But what is proper? The ideal situation is when the manure is used to its best economic advantage, replacing as much commercial fertilizer as is practical. But economics is only half the equation! In the future we must keep the environment in mind as well, preserving ground and surface water quality for us as well as neighbors.

Manures contain nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. Just how much of each, the manure you have available may contain, depends on several factors. Animal species, bedding type and amount, storage, handling, dilution, and incorporation all affect nutrient values of manure. The following table will give you some idea of how much variation there is in manure analysis - even in the same animal species.

Animal	N	Phos.	Potash
Dairy	29%	39%	36%
Poultry	91	40	39
Swine	50	81	53

With this in mind, you can see the importance of testing the manure available for your operation. What follows are answers to commonly asked questions about this useful nutrient management tool.

Q. I know the manure I spread contains plant nutrients, so why should I have the manure analyzed? Besides, I apply commercial fertilizer to supply crop nutrients.

A. If you don't have manure analyzed, you don't know the amounts of nutrients it contains. By not accounting for the nutrient value of manure you may be overfertilizing your crops. That means you're paying for fertilizer to supply some of the nutrients that are already being provided by manure. Simply, put, you're spending money for something you don't need. In addition, if excessive amounts of nitrogen are applied, nitrate may leach from the soil and contaminate groundwater.

A basic manure analysis will tell you the concentrations of nitrogen, phosphate and potash in your farm's manure. This is the first step in determining manure's fertilizer value.

Q. In various publications I've seen lists that give the nutrient values of different animal manures. What's wrong with using these numbers to help plan a nutrient management program?

A. The problem is that these numbers represent averages. The numbers are useful in showing that the nutrient value of manure varies with the type of animal. For example, the average levels of nitrogen, phosphate and potash in poultry manure are higher than the average levels in dairy manure.

For a given livestock group, manure analyses from many farms were used to calculate the published averages. But nutrient content varies from farm to farm; actual nutrient levels on your farm may be much higher or much lower than the published averages. This is because management practices affect manure nutrient levels. The feeding program, type and amount of bedding materials used, water content of the manure, and the collection and storage methods help determine manure's nutrient levels. Since these factors vary from farm to farm, so does the nutrient content of manure.

Q. How often should I have a manure analysis done?

A. For a given farm, manure nutrient content doesn't change much year to year. But if your farm's manure hasn't previously been analyzed, the manure should probably be sampled for several years every time the storage is emptied to establish a baseline analysis for your farm.

Establishing this baseline analysis is also important for daily haul operations. If your management practices vary during the year (for example, you may feed differently during different times of the year) then you should have separate analyses done to correspond with these seasonal management changes. Sample for several years to determine these baseline nutrient levels.

After baseline levels have been established, less frequent analysis (about every three years) should be done to monitor nutrient content. But if you should change a management practice, such as your choice of bedding material, then the nutrient content is likely to change. Have the manure analyzed again.

Q. Where can I get a manure analysis done?

A. Penn State Agronomy Extension has made arrangements with a commercial laboratory to analyze manure for nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Other labs also offer this service.

How much will it cost?

A. Through the Extension program the charge is twenty-two dollars.

Q. If I decide to have a manure analysis done, how do I go about it?

A. If you choose to make use of the Extension program, pick up a mailing kit at your County Cooperative Extension office. The kit also contains instructions for collecting and handling the sample. Collecting manure for analysis is much the same as collecting soil for a soil test; the goal is to submit a representative sample. If you spread manure daily, collect several samples from the spreader loads during a typical week, mix the samples together and send a sample of the mixture to the lab.

If you use a storage, a convenient time to collect a representative sample is when the storage is being emptied. For liquid manure it's necessary to agitate the manure prior to emptying to help ensure that the nutrients are uniformly distributed in each spreader load. This agitation will help you get a representative sample. While emptying the storage, take several samples and mix them together. Use a portion of this mixture to send to the lab.

Even with agitation the storage may contain manure with distinct differences in consistency. Since this will mean differences in nutrient content, separate analyses should be run.

When emptying nonliquid manure storages, take samples from representative loads, mix and send a sample from the mixture.

Q. How long before I get the results back?

A. You should have the results in about two weeks.

Q. By that time I'll have emptied my storage. What good is the analysis then?

A. Crop fertilization can often be adjusted for all nutrients, but especially for nitrogen. In the case of nitrogen, you may be able to make use of the results of the same growing season to adjust the amount of commercial fertilizer that you apply as a sidedress. When you learn the nitrogen content of the manure that you applied, you can estimate how much nitrogen is being supplied to the crop based on your application rate and application method. By subtracting this amount of nitrogen from the crop's nitrogen requirement, you can then calculate how much additional nitrogen should be applied as a sidedress.

Even if you're unable to use the results in the same growing season, you can use them the next time the storage is emptied. Taking a sample while you're emptying a storage makes it more likely that the sample will be representative. This has benefits that outweighs any delay in making use of the results.

Q. Once I know how much nitrogen, phosphate and potash are in the manure, how can I use this information?

A. A manure analysis report will help you calculate manure's contribution to the nutrient requirements of your crops. You can then determine if any supplemental fertilizer is needed. Phosphate and potash from manure are similar in plant availability to fertilizer sources of these nutrients; you can substitute manure phosphate and potash one-for-one for the fertilizer phosphate and potash required to meet crop needs. Nitrogen availability is more complex and depends on handling and application methods. Guidelines for estimating nitrogen availability are included with the Penn State manure analysis report. This information can also be found in the Penn State Agronomy Guide, the Department of Environmental Resources' Manure Management for Environmental Protection, and with Penn State soil test reports.

Staff from the Cooperative Extension, Soil Conservation Service, Conservation Districts and Department of Environmental Resources can help you effectively use the results of a manure analysis. They can also assist you in developing a comprehensive nutrient management plan to make efficient use of the manure produced on your farm.

Tennessee, 10 Southern Counties Added To Fire Ant Quarantine

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is quarantining two counties in Tennessee where imported fire ants have been found, adding that state to the list of 10 others now under agricultural quarantine for the stinging pest. All or part of a total of 10 counties in Arkansas, Mississippi, and Texas also are being placed under quarantine.

The quarantine, enforced by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, (APHIS), regulates movement of certain agricultural articles to prevent the artificial spread of the pest to uninfested states and counties.

According to APHIS Administrator James W. Glosser, federal and state agricultural officers found the imported fire ants in the newly quarantined areas during survey activities. The affected counties include Hardin and McNairy in Tennessee; Lincoln in Arkansas; Benton, Lafayette, Marshall, Panola, Tallahatchie and Tate in Mississippi; and Hopkins, Llano and Mason in Texas.

The bite of the imported fire ant--Solenopsis invicta--causes painful stinging and skin blisters that may become infected. These bites, and the hard conical mounds built by the ants, render infested land difficult or impossible to cultivate or harvest, and can ruin the recreational potential of parks and private property. Fire ants also attack crops directly and may cause twisting in young trees.

Eleven states and Puerto Rico are now partially or entirely infested by fire ant. States with quarantine areas are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Comments regarding these quarantine changes should be addressed to Helen Wright, Chief, Regulatory Analysis and Development, PPD, APHIS, USDA, Room 866, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md. 20782. Refer to docket 88-158.

Comments must be received or postmarked by May 1, and may be inspected in Room 1141 of USDA's South Building, Washington, D.C. between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays.

New Study Finds Ethanol Use Would Help Control Greenhouse Effect

Washington, D.C. — A new study by the Congressional Research Service (CRS) has found that increased use of ethanol in the nation's gasoline supply would help reduce automotive carbon dioxide emissions, the Renewable Fuels Association reported.

The Renewable Fuels Association is the trade association for the domestic ethanol industry.

Carbon dioxide released into the atmosphere from the burning of fossil fuels (such as gasoline) is considered by scientists to be a major contributing factor in the global warming trend known as the "greenhouse effect."

U.S. Representative Richard J. Durbin (D-Ill.), co-chairman of the Congressional Alcohol Fuels Caucus, asked CRS to perform the analysis.

Eric Vaughn, president of the Renewable Fuels Association, said, "This study further supports what we have known for some time: That ethanol has a number of significant environmental benefits which makes it an important contributor to air quality. Currently, ethanol-blended fuel is the only commercially available mobile fuel source that has a carbon dioxide benefit. In 1988, 340 million bushels of corn were used to produce 850 million gallons of fuel ethanol. Numerous studies have demonstrated that the carbon dioxide absorbed by these agricultural feedstocks at least offset and may surpass the level of carbon dioxide emissions when burned as fuel. Therefore, ethanol is the only motor fuel that will not exacerbate the "greenhouse effect" but rather, will help reverse the global warming which currently threatens our environment."

The study entitled, "Ethanol Fuel and Global Warming" was performed by specialists with the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress, with assistance from the Department of Energy.

While ethanol by itself is not a solution to the "greenhouse effect" the CRS Report notes that "if global warming is a concern, ethanol ... has a distinct advantage over gasoline" The report shows that in addition to ethanol's proven ability to reduce carbon monoxide, a gas that is directly harmful to humans, it also reduces carbon dioxide emissions that contribute to global warming.

Major findings of the study are:

* The use of 10 percent ethanol gasoline blends could reduce motor fuel emissions of carbon dioxide in the U.S. between 4 to 7 percent compared to non-ethanol gasoline.

* Merely growing the crop of grain that is converted into ethanol removes as much carbon dioxide from the atmosphere as is released during the burning of ethanol fuel. This reflects the fact that plants remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere as they grow. Only renewable fuels have this effect.

The CRS study determined that the actual amount of carbon dioxide emission that would be reduced by increased ethanol use in gasoline ranges between 4.2 percent and 7.5 percent, depending on whether ethanol is compared to gasoline on the basis of energy content (BTU-for-BTU) or volune (gallon-for-gallon).

Ethanol contains fewer BTU's of energy than gasoline, which means the carbon dioxide reduction from ethanol is smaller on an energy-content basis. However, ethanol burns more efficiently than gasoline and has a higher octane level, which makes the volume-based comparison more appropriate.

USDA Reopens Comment Period On Cattle Inspection System

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will reopen the comment period for a proposed new cattle inspection system, allowing comments to be accepted until May 15. The initial comment period closed Jan. 30.

"The streamlined inspection system for cattle would play a major role in the future of federal inspection, so it is crucial that industry and the public have adequate opportunity to comment," said Dr. Lester M. Crawford; administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. "In response to requests for additional time to submit information on the proposed system, we are reopening the comment period for 90 days," Crawford said.

The proposed system, whichi modifies inspection procedures, makes plants responsible for removing dressing defects, such as dirt, hair, and hide remnants. Inspectors would monitor compliance with this process through statistical sampling of the finished products. The proposed systemn is aimed at increasing inspection efficiency and allowing inspectors to concentrate on detecting disease conditions.

Comments should be submitted to: Policy Office, Attn. Linda Carey, Hearing Clerk, Room 3175-South, Food Safcty and Inspection Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

FSIS inspects meat and poultry to ensure that they are safe, wholesome and accurately labeled.

Farmers Union Evaluation Calls '85 Farm Bill Schizophrenic

LITTLE ROCK, AR. — An analysis of the 1985 Farm Bill released by the Board of the National Farmers Union (NFU) at the group's annual convention here concludes that the U.S. cannot afford a continuation of the current farm program.

The evaluation, titled "The Food Security Act of 1985, Pluses and Minuses," states that the '85 Farm Bill could have been effective but that discretionary measures allowing administrators to lower loan rates hurt farmers and cost taxpayers billions of dollars.

The NFU analysis says the current farm program actually affected the structure of agriculture. The report points out that twelve percent of U.S. farmers went out of business during the last decade, most of which operated medium sized farms. NFU leaders say new farm programs need to target benefits toward small and medium sized farms.

The major problems with the administration of the current law, the report says, is that "discretionary price cuts were used to depress prices below the statutory price support levels" in an effort to improve the competitiveness of U.S. farm products in world markets. In addition, NFU says Commodity Credit Corporation dumping practices further depressed prices. NFU leaders say Congress had sought to eventually raise commodity prices by reducing supplies, but that whenever prices began to rally, CCC stocks were dumped onto the market, keeping available supplies heavy and prices low. The NFU says this contradiction in purposes led to lower farm income, and cost the government an average of 17 billion dollars a year this decade.

Finally, the NFU says that export bonuses, and lower prices did not improve the U.S. export market share. In fact, the report says recent USDA statistics show that the U.S. market share is actually slipping for some commodities.

The position paper says there are some positive aspects of the '85 bill that should be modified slightly and placed into the next farm program. These include soil conservation provisions, which the report says should be broadened to include groundwater protection; farm credit, which NFU says was drastically improved by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987; research and extension, which the officials say should be refocused to developing new crops, and uses and spurring demand for existing crops; and the peanut, sugar, and wool and mohair programs.

Strategies for Internal Parasite Control

Controlling internal parasites in sheep can be very costly but does it really have to be? How many Pennsylvania sheep producers will tell you, "I have to worm my sheep every month", or better yet, "I only worm when they need it."

Does the last comment imply the need to treat after one observes the classical clinical symptoms such as anemia, diarrhea, poor growth rate, and eventual death due to some secondary ailment?

Now (1 to 2 weeks pre-lambing and/or immediately post-lambing) is a good time to start planning your 1989 strategies for internal parasite control. Much of the following "control" (not treatment) approaches to winning the war on internal parasites is based on extensive studies conducted by Dr. R. P. Herd, Veterinary Parasiteologist at Ohio State University. From these studies and some previous Australian research, Dr. Tom Drake, Veterinary Parasiologist at Penn State has written a special circular No. 313 on internal parasite control titled "Management of Gastrointestinal Parasites in Sheep". This publication may be requested by calling your local extension office.

To appreciate and understand such problem areas as knowing the enemy or what parasites are most likely infecting your sheep; knowing how to manage or arrest the parasite's development stage (Hypobiosis); having some understanding of possible drug resistance by certain parasites; understanding the reasons for treating at very specific times; and learning about and applying an integrated antiparasite and grazing management program, all play a major role in how successful you are in controlling internal parasite levels.

Herd has stated that mostly wrong advice is given about the timing of worm treatments. Traditional control measures for many producers has been to give repeated treatments in the late summer and fall when pasture infectivity is always high and sheep are beginning to experience clinical symptoms such as diarrhea, anemia and decreased performance. This type of control program usually only removes worms that would soon be lost to normal turnover and, in a short period, worms are usually back to their pretreatment levels.

Other strategies such as treating on a monthly basis fail because worms ingested after treatment will lay eggs before the sheep is treated again. Some producers will give a single spring treatment, but this also fails to prevent the "summer explosion" on pastures. Rotational grazing is also not an effective preventative measure because of the long survival of the infective third-stage larva in most species present in sheep pastures.

Pre-lamb treatment

Treat ewes two to four weeks prior to lambing to prevent the peri-parturient rise. Anthelmintics to be used include levamisole or ivermectin when treating ewes in northern winter climates because they are effective against hypobiotic (arrested) larvae and will prevent their maturation to adults.

It should be noted that ewes could be treated when coming in off pasture to the barn for winter housing or at any convenient time before going out on spring pasture. The main objective is a prevention of spring pasture contamination with worm eggs.

Late lambing ewes (April-May) should receive a second treatment just before or at lambing if they have already grazed contaminated spring pastures.

Prophylactic treatments in spring

Prophylactic treatment refers to treating the flock with anthelmintics at short intervals (such as every two to three weeks) in early spring to reduce the occurrence of summer buildup of pasture contamination. Ohio research has demonstrated that four treatments at three-week intervals, starting after spring treatment, were as effective as eight treatments at three-week intervals for the entire grazing season.

Treating only four times versus eight saves producers both time and money plus significantly reducing the summer explosion of parasite eggs. Levamisole was the anthelmintic utilized most successfully.

Treat and move strategy

This strategy is designed to extend the effectiveness of a single treatment by moving animals to a safe pasture and limiting reinfection. A safe pasture is not completely devoid of infective larvae but is one in which the infectivity is sufficiently low that the worm population of the flock should be minimal. The re-growth after harvesting hay or silage can generally be considered safe. Also, pastures in which cattle have grazed could be considered safe because of the low amount of cross-infection between species.

Therefore, sheep that are treated by July 1 and moved to a safe or clean pasture are less likely to be exposed to the summer explosion of these parasites. If the flock is treated and then allowed to remain on the same pasture, a severe reinfection problem should be expected.

Summary

Utilizing the strategic treatments listed above will not eliminate the internal parasite population of your flock. However, as research has developed a better understanding of the internal parasite life cycle, sheep producers can now develop an effective program that will better utilize his or her resources while ensuring better overall performance within the flock.

Swine Researchers Boost Piglet Survival Rate

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Saving piglets is the aim of Dr. Thomas Hartsock's research at the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's Clarksville Facility.

There is often 20 to 30 percent mortality between birth and weaning, with 5 to 10 percent of the piglets appearing to be stillborn, said Hartsock, associate professor of animal science at the University of Maryland at College Park. He and Swine Facility Manager Benny Erez have devised an electronic monitoring system that can warn farmers of impending farrowing. This warning would enable farmers to attend farrowing, or birth, and assist if necessary.

"We've found that sows become more active approximately 24 hours before farrowing," Hartsock said. "This behavior intensifies six to eight hours prior to giving birth."

If these sows were in the wild, they'd be gathering sticks, straw or other debris to build a nest at this time. Even though they're confined, they still exhibit similar behaviors, such as rooting and pawing at the farrowing crate floor, and frequently standing up and lying down.

Hartsock and Erez monitor a sow's behavior using cameras positioned in the farrowing house, a time-lapse video recorder, computer/monitor and photocell/computer interface. The researchers have filed a patent disclosure for the latter component.

This system records movement and how long a sow exhibits a particular behavior, such as lying down. The resultant patterns are charted on the monitor, thus illustrating the complete pre-farrowing behavior sequence.

"We've learned that stillbirths occur later in farrowing, and that there is a greater time interval between their birth and that of the preceding piglet," Hartsock said. "Stillbirths also have a higher proportion of broken umbilical cords and are born in a posterior position more frequently."

Such observations contribute to understanding the physiology and behavior of newborn pig birth trauma. That knowledge, combined with the existing "birth alarm" system, may enable the researchers, and ultimately farmers, to take the necessary steps to save stressed piglets.

Electronic monitoring allows Dr. Thomas Hartsock, right, and Benny Erez to predict sow farrowing based on behavioral patterns. The University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station scientists envision an electronic "alarm" that would enable farmers to attend farrowing and thus assist piglets if necessary.

Such steps might include intervening in a problem farrowing, resuscitating asphyxiated piglets, or removing small or weakened piglets from a litter, building their strength, and then placing them with a "foster" sow once they can effectively compete with littermates for nursing position.

For the future, Hartsock and Erez envision further refining their electronics so they can detect the first piglet's appearance, thus giving producers the precise time when farrowing assistance is most needed.

The Clarksville Facility is part of the Agricultural Experiment Station's Central Maryland Research and Education Center. The swine research component is a complete farrow-to-finish operation, with 16 raised farrowing crates, a nursery with raised decks and floor pens, and a finishing/feeding floor that is partitioned for nutrition trials.

Non-Polluted Air Means High Performance For Poultry, Rabbits

BY HERBERT C. JORDAN
Associate Professor
Penn State University

Too many barns have too much toxic gas, offensive odor or other damaging air pollution. Remove it and performance increases. Consider these characteristics of air.

• Temperature of air around young stock before 28 days of age can be cool if building insulation or radiant heat is present to keep individual animals warm. Air temperature above 80 degrees Fahrenheit can damage all ages of animal because it carries less heat out of the animal in hot weather and carries less oxygen per cubic centimeter to the animal's lungs. Hot air is useful to recover animals from chill but nothing else. Air temperature 56 to 80 degrees F is useful to animals to breathe, whereas 32 to 56 degrees air to breathe is healthier. So air entering the house can be 32 to 56 degrees while the house air itself can be maintained at 56-80 degrees. Air temperature to breathe above 80 degrees if air is dry, can cause drying of respiratory tissue and encourage infection; it transfers less oxygen to the blood per breath and causes the animal to overheat in summer because panting is a primary means of reducing excess body heat. So plan all building air inlets on the north, shady or cool side of a building. Direct cool air over animals or through animals to warm air prior to exhausting air over the manure to remove moisture and gas, and then out of the house. Raise the temperature of air coming in by 17 degrees and you double its moisture carrying capacity.

• Relative humidity at 0 to 30 percent dries out and may damage respiratory tissue; relative humidity at 30 to 75 percent is comfortable and allows normal respiratory performance. Relative humidity at 80 to 100 percent may cause suffering and death because of failure of animal to evaporate enough fluids from its tissue, which cools them. High temperature with high humidity is most stressful to an animal.

High performance from animals seems to occur between 30 and 75 percent relative humidity of air around animal.

Relative humidity in a barn can be kept in range by keeping moisture in manure pit low, exhaust animal breath, and provide air exchanges as necessary to keep air fresh, cool and unpolluted.

Foggers or fine-mist, high-pressure sprayers spraying into incomeing air to keep animals cool can be overused to cause wet manure, high relative humidity and lower animal performance.

• Air velocity direct on animals appears to cause discomfort and health problems at 700 to 1000 feet per minute in winter if air temperature is low; however, in summer at higher air temperatures there is less of a problem. Air velocity at 700 to 900 feet per minute (fpm) at the air inlet and less than 500 fpm through the animals is useful anytime of the year. If air

Try a MAGNUM tractor, and see why MAGNUM means more.

Case IH has put more into the MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractors developed by any other company in over twenty years. Here's what you can expect from them:

MAGNUM power. You can count on outstanding field performance from the 505-cubic-inch turbocharged engine that gives you over 8% more displacement than our leading competitor. With reserve pulling power to carry you through.

MAGNUM comfort. The spacious cab has more window area — 48 square feet — to give you more visibility. You also get more room and better seating.

And there's even more. Now MAGNUM tractors are covered by the best warranty in the business — 5 years or 5,000 hours, whichever comes first.* Your dealer has details.

It all adds up: Case IH MAGNUM tractors are setting new standards for the 130-195 PTO hp power range. See them now.

*Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturer's warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

Non-Polluted Air

passes among the animals then over the manure then out of the building, animals do well. Control the size and amount of inlet opening to control velocity of air.

• Particulates such as hair of feather bits cause dust-like globs throughout the house. Particulates have been related to disease organism transfer and respiratory disorders in animals and humans. If a house appears dusty it has too many particulates.

• Odor or gas in air breathed by animals is seldom measured, but field tests show birds to migrate to fresh unpolluted air inside a building if allowed. Birds will lower their heads to survive smoke during a fire; they will migrate away from ammonia fumes but die in methane or other odorless gas. Two massive die-offs of several hundred Leghorn pullets in one, and several thousand in the other, have been documented in cool weather when on one occasion in a floor pen, birds migrated to the warm end of a building with one lone exhaust fan pulling toxic gas out of a center manure pit; other fans malfunctioned and did not run. Birds in this case appeared to have migrated to warm temperature rather than fresh air.

The other occasion was when a liquid manure system under SCWL pullet cages was being agitated and pumped out; the extra fans were not turned on. Several thousand pullets died and the caretaker got sick from a high concentration of toxic gas in the building. Toxic gas was unable to escape because too few fans were on while cleaning.

• Oxygen in fresh air in the barn is the number one primary nutrient for all animals all the time. Minutes without oxygen can damage high performance or kill birds or rabbits. Atmospheric pressure forces oxygen into the blood in the lung so beware of oxygen starvation in poultry at high altitude during low pressure weather changes.

Air pollution competes with oxygen and some gases, like carbon monoxide from internal combustion engines, are preferred by the hemoglobin in the blood cells so that even if oxygen is present it has no value. Hydrogen sulfide, methane, and ammonia from wet manure are also toxic; you cannot move enough air to dilute these adequately for long periods of time so keep manure dry or remove it — reduce air pollution.

American Cyanamid's Ala-Scept broadleaf-weed herbicide has received registration from the Environmental Protection Agency. A pre-mix, Ala-Scept works in soybeans at a rate of 2⅔ quarts per acre for all soil types.

Among the Atlantic Breeders service personnel who received sales awards for their work in the last six months of 1988 include, from left, technicians David Russell, Ted Leofsky, Brian Martin, and Vince Arnold. Also recognized for his achievements was area supervisor David Zimmerman, far right.

Atlantic Breeders Names Sales Performance Winners

LANCASTER — Twenty-five Atlantic Breeders Cooperative sales and service personnel received high recognition for their outstanding performance during the last six months of 1988. They were presented with special awards and prizes by Gary Heckman, Atlantic's member sales director. This program encourages and recognizes achievements which improve service and increase sales volume.

Highest award winners were technicians Pat Arnold of Myerstown, Brian Martin, Narvon, Ken Warren of Kenton, Del., and Gordon Crock, Chesapeake City, Md.; coordinator Paul Werner of Mount Joy; area supervisor David Zimmerman of New Holland; and direct herd representative Charles Smith of Quarryville.

In the sales performance categories, Warren and Crock led in first service increase, Martin was first in units of semen sold, and Nicholas Brin of Drumore led in total first services performed during this period. David Russell of Kinzer was tops in the usage of high PD$-value sires, Paul Starceski of Gardners had the highest share of business in herds using Atlantic's mating programs, and George Harris of Wampum led in the usage of sampler sires.

Among Atlantic's area supervisors, Zimmerman was the leader in first-service increase, total first services, high PD$ sires and mating programs usage. Carl Snyder of Dayton topped the list for semen sales while Robert Badger of Portersville had the highest sampler sires usage.

Other technicians among the top 10 in total performance include Ben Wilson, Chambersburg; Ted Leofsky, Coatesville; Milton Smithers, Centerville; Paul Roland, Elizabethtown; Vince Arnold, Kutztown; and Harris.

In direct herd sales during the six-month period, Mike Fleck of Manheim was second and Glenn Geib of Conestoga was third.

Another performance contest is currently underway throughout Atlantic's service and sales territory.

Broadleaf-Weed Herbicide Receives Label Registration

WAYNE, NJ — American Cyanamid Company announced today that Ala-Scept® herbicide has received registration from the Environmental Protection Agency for weed control in soybeans.

Ala-Scept is a versatile new premix of the number one broadleaf-weed herbicide in soybeans, Scepter® herbicide, and the most widely used pre-emergence grass herbicide, alachlor (the active ingredient in Lasso[1]).

"Ala-Scept is a convenient, cost-effective choice compared to tank-mixing Scepter with Lasso or Dual[2]," says Bob Fisherkeller, product manager, "and it reduces the need for postemergence treatments."

One rate of 2⅔ quarts per acre for all soil types, applied preplant incorporated or pre-emergence, provides superior control of more than 40 problem weeds in soybeans, including foxtails, crabgrass, cocklebur, velvetleaf, pigweed, lambsquarters, nightshade, giant ragweed and wild sunflower. It also reduces the competition of yellow nutsedge and red rice.

Ala-Scept combines application flexibility with consistent weed control. Add to this the wide variety of tillage practices possible with this premix. Additionally, Ala-Scept can be used on all soybean varieties with excellent crop tolerance.

Beachley-Hardy Names Controller

CAMP HILL (Cumberland) — Bernard J. Staub of York has been named controller at Beachley-Hardy Seed Company. The announcement was made recently by Hugh R. MacWilliam, vice president and general manager of Beachley-Hardy.

A graduate of St. Francis College in Loretto, where he received his Bachelor of Science degree in accounting, Staub joined Beachley-Hardy in February, 1988, as accounting and office manager. He formerly was associated with Fox Pools Corporation of York, as accounting manager.

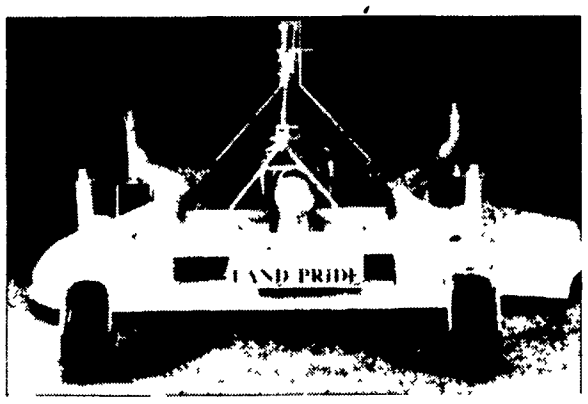
- Profile-stamped A-frame standard on 25 and 35 series, optional on 15 series

3-SPINDLE GROOMING MOWERS

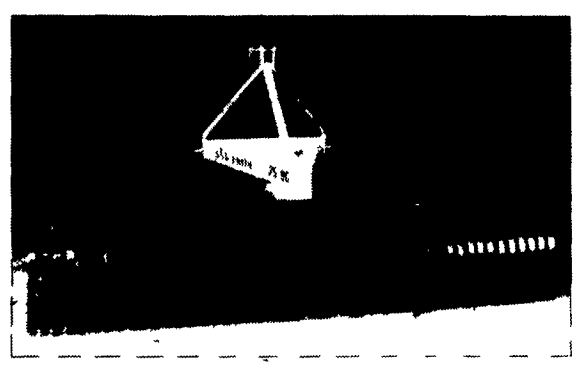


All the features you could ever hope for in a 3-spindle grooming mower are combined in the Land Pride Grooming Mower — at a price comparable to economy units. The profile-stamped air tunnel one-piece deck provides superior grass-cutting due to its ability to lift the grass better and discharge it cleaner — and with less horsepower. The four rugged 10" wheels are standard equipment and provide unmatched contour-following capability.

The Land Pride mower is designed to be easier to attach, adjust, operate, and maintain than competitive units. Standard features like a cast-iron gear box, forged hitch blocks and a commercial-duty V-belt mean you'll spend more time grooming your grass and less time fixing your mower.

Grooming Mower Features:
- Profile stamped air tunnel deck
- Four gauge wheels with 3¼ "x10" solid rubber tires
- 5" height adjustment
- Cast-iron gear box
- 1¼ " blade spindle
- Folding, adjustable discharge chute
- Single commercial-duty V-Belt
- Heavy-duty floating forged hitch blocks, adjustable
- Adjustable floating 3-point top link

LANDSCAPE RAKES



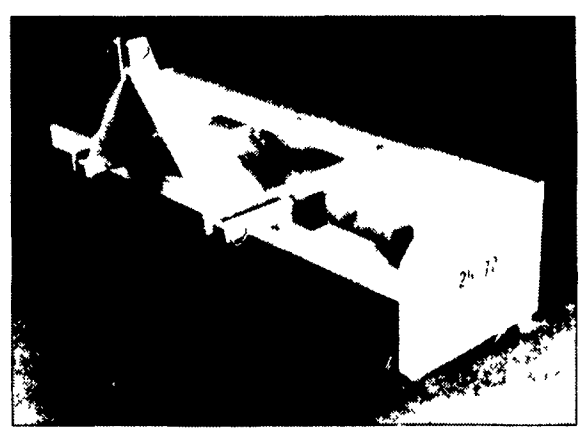
A rugged landscape rake from Land Pride is a versatile addition to any landscaping arsenal. With 11 models in four different series, there is a Land Pride rake to meet your needs.

Rake uses include clean-up of roots, rocks and other debris prior to seeding, spreading and distributing topsoil and crushed rock, general grooming and soil preparation.

Land Pride rakes feature high-carbon, spring-steel teeth and heavy-duty A-frames for a long life. To fine tune performance, options like gauge wheels and flip-down grader blades are available.

Landscape Rake Features:
- High-carbon, spring-steel teeth — ¼ "x¾ " on 05 series, 5/16"x1" on 15, 25, and 35
- Wide range of angle adjustments, including reversible feature on 25 and 35 series.
- Superior clamping design provides added strength by eliminating hole in tooth.
- Full range of options, including flip-down grader blade and gauge wheels.

FIXED BAR BOX SCRAPERS



Land Pride Box Scrapers are built rugged for a long dirt-moving life. The heat-treated spring-steel shanks scarify the ground and the 17" high radius-formed moldboard keeps dirt flowing smoothly into the box. With the 4" square tubing main frame and ½ "x6" heat-treated, reversible cutting edge, these box scrapers are designed with the features you need.

The 25 series features double lug hitches and a plated A-frame. Both models have a welded brace from the A-frame to the rear of the bucket and a choice of rigid or hinged backfill blades.

Box Scraper Features:
- Radius-formed (rolled) moldboard - 17" high
- 4"x4" square tubing main frame
- Double-strap lower hitches - 25 series
- ¾ "x2½ " heat-treated spring steel shanks
- Heat-treated dimpled-on tips
- ½ "x6" high-carbon, heat-treated, curved cutting edge reversible
- ½ " thick formed plate A-frame - 25 series
- 31½ " overall depth
- Pin securely holds shank - easy to remove for shank adjustment

C.B. Hoober & Sons Technicians Attends Service School

RACINE, WI— Four service technicians from C. B. Hoober & Son Inc. in Intercourse, Pa., have just completed five-day intensive training courses at the Case IH Service Training Center. Allen Hunsberger completed the training course on the new Magnum tractors. Ramon Hunt completed the Case Uniloader course, and Nelson Martin and Don Livengood completed the service course on the Case IH axial flow combine.

The training programs included classroom and hands-on study of the machines' transmissions, engines, hydraulic and electronic systems. Students also received an overview of the manufacturing processes used by Case IH to assure the best in product quality.

To sharpen their servicing skills, students disassembled and reassembled components. They also practiced performing critical equipment adjustments and learned precise testing and troubleshooting procedures.

C. B. Hoober & Son Inc. is committed to providing the best possible service to its customers. As part of their commitment to excellence in service, their service technicians also were schooled in predelivery, which involves using a checklist to thoroughly check over the machines at their dealership before delivery to the customer. The service technician is required to sign this checklist and the customer receives a copy to confirm that the checks have been made.

Allen Hunsberger joins three other C. B. Hoober & Son Inc. servicemen -- Lew Martin, Phares Breneman, and Allen Railing -- as Case IH factory trained Magnum tractor service technicians. Now Hoober also has five factory trained combine servicemen -- Ken Diller, Gordon Sangrey, Bob Book, Don Livengood, and Nelson Martin.

Four C.B. Hoober & Sons employees recently attended a five-day training program at the Case IH Service Training School in Racine, Wis. Learning more about the Case IH equipment were, from left, Nelson Martin, Don Livengood, Ramon Hunt, and Allen Hunsberger.

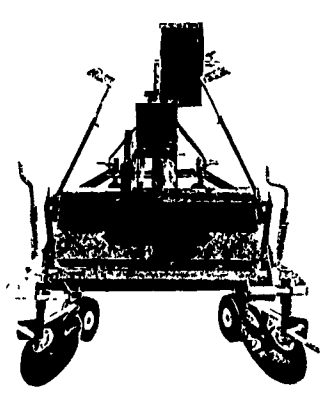
BIG YIELDER MODEL 2500
RAISED BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



Not all mulch layers look and work the same, it's how the mulch is layed that really counts.

Featuring
- Independent, spring loaded cover arms with 6 way disk hillers. No wrench needed for adjustment. Convenient cranks for more or less coverage.
- Independent presswheels that "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over). Machine will carry two 48" x 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller (in back of machine) thus giving a tightly stretched mulch and pressed bed.
- Beds are 4" to 6" high (depending on adjustment). Machine has adjustable row markers.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY", is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.
- Drip irrigation attachment (optional) is adjustable side to side and up and down, will handle large or small drip line spools.

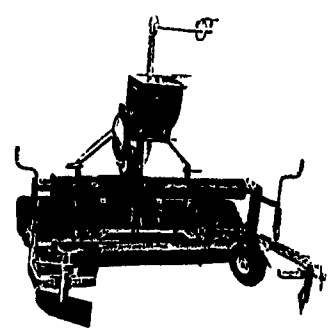
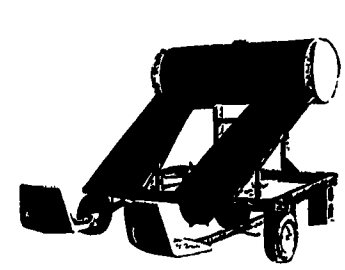
FLAT BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



When it comes to mulch laying, take a close up look at the Model 560. Mulch laying is prior to planting your baby plants, and is more than just rolling out your plastic mulch. Uniform beds and tightly layed plastic mulch is a must for a higher bottom line.

Featuring
- Very uniform beds, the Model 560 eliminates pot holes in seed bed. Heavy ⅛" steel pan will press bed. Has furrow openers on bottom.
- Independent spring loaded cover arms with convenient cranks for more or less coverage. For maximum control of coverage, this machine has scrapers instead of disk covers.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over).
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller for maximum tightness. Independent press wheels also "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- With minor adjustment, machine will lay 4' or 5' plastic. (Adaptor optional.) Carries two 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY" is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.

WATER WHEEL PLANT SETTER



Featuring
Planter will plant through plastic mulch with constant depth control for the plants. Plants 1 or 2 rows on one bed. Simple operation, will water as you plant, has water flow control. Also, water off/on controlled by planters or tractor operator. Machine has four tray carrying racks, two are "self feeding" right to the planter seats.

Comes with category 2, 3-point hook up. Economically priced.

Full line of drip irrigation, plastic mulches, and supplies in stock.

Pioneer To Host Rural Development Conferences

DES MONIES, IA — The second in a series of regional conferences on rural community development sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., is to be held March 28-30 at the Adam's Mark Hotel in Indianapolis.

The conferences represent Phase II of the Search for Solutions program, which is the cornerstone of the company's community relations effort. Five national conferences have been held in the Des Moines, Iowa, area during the past three years. The first regional conference was held in St. Louis last fall.

The Indianapolis region includes Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee. About 300 Pioneer sales representatives and employees, and their guests — local community leaders such as mayors, city council members and school superintendents — are expected to attend the conference. Three more regions will be selected during the next two years to ensure that each Pioneer sales representative and employee has an opportunity to attend.

The conferences feature nationally recognized authorities on rural community development who focus on identifying issues and resources, and writing and implementing action plans. Participants from communities of similar population are grouped together so that workable ideas are quickly surfaced and shared.

Pennsylvania Extension Delegates Meet With Legislators

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension leaders and state legislators met recently as part of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Association's Legislative Day.

Legislative Day is a chance for people from the Commonwealth to meet with members of the General Assembly to express support of the programs and services offered by the Penn State Cooperative Extension in their county. This year there was a special interest in an increase in funding for research in seven areas, which will form the foundation for extension programs in the future. These research initiatives are: water quality and management, food safety and nutrition, pesticide safety, animal health, forest resources, rural economic development, and profitability in Pennsylvania agriculture.

Farmers Affected By New Fuel Tax Legislation

NEWARK, DE — The new 1989 diesel fuel tax requirements may simplify farmers' use of tax-free fuel, according to Laurie Lillard, University of Delaware Extension farm management assistant.

Under the new regulations, effective Jan. 1, 1989, producers and wholesale distributors may sell diesel fuel tax-free to farmers for use "on a farm for farming purposes." The IRS requirements for registration for purchasing tax-free fuel will not now apply to farmers.

Farmers are required to provide the producer or wholesale distributor with a certificate to keep on file that states the farmer's name and address, identification number, title of purchase and/or signer of certificate, basis for exemption of tax, and an clear indication of amount of fuel purchased for non-tax use.

Lillard says that if a farmer needs diesel fuel for both farming and non-farming purposes, a reasonably projected amount for non-tax use must be realized and recorded. Farmers must keep their own record of purchased tax-free fuel, says Lillard. Farmers will be required to report purchases for 1990.

Producers and wholesale distributors will be required to report each non-tax or tax-reduced sale according to the certificates on file from farmers.

Interest-Bearing Refund

Lillard says farmers have until June 30, 1989, to file for a special one-time interest-bearing refund for taxes paid on fuel purchased between April 1, 1988, and Dec. 31, 1988.

This tax-paid fuel must have been used for farming purposes before the claim, but not later than June 30, 1989. It must be fuel on which no credit has been taken against other taxes and must not have been used by a U.S. agency. Also, no other interest-bearing refunds may have been filed for the fuel.

In addition, Lillard says the tax-paid fuel use must meet one of the following guidelines:

- used by a calendar-year taxpayer between April 1, 1988, and June 30, 1988, or between July 1, 1988, and September 30, 1988, and less than $1,000 excise tax paid.
- used by a calendar-year taxpayer after Sept. 30, 1988, and any amount of excise tax paid.
- used by a fiscal-year taxpayer during any three of his or her first three quarters and less than $1,000 excise tax paid during same quarter purchased.
- used by a fiscal-year taxpayer during last quarter of his or her taxable year and any amount of excise tax paid during this quarter.

DPI Grower Education Seminars Are Successful

GEORGETOWN, DE — Close to 300 Delmarva poultry growers attended the Grower Educational Seminars in Bridgeville, DE, and Princess Anne, MD, on February 21 adn 22, which were sponsored by the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI). Based on the evaluations, they were pleased with the topics and speakers.

Because ventilation is so important in poultry-house management, half the program was on this topic. The chairman of DPI's Poultry Health Committee, Dr. Ed Odor of the University of Delaware, explained the relationship between ventilation and poultry health problems. His talk on the "whys" of ventilation was followed by a presentation on the "hows" of ventilation. Npel Dykes of Sterwin Laboratories, Division of Pitmen-Moore, used his time to show growers how air moves, why it moves as it does, and how they can control its movement. Dykes, a ventilation advisor for Perdue Farms, was well received by the growers. In fact, for more than an hour after the Bridgeville meeting he answered growers' questions.

Another important managemnt issue for growers is the proper disposal of dead birds. Dr. Dennis Murphy of the University of Maryland used his time to explain the composting system he is researching. Research for the project is being financed in part by DPI. A new videotape on composting dead chickens was shown by Dan Palmer of the University of Delaware. This tape shows a working composting unit developed by the Universities of Maryland and Delaware.

The next segment of the programs gave growers insights into the thinking of environmental agencies in Delaware and Maryland. Rosemary Roswell of the Maryland Department of Agriculture and Bob Zimmerman of the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control updated the audience on projects in their state dealing with animal waste disposal, cost sharing for best management practices and related matters.

The final speaker was Mabel Owen, director of the Massachusetts Division of Animal Health. Owen, who has observed the work of animal welfare and animal rights among in Europe the last 25 years, talked about the animal welfare referendum in Massachusetts last year. If it had been approved, it would have placed severe restrictions on farmers and would, many believe, have caused many farmers to go out of business. Because of the hard work of Owen, Massachusetts farmers, the state's Farm Bureau, and other groups, voters rejected the referendum by a wide margin. Owen began her talks by telling the growers what they already knew: all farmers with animals are animal welfarists. They feed their animals well, house them properly and do not abuse them. Many animal rights activists believe animals have more rights than humans and that it's not right to have animals as pets.

Most of the activists who caused the referendum to be on the ballot are vegetarians with little knowledge of animal agriculture, Owen said. She told how they distorted information to convert people to their cause and how they used the political system to their advantage. She said they admitted their aim was not to force a law on Massachusetts farmers, but to use the state's law as a model for a federal law.

Close to 300 poultry growers attended DPI's Grower Educational Seminars last month in Bridgeville, Del., and Princess, Md. Speakers at the seminars were, from left, sitting: Rosemary Roswell, Maryland Department of Agriculture; Dan Palmer, University of Delaware; Mabel A. Owen, Massachusetts Division of Animal Health; standing: Dr. Ed Odor, University of Delaware; Noel Dykes, Sterwin Laboratories; Don Lynch, DPI president; Bill Bruning, DPI Grower Committee chairman; Dr. Dennis Murphy, University of Maryland; and Bob Zimmerman, Department of Natural Resources & Environmental Control.

Dauphin County Conducts Pesticide Training Meeting

DAUPHIN — Pennsylvania law requires that all private pesticide applicators receive annual training. This law states that applicators receive a total of 12 training points every three years. These points are for instruction in the sale handling and application of pest control materials.

Private applicators with licenses dated September 1988 have until March 30, 1989 to receive training or their license will expire. If an applicator's license does expire he/she will need to take a test to obtain a new license.

The Dauphin County Cooperative Extension will be conducting a meeting that will provide pesticide training. The meeting will be held on Thursday, March 23 at 7 p.m. at the Dauphin County Agricultural and Natural Resources Center (Located on Route 225, Dauphin). This meeting will qualify for four training points. There is no cost or pre-registration required.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Yeutter Names Members To New PACA Advisory Committee

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter has named 20 members and 10 alternates to serve on a new committee to advise him on matters concerning the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA). The committee was authorized by an August 1988 amendment to that act; PACA promotes fair trading of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables.

J. Patrick Boyle, Administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the new committee was established by Congress to review the administration, operations, and funding of PACA. "The committee will provide a welcome balance between the industry's interest and USDA's responsibilities in administering the act," he said.

Under the law, the committee is to represent and balance the interests of all segments of the fruit and vegetable industry, Boyle said. These include growers, shippers, brokers, retailers, market receivers, wholesale groceries, and processors.

Appointed to serve as members are Keith W. Eckel, Clarks Summit, Pa.; Darrel Fulmer, Delano, Calif.; David Kingston, Ucon, Idaho; David W. Long, Othello, Wash.; John J. Mandy, Highland, N.Y.; John R. Norton III, Phoenix, Ariz.; Daniel Seitz Jr., Pharr, Texas; Frank D. Teets, South Bay, Fla.; Louis E. Wysocki, Custer, Wisc.; Gerald A. Carter, Indianapolis, Ind.

Sid Verdoorn, Eden Prairie, Minn.; Stephen B. Barlow, Rochester, Minn.; Anthony P. Misasi, Wayne, N.J.; Richard Spezzano, El Monte, Calif.; James A. Stoll, Dover, Ohio, Steve D'Arrigo, Bronx, N.Y.; Ira Cohen, New York, N.Y.; Alan Siger, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Charles Tryon, Eden Prairie, Minn.; and John Ielmini, Patterson, Calif.

Appointed to serve as alternates are William Geach, Sacramento, Calif.; Gwen Gray, Cowpens, S.C.; Joseph Obucina, Jr., Oviedo, Fla.; Todd Saine, Odell, Ore.; Peter C. Ballotta, Tampa, Fla.; Robert Hand, Des Moines, Iowa; William J. Purdy, Landover, Md.; Richard Jahnke, Hazelwood, Mo.; Frank Rostan, Elizabeth, N.J.; and Preston C. Williams Jr., Montezuma, Calif.

Implemented in 1930 at the request of the fruit and vegetable industry, and amended several times since, PACA establishes a code of good business practices in that industry. The act also provides for damages to be paid by those not meeting their contractual obligations in buying and selling fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. PACA requires that traders in these commodities must be USDA-licensed, and by law their licenses become suspended automatically if they fail to pay reparations awarded against their businesses.

The committee's interim recommendations to the secretary, the House Committee on Agriculture, and the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry are due not later than September 30, with a final report due not later than May 1, 1990. According to statute, the committee will disband upon the submission of its final report.

Understanding Over-Order Pricing

RCMA Is The Way To Better Milk Prices

Editor's Note: The Regional Marketing Cooperative Agency, Inc. needs 1,200 more members in the Order II area. This article written by Jack Kirkland and Blair Smith of Penn State University, Ag Economics Dept., in May, 1987, explains the importance of over-order pricing to farmers and also the value of a collective bargaining unit such as RCMA.

Prices that are achieved through negotiations that are above the minimum Class I prices established in State or Federal Milk Marketing Orders are commonly called over-order prices. They usually apply only to milk used for Class I purposes. The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) has been formed to negotiate for over-order prices in the Northeastern United States. Recruitment of dairy farmers has been underway for some time. A 95% dairy farmer membership in RCMA is thought to be necessary for effective bargaining for over-order prices.

How Over-Order Prices are Achieved

For over-order pricing to work, a bargaining agency must achieve two criteria: (1) it must achieve effective control of the milk in the region to be covered, and (2) it must be assured that milk from outside the region is not available at a price that is very much less than the over-order price plus the over-order premium. Without effective control of the supply in an area, milk plants can obtain their milk from producers who are not represented by the bargaining agency and the over-order pricing mechanism breaks down.

If supplies are available from outside the over-order pricing region, a milk plant must pay the cost of transporting the milk into the region. The over-order price, in the event of readily available supplies from outside the region, could not be greater than the cost of the alternative supply of milk plus the transportation cost to get it into the region.

The willingness of milk plants to pay an over-order price is also an important factor in the ability of a bargaining group to achieve over-order prices. Milk plants would probably prefer a stable local supply of milk rather than having to procure supplies from greater distances, but they are also strongly influenced by the cost of procuring raw milk supplies. Milk plants recognize that, to maintain a local supply of milk, farm prices must be at a level assures the needed level of production. Milk plants are sometimes willing to pay a premium to achieve a stable supply of a large volume of milk from one source. That is at least one of the reasons milk cooperatives have been able to gain over-order prices.

Effects of Over-Order Pricing

Over-order prices would be expected to increase the revenues of dairy farmers. In regions where supply and demand are in fairly close alignment, over-order prices may offset price reductions designed to get the national surplus under control. In such cases, over-order pricing could be viewed as a way of maintaining prices of local supplies of milk. However, over-order pricing will not assure that all dairy farmers will be able to remain in business. Those farmers who have high costs of production due to lack of efficiency, or other reasons, will probably still struggle to remain in business.

Milk dealers should be only minimally affected if all dealers in a region pay the same over-order price for their Class I milk, and they are able to pass the extra cost of the Class I milk to the consumer.

When looking at the dairy industry as a whole, other important issues come into consideration. Milk production has, over time, shifted among regions. Populations and consumption have changed on a regional basis as well. The basic issue here is whether each region should produce only enough milk for its own needs, or whether the most efficient regions should be allowed to produce milk and ship milk or milk products to other higher cost regions. Certainly, milk movements today have little respect for political boundaries, and economics plays a much greater role than in the past. Moving milk and milk products is much easier than it has been in the past. If lower prices force farmers out of business in one region, milk or milk products can readily be brought in from other regions. The economics associated with paying over-order prices versus the cost of alternative supplies will play a major role in whether or not a region will meet its milk demand with its own milk supply.

The consumer will probably ultimately pay for the over-order premium in the form of higher prices for fluid products. A $1 per hundredweight increase in price for the farmer translates into about a 9-cent per gallon increase for the consumer. The demand for fluid milk is thought to be highly inelastic. That is, price changes result in very small changes in milk consumption. Thus, it may be possible to pass this price increase on to the consumer with only a slight decrease in consumption. In this case, the dairy farmer's revenue would increase. The primary loser would be the consumer who is paying the higher prices, although because of reduced volumes, plants may also suffer some reduction in revenues.

Summary

Over-order pricing is not new, it is now being used in many milk markets across the country. The key to establishing and maintaining over-order prices is the effective producer control of the supply of milk within a region. This depends upon the degree of market power of the producers. Over-order pricing will work if a bargaining agency has sufficient control of the local milk supply and if milk plants are unable to effectively procure less costly alternative supplies. However, meeting these criteria is a tough job. The inability of producers to accomplish them is probably the reason why higher over-order prices are not in effect in more markets throughout the U.S.

Dairy farmers who receive over-order prices will benefit from the added revenue. However, even high over-order prices will not assure all dairy farmers can survive. The struggle to reduce costs will continue for the dairy farmer.

The consumer will probably pay higher prices for fluid milk where over-order prices are in effect. However, there should be little reduction in consumption due to over-order prices since demand for fluid milk products is Better control without carryover is making Ranger® the quackgrass herbicide in the Northeast.

More and more Northeastern farmers are using Ranger® rather than high rates of atrazine for quackgrass control.

Ranger is so popular because it delivers better control than atrazine. Ranger kills emerged quackgrass all the way down to the roots. And, of course Ranger has no soil buildup so it will not carryover.

Best of all, you'll find Ranger is priced close to the cost of high quackgrass rates of atrazine.

This season, don't take a chance on atrazine carryover problems hurting your crop rotation. Rescue your rotation with the better quackgrass herbicide—Ranger. Ask your dealer.

Area Men Attend National Conservation Convention

Aaron Z. Stauffer of Ephrata and Robert E. Gregory of Lititz recently attended the 43rd Annual Convention of the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD). Nearly 1,900 conservationists from across the country attended the convention last month.

Revolving around the theme "Dedication in the Face of Challenge", the convention focused on the expanding role of county conservation districts in the areas of water quality, pesticide and nutrient management, urban sediment control, stormwater management and wetlands conservation. The conservation provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill that tie conservation practices to government farm program benefits and the Conservation Reserve Program also were examined.

NACD is a non-profit, non-governmental organization dedicated to the wise use, conservation and development of the nation's soil and water and related natural resources. Currently, NACD serves as a national spokesman for nearly 3,000 local soil and water conservation districts nationwide.

PACD is a private, non-profit organization representing Pennsylvania's 36 county conservation districts. Activities included education, information and representation on the state and national levels in soil, water and related resource management.

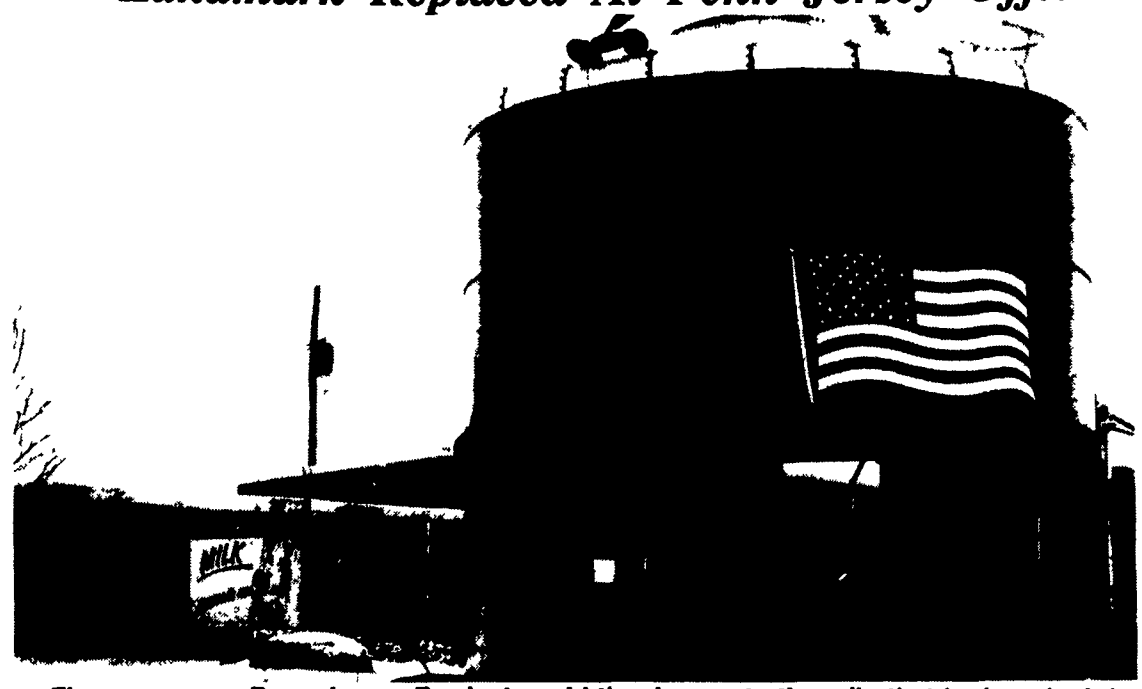
thought to be very inelastic. The consumer will ultimately pay for over-order pricing since, as in most consumer products whether food or nonfood, increased costs are almost always passed on. Retail dairy product prices have risen less rapidly than most retail prices and dairy products remain a good buy. Also, since dairy products make up such a small portion of the consumer's budget, a small increase in fluid milk prices will not have that great a negative impact on the welfare of the consumer.

Landmark Replaced At Penn Jersey Office



Five years ago, Penn Jersey Products sold the demonstration silo that had marked the Harvestore dealership located along Route 322 between Ephrata and Blue Ball in Lancaster County. This week, the local landmark was replaced with the silo that was used last year during Ag Progress Days at State College.

Workmen erected the structure exactly as they are built on the farm—by lifting the silo up and putting glass and steel sheets into place at ground level. Penn Jersey Products is celebrating 25 years in business while Harvestore celebrates 40 years.

Better Farm Income Key Part Of Rural Revitalization

LITTLE ROCK, AR — A variety of measures will be needed to halt the depopulation and deterioration of the rural economy, Bob Bergland, general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA), told the 87th National Farmers Union Convention held earlier this month.

"Rural electric systems will need to lead the way by laying the groundwork and providing incentives, which will help establish business and create jobs in the countryside," Bergland said.

The former Secretary of Agriculture emphasized that stronger farm prices and income must be a major part of any revitalization strategy.

Taking note of the invasion of foreign capital into ownership of U.S. industry, the national trade deficit, and the crisis in the savings and loan industry, Bergland declared that "these are times that call for strength and vision and, most of all, a departure from the failed ideological policies which have hastened the depopulation of Rural America."

Bergland said he was particularly distressed that the Bush Administration has rubber-stamped the Reagan budget proposals for privatizing the Rural Electrification Administration (REA).

To cut off the REA from its major source of financing Bergland maintained, would be to "cripple if not mortally wound a mainstay of the rural economy."

He reported that the Reagan administration in seeking to terminate the REA loan programs has been charging that they are a serious drain on the federal treasury.

But, as a matter of fact, in fiscal 1988, the U.S. Treasury collected $4 billion more than REA systems than it loaned them, he stated.

Next to seeking a 1990 farm bill which strongly increases farm prices and income, revitalization of the economy of countryside America ranks high among the Farmers Union's priorities for 1989.

Columbia County Names Conservation Farmer Of The Year

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

BERWICK (Columbia) — Richard Deihl of Orangeville has been named Columbia County Conservation Farmer of the year.

The award, given annually by the Columbia County Conservation District, is based on the regular and long-term conservation efforts made by individual land managers who work in cooperation with the Conservation District.

Deihl's conservation program began soon after he purchased the farm in 1969. Just prior to his discharge from the Navy, he and his wife, Jill, bought the 160 acres (consisting of two tracts) to raise crops.

An additional 66 rented acres have been added to the total under cultivation. Of this 75 acres are in corn, 80 in soybeans, with the balance in hay (alfalfa on the home farm and mixed grasses on the rented land).

The Diehls sell their hay and high-moisture corn to be local dairyman while the soybeans go to Townsend Inc. of Delaware.

Richard's initial conservation in the early 70s consisted of drainage tile in a wet area. In the early 80s, his soil saving program progressed by adding terraces and waterways. Strip cropping and contours were incorporated, all of which amounts to about 50 percent of his total conservation plan on the home farm. Presently he has 1,400 foot of terraces and 4,300 foot of waterways.

Most of Deihl's land is flat with a few moderately inclined areas. Only one site has a severe enough elevation to warrant being permanently in alfalfa.

Both of Diehl's sons help on the farm. Michael, 17, a junior at Millville School, planted most of last year's corn. Matthew, 13, added his help, which frees his mother, Jill, to the bookwork end of the business.

The Deihl family are active members of Emmanuel Baptist Church of Millville.

They also belong to the Central Susquehanna Builders Association and the National Precast Concrete Association. These two organizations are associated with a concrete business that Richard operates in addition to his farming.

Richard Deihl was presented the R.J. Campbell award (an aerial photo of his farm) for his on-going

Richard Deihl's farm at Orangeville has been in a 10-year on-going conservation effort for which he has been named Conservation Farmer of the Year by Columbia County. Deihl also operates a precast concrete business in addition to farming crops.

Hunting Most Economical Way To Control Deer Damage

TRENTON, NJ — Nationally recognized wildlife researcher Dr. Jay MacInnitch says farmers can take strong initiatives to creatively manage hunting to control deer damage.

"Farmers have tried fencing and repellants, but these are not always practical or cost effective. Hunting is a limited answer, but it is the most economical way to control deer damage," says MacInnitch, who addressed New Jersey farmers in regional deer damage control meetings on March 16 and 17.

MacInnitch, who helped New York State to manage its deer damage problem, earlier this year joined the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to research deer control on fieldsd with crop rows.

"New Jersey has one of the most liberal policies on hunting," says MacInnitch, who added that New York hunters are allowed just one doe permit. "The state offers the opportunity to hunt. It's up to landowners in agricultural areas to creatively manage responsible hunting to their benefit."

MacInnitch discussed deer ecology and management in agricultural areas, land access, and how farmers and hunters can work together to orchestrate a more effective program. He shared research on repellants and fencing, and successful deer damage control techniques in other states.

MacInnitch addressed South Jersey farmers, nurserymen and growers of Christmas trees and other crops on March 16 at the Savoy Inn in Vineland.
